+ Matty Stukel, state American Legion baseball director, has appointed a committee to explore the possibilities of establishing a two-class program in Minnesota. Presently, all teams compete in one class and there seems to be considerable interest in separating the small towns from the big city teams. Members of the committee include Tony Sipe, Ada; Gaylord Zelinske, Brainerd; and George Marsnik, Ely. Several states are now operating under the multiple class system. Minnesota ranks third in the nation as far as total number of teams registered in the American Legion baseball program. Minnesota will operate under the one-class system in 1983.

Section 8 Games Start This Weekend At EGF

Most of the attention seems to be focused on the opening night quarterfinals Friday as the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament unfolds this weekend at East Grand Forks.

Three of the stronger tournament entries — Fergus Falls, Bemidji and Roseau — plus defending champion East Grand Forks, are grouped together in the upper bracket of the eight-team, five-day tournament that will send its champion to the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament at the St. Paul Civic Center March 10-12.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, appears to have a definite edge in the Saturday night bottom bracket where the Prowlers are grouped with Lake of the Woods, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead.

Friday's match-ups feature Fergus Falls vs. East Grand Forks at 6:30 p.m. and Bemidji vs. Roseau at 9. Saturday's games include Lake of the Woods vs. Detroit Lakes at 6:30 p.m. and Thief River Falls vs. Moorhead at 9. Friday's winners will meet in Monday's 7:30 p.m. semifinal, with the Saturday winners playing Tuesday at 7:30. Championship game will be played Friday at 7:30.

Sub-Section 8 games were completed Monday when East Grand Forks got by Crookston 3-2 in overtime and Roseau handled Warroad 8-2 in North Half play while Detroit Lakes shaded Brainerd 4-2 and Moorhead edged Alexandria 5-4 in overtime in the South Half. The wins enabled the Green Wave, Rams, Lakers and Spuds to join the Otters, Lumberjacks, Bears and Prowlers in the Section 8 quarterfinals. They earned automatic berths based upon the final regular season Section 8 standings.

Sub-Section play started Saturday when Crookston beat Indus 11-2, East Grand Forks handled Hallock 10-1, Warroad shut out Red Lake Falls 5-0, Detroit Lakes dumped Crosby-Ironton 11-2, Brainerd clubbered Bagley 20-0 and Moorhead eliminated Little Falls 6-2.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand doesn't deny the Prowlers got a break in the draw, but he emphasized that the team still must play good hockey to take advantage of the opportunity that presents itself.

"We're in an enviable position, and we're excited about it," said Grand, "but we have to take one game at a time. We have to play well Saturday or we check in equipment Monday. That's certainly a big motivation factor for the kids. They sure don't want it to end that fast."

Thief River Falls finished the 1982-83 regular season with a 14-5-1 record that included a long 12-game unbeaten streak after an 0-3 start. Things haven't gone quite as smoothly the last two weeks, though, after a 5-3 loss at Roseau Feb. 5 ended an eight-game winning streak. The Prowlers then handled Hallock 9-1, Detroit Lakes 6-3 and Warroad 10-2 but got ripped 6-1 at Fergus Falls Friday in their final start.

Still, outside of some brief defensive letdowns, things haven't gone all that badly, indicated Grand, and he's confident the Prowlers can get their goals-against down to near the point it was when they gave up an average of less than two games each start during the January blitz.

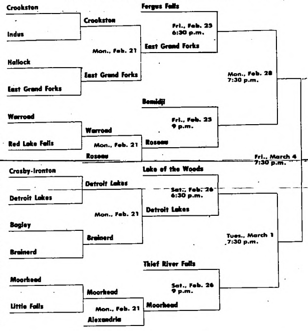
New regulations this year will enable teams to dress four full lines and three sets of defensemen for tournament games. Thief River Falls' forward combinations will include senior Tim Bergland with juniors Tim Bottem and Rick Spong; senior Tom Kenville with juniors Mitch Samanko and Jerry Hallamek; junior Ryan Bakke with junior Steve Wiskow and sophomore Joe Blankenfeld; and senior Mike Torgerson with senior Chris Jorde and sophomore Dan Imgrund.

On the blue line will be senior Jeff Storhaug and junior Brian Johnston; juniors Jim Geatz and Gary Cornell; along with senior Rod Harder and junior Allan Ness.

Senior Kerry Wollin, who has developed into a very strong netminder in his first year as a starter, will be the goalie.

A year ago Thief River Falls, after a 7-1 Sub-Section 8 win over Red Lake Falls, edged Roseau 2-1 in the Section 8 quarterfinals played here, then fell to Bemidji by the same 2-1 score in the semifinals. East Grand Forks beat Bemidji 3-1 in the finals, getting an open net goal with just six seconds left.

1983 Section 8 Hockey Tournament



Tim Bergland Named To All-Section Hockey Team

Thief River Falls' Tim Bergland was among the players selected to the 1982-83 All-Section 8 high school hockey team announced today (Wednesday) by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston.

Section 8 coaches voted for the selections. They were asked to vote for a goalie, then the five best players regardless of position. They did not vote for members of their own team, but did name one or two who made big contributions to their teams.

First team All-Section 8 selections included Bemidji senior Don Smith, a 5-7, 160-pound center; Bergland, a 6-3, 175-pound center; East Grand Forks senior Craig Mack, a 6-1, 195-pound defenseman; and Warroad senior John Bjorkman, a 6-1, 180-pound forward-defenseman.

Those were the top four picks. A three-way tie developed in the balloting for the fifth spot among Lake of the Woods senior Jerry Pieper, a 5-10, 165-pound defenseman; Roseau junior Paul Broten, a 5-9, 145-pound center; and Lake of the Woods senior Jeff Solheim, a 6-3, 222-pound wing.

The top goalie was Bemidji senior Mike Sauer, a 5-7, 160-pounder considered by some as one of the top netminders in the state.

Second team All-Section 8 picks were goalie Jay Boomgaarden, Lake of the Woods; plus skaters Jeff Bowen, East Grand Forks; Craig Hedstrom, Fergus Falls; Mark Nordling, Hallock; Chad Johnson, Roseau; Dave Cauble, Lake of the Woods; and Tom Kenville, Thief River Falls.

Bowen and Johnson were two standouts who missed 10 and 9 games, respectively, because of injuries this winter.

Jerry Drewes of Lake of the Woods was named Section 8 coach of the year.

Honorable mention All-Section 8 status went to Jeff Bast and Curt Nelson, Alexandria; Bob Bestul, Bagley; Wade Amundson and Tim Webb, Bemidji; Chris Olson, Steve Ebinger, Brian Herzog, Kurt Muesing and Scott Dinham, Brainerd; Rick Dahle, Mark Lyczewski and Mike Hastings, Crookston; Kerry White and Dave Stimac, Crosby-Ironton; Chad Meyhoff, Chris Ahles, Bob Caulfield and Brent Stromme, Detroit Lakes; Joel Duray, East Grand Forks; Daryl Hegerle, Brad Baglo, Tom Lundeen, Kurk Werner and Kris Werner, Fergus Falls; Jon Davis, Hallock; Loren Nelson and Jeff Pelland, Indus; Doug Ebeltoft, Lake of the Woods; John Eidenshink, Scott Axel and Scott Scanlon, Little Falls; Jeff Falconer, Moorhead; Greg Leintz, Red Lake Falls; Paul Erickson, Larry Goos and Tom Pederson, Roseau; Kerry Wollin, Thief River Falls; Ken Knutson and Barry Marmus, Warroad.

Northland vs. Vermilion In Opener . . .

Northmen To Enter State Tournament Thursday

Golden Valley Lutheran is the pre-tournament favorite, but a wide open field is expected to make it an interesting Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state basketball tournament this week in Bloomington.

Host school Normandale community college surprisingly isn't included in the line-up, which features the champion and runner-up teams in each of the four MCCC divisions across the state.

In opening round quarterfinals Thursday it'll be Northeast Division winner Vermilion vs. Northwest Division runner-up Minneapolis at 3; Central Division champion Golden Valley Lutheran vs. Southern Division runner-up Willmar at 7; and Northwest Division champion Fergus Falls vs. Northeast Division runner-up Hibbing at 9.

Semifinals will be played Friday night when the Vermilion-Northland winner plays the Rochester-Minneapolis winner at 7 o'clock and the Golden Valley Lutheran-Willmar winner plays the Fergus Falls-Hibbing winner at 9.

Thursday's first round losers will play in Friday's consolation round games at 1 and 3 p.m.

Saturday's schedule will include the consolation final at 1 p.m., the third place game at 3 and the state championship game at 5.

"I think the whole thing is pretty even," pointed out Northland coach Chet Engelman. "Golden Valley Lutheran is probably the favorite, but everybody else is pretty even."

Northland owns a 93-88 regular season win over Vermilion. The Northmen will go into the tournament 16-3 overall, 9-2 against MCCC competition. Only losses the Northmen suffered since early December were 101-95 and 83-82 decisions at the hands of Fergus Falls that decided the Northwest Division pennant.

"We're going down with the idea of trying to play three good basketball games," explained Engelman, "and if we can play three good games we have a chance to win it. But we'll have to play three good games to do it."

Engelman said he's confident the Northmen can do well this week, but notes that a change will be made in the line-up for the Vermilion game, and making line-up changes right before the state tournament is not the ideal situation.

Sophomores Matt Fontes (Canton, Ohio) and Scott McKeever (Middle River), along with freshman Kyle Ramsey (Milwaukee, Wis.) and Shorty Johnson (Kenai, Alaska), will remain in the starting line-up, with freshman Kevin Sanders (TRF) getting his first start of the year at point guard.

The change was made because sophomore Duncan Gregory is not listed on the roster as a disciplinary move by Engelman. At the start of the year freshman Bud Fontes was expected to fill that role, but he too was taken off the roster. Freshmen Rick Van Camp (Newfolden) and Steve Holloway (Argyle) were both tried as starters in the final two regular season games, but Engelman says both apparently perform better off the bench, thus the role falls this week to Sanders.

"Kevin has been playing well for us. He hasn't played a lot, but when he has gone in he's done a good job. I would say we'd have a better than average chance at the state tournament with both Bud and Duncan available, but we'll make do with what we've got and just hope we can play well."

Fontes leads the team with a 28.6 scoring average and 240 rebounds. McKeever has a 17.6 average Ramsey 15.6 and Johnson 8.2.

Lincoln Girls End Losing Streak By Beating Otters

Four Thief River Falls scorers reached double figures, led by Michelle Olson with 24 points, as the Lincoln high school girls basketball team snapped a 12-game losing streak Tuesday with a 65-60 victory over Fergus Falls during parent's night at the Lincoln gym.

It was the Prowlers' first victory since back-to-back wins over Tri-County and Roseau back on Dec. 4-11. They finished their regular season schedule 3-13 and will await the outcome of a coaches seeding meeting tonight (Wednesday) to find out their draw for the 1983 North Half Region 8AA tournament, which begins Monday.

"That's a big load off our back," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer after the win. "We've been in just about every ball game, but we just haven't been able to win. We played well. We deserved to win this one."

It didn't look that way at the start as Fergus Falls raced to a 13-2 lead. Thief River Falls trailed 17-9 at the end of the first quarter, with the Prowlers racking up 11 of their 24 turnovers in the first eight minutes.

"We didn't adjust to their press at all," explained Schafer. "We were just standing around. It was just a poor first quarter for us."

Thief River Falls squared things around the rest of the way, although the Prowlers still trailed 31-25 at halftime and faced a 46-42 deficit at the start of the fourth quarter.

The Prowlers finally wrestled the lead away from the Otters, 56-55, with 2½ minutes left and held on for the win.

Paul Meyers, Lynne Culkins and Pia Tymberg all scored 12 points for the Prowlers to join Olson in double figures, with Tymberg getting eight of her points down the stretch in the fourth quarter.

Thief River Falls won it, according to Schafer, with a strong shooting night. The Prowlers shot 44 per cent from the field (24-for-54) and 74 per cent at the free throw line (17-for-23). They came into the game with a 30 per cent figure for the year from the field and a 42 per cent figure from the line. Olson was 10-for-11 at the free throw line.

Fergus Falls' fast-paced offense shot 45 per cent from the field (25-for-55) and 48 per cent at the line (10-for-21). The Prowlers had a 35-31 rebound edge and the turnovers were even at 24 apiece.

"It was a wide open ball game," pointed out Schafer. "It was run, run, run. It was fun to watch."

Thief River Falls completed a Tuesday night sweep when the Lincoln junior varsity finished the year 7-9 with a 45-32 victory and the Lincoln freshmen won by a 42-36 margin. Connie Grovum had 13 points for the winners in the junior varsity ball game and Michelle Puetz had 11 points for Thief River Falls in the freshman game.

MCCC State Hockey . . .

Northmen Play Well But Lose Two Games

Northland community college hockey coach Tony Dorn, Jr. said the Northmen put in a strong showing at the 1983 Minnesota Community college Conference (MCCC) state hockey tournament over the weekend in Rochester even though the trip's net result was two losses.

Host Rochester beat Northland 5-2 in the tournament opener Saturday night and the Northmen fell to Rainy River 4-2 in the Sunday afternoon consolation game. University of Minnesota-Crookston, a 9-5 first round winner over Rainy River, won its second straight state tournament title with a 7-1 rout of Rochester in Sunday's finals.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of," pointed out Dorn. "The kids played tremendous hockey Saturday. It was by far the best game of the tournament. It was an exceptionally good effort on our part. The guys played their hearts out."

Northland fell behind 1-0 at the end of the first period and trailed 3-2 after two. It remained a one-goal hockey game until Rochester put it away with a pair of open net goals in the final 41 seconds.

Both Northland scoring plays were goals by Todd Graalum set up by Tom Ose.

Sunday's consolation game wasn't played at such a high level of enthusiasm, admitted Dorn. The Northmen tailed 2-0 at the end of the first period and faced a 4-1 deficit after two.

Northland, a third place finisher in the regular season MCCC standings, finished the year 10-10 overall.

MCC Girls End Schedule With Win; 16-2 Record

Marshall County Central completed a 16-2 regular season schedule Monday with a 53-40 home court girls high school basketball win over Greenbush.

The Tigers had a 14-12 first quarter lead, but the Nordics had a productive 11-for-18 second quarter showing at the free throw line en route to a 35-21 halftime advantage.

"It was a real physical ball game," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. The Nordics were a busy 17-for-34 at the free throw line where the Tigers were 4-for-15.

Sue Olson and Brenda Dahl had 13 points apiece for the winners. Tammy Gjovik of Greenbush led all scorers with 21 points.

Both teams connected on 18 field goals, but the Nordics' edge at the free throw line made for the 13-point difference. Marshall County Central was 18-for-52 from the field (35 per cent). Greenbush was 18-for-48 (38 per cent). The Tigers had a 41-36 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover charts 31-20.

Marshall County Central point guard Debbie Peterson returned to the line up after being sidelined over half of the year with a knee injury.

Post-season District 32 tournament play starts Thursday, although Marshall County Central receives a first round bye.

However, they missed on all five counts and never again challenged.

Jody Pahlen scored 22 points for Plummer and Bonnie Fisher had 18.

Ponies Beat Nordics 51-33

Marshall County Central suffered its third straight loss Tuesday as the Nordics dropped a 51-33 high school basketball decision at Warren, but coach Ron Ueland managed to find a silver lining in the cloud even though he watched his team drop to 7-10 for the year.

"We felt it was a good game for us overall," reported Ueland, who called it one of the Nordics' better efforts in recent outings. "We did more things right than wrong. We just happened to play an awfully good team, and we had a little trouble shooting."

Warren led at the quarter stops 9-5, 27-19 and 41-25, although Marshall County Central was still within a ten-point striking range in the fourth quarter.

Scott Brekke led a balanced Warren attack with 12 points and was the game's only double figure scorer. Marshall County Central played without the services of leading scorer Larry Larson, sideline by an ankle injury.

Warren shot 55 per cent from the field (21-for-38) while Marshall County Central struggled with a 31 per cent figure (15-for-48). The Ponies weren't so hot at the free throw line, finishing 9-for-22. The Nordics were 3-for-10 at the line. Warren had a 28-17 rebound edge. Turnovers were held to a minumum — seven apiece.

Ueland was happy with the way the Nordics handled the Ponies' pressure defense, but admitted that even though the press didn't force many turnovers, it did take the Nordics out of their offensive pattern. "We didn't generate as much offense as we would have liked," he noted.

Marshall County Central finishes the 1982-83 regular season schedule Friday at home against Hallock.

Alvarado 56
Plummer 41

Plummer watched a 39-38 lead at the start of the fourth quarter disappear in a hurry Tuesday as Alvarado outscored the visiting Cardinals 18-2 over the final eight minutes in a 56-41 Polar Conference decision.

"We stopped getting the ball inside," said Plummer coach Jim Baron in explaining the fourth quarter collapse. "They weren't doing anything different, it was just that we weren't running our offense. We just stopped moving."

Alvarado had a 12-10 first quarter lead, but faced an 11-point second quarter deficit before narrowing that gap to 32-30 in the final two minutes of the first half. "That was the beginning right there," acknowledged Baron.

Troy Boman scored 17 points for the winners, with Tim Gagner getting 15 for the Cardinals.

Plummer shot only 29 per cent from the field (14-for-48) and went 13-for-26 at the free throw line. Alvarado shot 37 per cent from the floor (25-for-68) and was 6-for-10 at the line. Alvarado had a 35-33 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 19-14.

The loss closed out the Cardinals' regular season schedule at 1-16.

Badger 63
Grygla 47

Badger shot 50 per cent from the field while Grygla shot 39 per cent and the net result was a 63-47 home court North Border Conference win for for the Rockets Tuesday.

"We didn't play that bad," acknowledged Grygla coach Vern Johnson, "we just couldn't hit anything. We had good shots, but they wouldn't fall for us."

Badger had a 14-10 first quarter lead, then capitalized on a 4-for-16 Grygla second quarter shooting performance to open up a 32-18 halftime cushion. It was 48-34 after three quarters.

Mark Frosaker (23) and Wayne Lee (20) combined for 43 Badger points. Mike Brateng had 17 points to lead Grygla, with Rodney Hagen getting 14 and Tony McLean 12.

Grygla was 22-for-56 from the field and just 3-for-13 at the free throw line. Badger was 27-for-54 from the floor and 9-for-17 at the line. The Rockets had a 32-29 rebound edge.

The loss dropped the Eagles' record to 6-11. They finish their schedule Friday at home against Strandquist.

MAHA District 15 and 16 hockey tournaments were held over the weekend in East Grand Forks, Roseau, Fergus Falls and Hallock.

In Hallock, the Thief River Falls VFW Bantam B team, defeated Bagley 6-3, then lost 8-0 to Roseau. Moorhead beat Alexandria 5-2 for the district championship, with both teams advancing to the regionals March 4-6 at Cloquet.

In East Grand Forks, the Thief River Falls Merchants Pee-Wee B team was eliminated from tournament play by Alexandria 6-0. Hallock defeated Roseau 3-2 for championship honors. Both teams move on to play in the regionals March 4-6 at Hoyt Lakes.

Best performance by a TRFAHA team came in Fergus Falls as the Thief River Falls VFW Bantam A team defeated Fergus Falls 6-4 in opening round action on the way to a second place finish and a berth in the regionals in Baudette March 4-6.

Thief River Falls held a 5-1 lead after two periods against the strong Fergus Falls team on goals by Scott Novak (2), Allan Erickson (2) and Dave Winjum.

In semifinal action, Thief River Falls defeated Alexandria 7-4 after falling behind 3-1 through one period. Bob Geatz, Erickson and Novak scored two goals apiece, with Steve Fellman adding a single goal.

Warroad defeated Thief River Falls 6-1 for the district championship, scoring the game's last six goals after Erickson had opened with scoring. Thief River Falls is now 17-14 for the year.

In Roseau, Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team finished in fourth place behind Roseau, Warroad and Crookston, who all qualified for the regionals in Hibbing March 4-6.

Thief River Falls defeated Moorhead 9-4 in opening round action, then edged East Grand Forks 6-5 in quarterfinal play. Grant Larson scored what proved to be the winning goal at 11:01 of the second period. Roseau defeated Thief River Falls 8-2 in semifinal action, with Kent Hamre scoring the only Thief River Falls goal. Toughest loss came in the third-fourth place game against Crookston. With a regional tournament spot on the line, Crookston scored three times in the first minute-and-a-half of the game on the way to a 3-1 victory. Thief River Falls controlled the flow of the game and had many scoring chances, but could score only once.

Eagles Pee-Wee A team play a game at Grafton, N.D. Monday, winning 10-4 for a 15-11-1 record. Hamre scored six times and Mitch Wilebski four times. Rick Looker assisted on four goals while John Azure and John Thompson had two assists each.

Race was originally scheduled to start along Highway 1, just east of Thief River Falls, follow ditches to the river, and then continue into town, but warm weather and lack of snow forced cancellation of the ditch portion of the race.

PLAQUES AND TROPHIES earned by Sue Olson during her athletic career at Marshall County Central high school at Newfolden cover the wall and shelves of her room at the Robert Olson family home northeast of Holt. Sue scored her 1,000th point in girls basketball early this season, and with 13 points against Greenbush Monday night she became the school's all-time high basketball point producer with 1,322 points, surpassing Mike Fincher's 1,309.

A DURABLE PLAYER throughout her high school career in athletics, Sue Olson has played 92 consecutive basketball games for the Marshall County Central high school Nordics. She wears ankle braces as a precautionary measure and, as this photo was taken during halftime of the game against Greenbush Monday evening, was receiving attention from the assistant coach for a muscle cramp. Through the 92 games beginning as an eighth grader, Olson has averaged 14.4 points a game.

FOR THREE YEARS Sue Olson has been a captain of the Marshall County Central girls' basketball team, this year sharing the captaincy with Brenda Dahl. They are shown going over pre-game defensive strategy with coach Tom Mjelde. Also captains with Sue in prior years were Lisa Busch and Jill Johnson in 1980-81 and Jill Johnson and Dorene Larson in 1981-82.

Sue Olson Sets MCC Basketball Scoring Record

games this season, 14.5 in 21 games as a junior, 16.2 in 23 games as a sophomore, 11.7 in 23 games as a freshman and 5.3 in seven games as an eighth grader.

Only once this year and five times in the past three years has she failed to score in double figures, and in four of those games she had eight points. Her highest scoring output in an individual game has been 28 points against Warroad, one point shy of the MCC girls' record shared by Jill Johnson and Colleen Stokke. But her season record of 373 points as a sophomore is a school mark and she has scored 20 or more points in 14 games.

Coach Mjelde is more impressed with Olson's overall play than by her scoring totals. "She could have scored a lot more but she is very willing to pass the ball to set up her teammates," Mjelde said. "She consistently has five to eight assists a game and had 10 assists in a game against Grygla last year. There have been a couple of games this year when she could have had 20 assists but we muffed the pass or missed the shot," he said.

Although Sue did not enjoy one of her better shooting nights against Greenbush Monday night, she is shooting better than 50 per cent from the field and about 60 per cent from the free throw line this year. She is one of the team leaders in rebounds and loose ball recoveries, brings the ball up court against any pressing defense and is capable of performing well at either guard or forward. This year she snared 19 and 17 rebounds in two games against Badger and had 15 at Strandquist.

That Olson is a talented athlete is attested to by her accomplishments in both volleyball and track as well as basketball. That she is a respected leader is shown by her election as a captain of the basketball team for the past three years and co-captain of the volleyball team last season. She finished second in the region in the shotput the past two years and competed in the state track meet.

A member of the volleyball team for four years, she was an All-Conference player in the North Border conference as a junior and senior, winner of the hustle award as a sophomore, junior and senior and most valuable player as a senior. She co-captained this year's team with Brenda Dahl, also a co-captain on the basketball team.

Basketball honors include All-District 32 selection as a freshman, All-Conference selection as a freshman, sophomore and junior and MVP winner as a sophomore and junior. As a sophomore she was a tri-captain with Lisa Busch and Jill Johnson and as a junior was a tri-captain with Jill Johnson and Dorene Larson. She is a prime candidate for additional honors at the end of this season.

At Dave Gunther's UND basketball camp she was named outstanding camper and one-on-one winner in her sophomore year, winner of the hustle and hot-shot (shooting from different stations on the floor) competition as a junior and winner of the hustle award last summer.

Olson's winning attitude has shown in the Nordics' winning record. After an 11-11 season when she joined the team for the last seven games, she has been a starter in every game on team that have finished with 20-3, 17-6, 18-3 and 18-2 (two date) records. The 1979-80 team finished first in the conference, first in the district and second in the region. The 1980-81 team was second in the conference, first in the district and second in the region. The 1981-82 team won the conference title but finished second in the district and failed to advance. Hopes are high for better things in this year's tournament which the Nordics enter at 6:30 p.m. Monday at Roseau against the winner of the Lake of the Woods vs. Tri-County game.

"I like all parts of the game," she said of her basketball experience. "I like getting the ball to people so they can score, and I think that when I score I also play better defense. I get double-teamed quite a bit, but that just makes it easier for the other kids to score. We have quite a few good players on our team; that makes it tougher for the teams we play to defend against us."

Coach Mjelde concurred in Sue's assessment of the team. "I have been blessed with having at least three players every year who average in double figures in scoring," he said. "Most teams really haven't been effective in stopping us by concentrating on Sue. She is an aggressive player and a good passer. She will set up a lot of baskets and still get her share of points one way or another."

Although athletics take up a good deal of her time, Olson is a regular fixture on the MCC honor roll and is a member of the school's chapter of the National Honor soceity. She likes mathematics and plans to study in that area in college, looking toward a future in education with an interest in coaching. Coach Mjelde believes she is well capable of playing basketball at a mid-size four-year college.

She has been a member of the school band, participated in the school musical last year, has been pianist for services at Emmanuel Lutheran church of Ringbo for the past five years, a member of the Luther League and a past Sunday school teacher. She also plays summer softball and enjoys bicycle riding, camping, fishing, cooking and baking and working with her scrapbooks.

In addition to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Olson of rural Holt, her family includes a brother Orrin, age 22; brothers Ross, 16 and Bryan, 14, both at home; and a sister Kristie, age seven.

A summary of Sue's scoring and teams she has played against over the past five seasons includes the following.

St. Paul Ready For High School Tournaments

Saint Paul turns itself inside out for visitors in March and with very good reason: the March Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) tournaments of hockey, basketball and wrestling attract a quarter of a million people who spend $7 million for tickets, lodging, food and retail shopping, plus the many cultural and entertainment enterprises in the area.

The frenzy in the city, or "March Madness," as it is sometimes called, pervades the environment. Downtown especially is keyed to the vast number of people who will be in town, who need services and who will be spending their money.

From the Mayor on down, the welcome mat is out and visitors are treated royally and with the friendliness for which Saint Paul and its people are known.

Mayor George Latimer has made sure that "Every city department cooperates with the needs of the tournaments and the many tourists and visitors. The city is here to be of service and to provide the utmost in quality and kindness."

That means everyone — from city clerk to policeman — is unofficially designated as "goodwill ambassador." Add that to the enormous cooperation of civic organizations and others who want Saint Paul to be "the perfect host" and the visitor knows quickly that he or she is a special guest.

Saint Paul Convention, Exhibition and Tourism Commission works directly with the MSHSL and the Saint Paul Civic Center, which houses the sporting events. Besides handling housing and lodging requests, the Commission also coordinates parking arrangements and makes sure that the public is informed about nearby food establishments, all the sites of parking and room availability.

One such piece of information is telling hockey tournament spectators just how long it takes to park and get into their seats in the Civic Center. Forty minutes is the time to allot from parking in the area of the Civic Center to the time of hockey action if you want to see it right from the beginning.

The 46th annual state Class AA and Class A wrestling tournament is first on tap, with championships in both team and individual competition March 3-5. Next comes the 39th annual state hockey tournament March 10-12 when the Civic Center will hold more than 100,000 spectators, as the eight team, six-session, 11-game tournament once again is a sell-out for the championship series. Oldest of the March winter events, the 71st annual state Class AA and Class A basketball tournament's semifinal and championship games will be held March 24-26.

Daily hockey schedule will start at 12:05 p.m. instead of 12:35, and the semifinals will be one on Friday afternoon and one Friday evening instead of both on Friday evening.

Saint Paul will be ready for the excitement of all the games, for the huge crowds and the frenzy and "March Madness" when high school championships call Saint Paul "home."

For additional information about the tournaments, housing, parking and Saint Paul attractions, contact the Saint Paul Convention, Exhibition and Tourism Commission, Landmark Center, B-100, Saint Paul, MN 55102 (612) 292-4360.

Ninety-three per cent of all children injured enroute to or from school were struck at locations where no type of special school crossing protection such as safety patrols, adult guards or police officers were in use.

Wildlife Group Publishes New Fish Manual

World's most authoritative guide to the art of fish culture — designed to propel the ancient craft of fish rearing into the 21st Century — has just been published by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, with assistance from the American Fisheries Society.

"Fish Hatchery Management," a 517-page introduction to the rearing, care, health and transportation of hatchery-produced fish, is the most definitive reference manual ever produced for practicing fish culturists in natural resource agencies and private industry.

"This volume takes us beyond 'seat of the pants' fish culture, beyond an activity that has been part science, part art," says editor-in-chief Robert G. Piper, director of the Service's Fish Cultural Development Center in Bozeman, Montana. "It provides a practical way for the most efficient use of water and fish-rearing facilities, and for more intensive use of both. In an age when we need to get all we can for our dollar, intensive use is imperative."

"Fish Hatchery Management" is a functional guide designed to provide an overview of all aspects of fish culture, without stressing particular areas of specialized research. "Its usefulness will be in its practicality," says Piper. "We decided a guide to the efficient management of hatcheries would be most helpful to practicing culturists. Though research biologists and bioengineers won't find an in-depth treatment of their fields, they will gain insight into the problems of fish culture that touch on their disciplines."

"We've tried to stress concepts that will be useful to fish culture for many years," says Piper. "Up to now, the most recent Service effort in producing material on fish hatchery management was compiled in 1953 and has not been available for a long time. And recent advances meant that developments had passed it by long ago."

Fish Hatchery Management now assembles that vast body of existing information into one source, and also presents a number of the Fish and Wildlife Service's unpublished papers and material on fish culture that was previously unavailable to professionals.

"Fish Hatchery Management" is available for $14 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Eagle Program Is Aided By Private Grant

Many more bald eagle chicks will be finding homes in the wild soon as a result of a major grant to the government bald eagle breeding program by the DuPont Company.

The financial commitment to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will enable the Interior Department agency to more than double the number of eaglets produced in captivity at its Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Laurel, Maryland. The eagles are released in states where bald eagle numbers are low.

In a January 20 ceremony at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, Fish and Wildlife Service director Robert Jantzen said that Du Pont's support would be "a lasting contribution toward the restoration of the bald eagle. I will make it possible for more of these majestic birds to exist, and we hope, to breed once again in places where their numbers had dwindled almost to the brink of extinction."

"When Du Pont first approached us in search of an appropriate endangered species project to support, I was very impressed by its desire to make a serious corporate commitment to wildlife conservation," Jantzen added. "It is unusual for the Fish and Wildlife Service to receive this type of support from a private company for a project that has no direct business benefit to the company's activities. I am greatly encouraged by this, and I hope that other companies will follow Du Pont's lead in helping federal and state wildlife agencies to conserve our nation's wildlife heritage."

Robert J. Richardson, executive vice president of Du Pont, said that the company's efforts on behalf of the bald eagle would extend beyond the financial support for the captive breeding program.

"We regard this as more than a grant," Richardson said. "It is a corporate commitment on behalf of wildlife conservation. We will be carrying out a variety of public information activities on behalf of eagles, and through our family companies — Remington Arms, Conoco and Consolidation Coal — we will also be involving employees in eagle conservation."

Researchers in the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center began breeding eagles in the mid-1970's and presently have eight pairs — the largest captive bald eagle breeding colony in the world. Since 1977, the Center has supplied 44 healthy young eagles to replenish eagle populations in nine states — New York, Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maine, Georgia, Tennessee and Ohio.

The eagles are returned to the wild through one of two techniques. In the "fostering" method, three-week-old eaglets are placed in nests built by wild eagles that laid no eggs or whose eggs failed to hatch. The Eaglets are quickly accepted and cared for by their unsuspecting foster parents. In "hacking," slightly older chicks are placed in lofty towers constructed in a wild area and are fed by attendants (who remain out of sight) until the birds learn to fly and hunt for themselves.

Although a record 13 eaglets were produced in 1982, the Patuxent program still could not provide as many eaglets for release as were requested by state wildlife agencies. The Du Pont grant will be used to restore a number of large eagle enclosures and to add personnel to care for eagles. As a result, the captive breeding colony will be enlarged to include 12 pairs of breeding birds. Through husbandry techniques developed by Patuxent researchers to increase the rate of reproduction, such a breeding colony could potentially supply as many as 36 eaglets to the wild each year.

Patuxent is the largest wildlife research center in the world and is well known for pioneering research on the effects of contaminants on wildlife, studies of bird populations and habitat and field research on endangered species such as the California condor, as well as for captive breeding of whooping cranes, Andean condors, bald eagles and other endangered species.

DNR NEWS

Fish Shelter Deadline

Although the deadline for removal of ice fishing shelters from Minnesota lakes and river is Feb. 28, the Department of Natural Resources suggests that owners start making plans and preparations now.

Some lakes have a heavy snow cover and many had thick slush on the ice surface earlier this winter which could make removal a problem in some areas.

Shelter owners can make removal easier if they will raise the shelter up on wooden blocks above the surface of the ice.

After Feb. 28, shelters may only be placed on the ice and used between the hours of 7 a.m. and midnight.

Fur Charges

A Grand Marais trapper has been fined a total of $1,000 and denied hunting, fishing and trapping privileges for two years following his convictions on two charges of illegal possession of furs.

Dallas Harley Smith was arrested by state conservation officers after a search of his residence on Dec. 21 uncovered the pelts of three fisher and 21 pine marten.

Pine marten are completely protected in Minnesota and the limit on fisher is one per season. Smith was charged with illegal possession of pine marten and illegal possession of fisher — both gross misdemeanors.

Smith pled guilty in court on Jan. 19 and was sentenced by Judge Walter Egeland of Two Harbors on Feb. 9. In addition to the fines, Smith was sentenced to two one year prison terms at the Northeast Correction Center at Duluth and had his license revoked.

Jail sentences were stayed on condition that Smith commit no violations for at least two years.

Bobcat Export Approved

Minnesota trappers and hunters who are still holding bobcat furs taken in the 1981-82 season may now legally export them, according to officials of the Department of Natural Resources.

DNR emphasized, however, that the approval applies only to bobcats from the 1981-82 season and that bobcats taken this season (1982-83) cannot be exported until final federal rules are published, probably in April.

"This development is significant for users of wildlife resources and for professional programs of wildlife management," said Roger Holmes, Acting Director of the DNR's Division of Fish and Wildlife. He explained that the export approval came after Congressional action, supported by sportsmen's and wildlife conservation organizations, amended the Endangered Species Act and effectively overruled the federal court injunction which had been brought by the Defenders of Wildlife.

Federal regulations require trappers and hunters who wish to export their own bobcat, lynx or otter to obtain a $25 export permit and to ship the furs through a designated port. No permit is required to sell to buyers in the U.S. or through licensed brokers who sell fur outside the U.S. on consignment.

Permit applications and instructions are available from the Federal Wildlife Permit Office, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Beaver Trapping

Minnesota's 1983 spring beaver trapping season will open March 1 and close April 30, according to officials of the Department of Natural Resources.

A season will be open statewide, with the exception of a "Mississippi River Zone" (bounded on the west by U.S. Highway 61, 16 and STH 26) from Hastings to the Iowa border; all state and national parks; and all national wildlife refuges except Agassiz and Tamarac (open by permit only).

Beaver may be taken in state wildlife management areas and refuges within the open zone of the state by permit only. All federal waterfowl production areas in the open area of the state are open to beaver trapping during the spring season.

Low pelt prices and reduced trapping pressure, combined with favorable water conditions, have allowed beaver populations to increase throughout most of Minnesota, according to Ed Boggess, furbearer specialist in the DNR's Section of Wildlife.

"Beaver damage and nuisance problems are increasing and we are encouraging interested trappers to work on local problem areas," said Boggess. "Despite lower pelt prices, helping a landowner or manager with beaver problems now may help to open up future trapping opportunities, as well as providing an enjoyable outdoor experience," he said.

Trappers are reminded that they need a valid 1983 trapping license beginning March 1. The special beaver trapping license has been dicontinued.

Trappers may not set traps above the waterline of a beaver house or within any house. Snowmobiles or all-terrain vehicles may be used for beaver trapping only in the north furbearer zone and north of U.S. Highway 10 from Detroit Lakes to Moorhead.

More details on spring beaver trapping regulations are available at county auditors or local DNR offices.

Cases brought by Minnesota Highway Patrol included the following: Dean Scott Selmanson, East Grand Forks, speeding 70 in a 55 mph zone, fined $40 with $10 stayed; George McClure Parker, Edina, speeding 65 in a 55 mph zone, fined $27.50; Robert Lee Walker, Edmond, OK., speeding 65 in a 55 mph zone, fined $27.50; and Terrence Allen Nelson, Red Lake Falls, motor vehicle operated with no current registration displayed, fined $11.

Minnesota department of natural resources brought a case against David R. Hesse, St. Hilaire, transporting an uncased firearm in a motor vehicle, fined $115.

Minnesota department of transportation brought a case against Patrick Cleon Seng, Grand Forks, ND., operating without required certificate or permit, fined $175.

Motor Vehicle Registration Drops In '82

Perhaps reflecting the sluggish economy, the number of motor vehicle registrations in Minnesota declined in 1982, marking the first time in more than a decade that there has been a decrease, according to Public Safety Commissioner Paul Tschida.

Total number of registrations was 3,659,400, down from 3,701,646 in 1981 or a 1.1 per cent decrease.

Passenger vehicle registrations increased to 2,157,922 from 2,017,865 but there are lower totals in other areas. For example, the number of gross weight trucks went down to 51,926 from 216,965. Jack Wildes, assistant director for motor vehicles in the division of driver and vehicle services, explained that a change in the law in 1982 placed many smaller trucks (those weighing one ton or less) in the passenger vehicle category. "They are still considered trucks but are assigned passenger vehicle plates," Wildes said.

Number of small trucks weighing one ton or less and licensed in the passenger vehicle category increased to 464,801 compared to 410,349 in 1981. Also the number of vehicles registered as farm trucks declined from 72,234 to 50,303 because many of those were moved to the passenger vehicle category.

Otherwise, there was a decrease in the number of motorcycle registrations from 166,151 to 159,345. Mopeds, which have increased dramatically the past several years, went from 13,955 to 14,725. Number of recreational vehicles with living quarters dropped to 78,664 from 80,544 the previous year, mainly because of newly established criteria defining recreational vehicle.

Driver and vehicle services provides the public with three major programs: Registration of motor vehicles (licensing and titling) for identification and revenue-collecting purposes; the manufacture of license plates and validation stickers to serve as proof of registration and tax payments; and regulation of motor vehicle dealerships.

Registration totals reflect the period from January 1, to December 31, 1982. Totals include all vehicles registered during the calendar year.

THEN : NOW

When it comes to cups, people have had some interesting ideas over the years.

THEN: In ancient times, some people believed that the right kind of cup could save your life. Drinking wine from cups made of semi-precious stones, they thought, could make them invisible to their enemies.

NOW: Today, we can see through such beliefs, but many people are getting more advantage from cups than they may realize. People who patronize fast food places, for instance, have found that when they get their cold drinks served in foam cups, their drink stays colder longer, report the experts at the Society of the Plastics Industry. That means they have more to drink since the ice melts more slowly and they can enjoy the refreshing drink longer.

Stephen Bank Being Sold To Corporation

Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis, acting under authority delegated by the board of governors of the Federal Reserve system, has announced its approval of the application by Stephen Bancshares, Inc., Stephen, to become a bank holding company through the acquisition of the Farmers state bank of Stephen.

Applicant is a nonoperating corporation organized for the purpose of becoming a bank holding company through the acquisition of the bank ($19.8 million in deposits). In connection with the application, the Reserve Bank has taken into consideration the competitive effects of the proposed transaction, the financial and managerial resources and future prospects of the company and the bank concerned, and the convenience and needs of the community to be served.

Farmers Will Cut Wheat And Corn Acreages

First and only reading of Minnesota farmers' plainting intentions for 1983 indicates they will cut acreages of corn, durum and spring wheat, oats, dry edible beans and sunflowers, but will increase plantings of barley, flax, sugerbeets and all hay, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

The acreages that farmers actually plant could change from those published in the report due to several factors, including participation in new farm programs, commodity prices, weather conditions during planting, and the effects of the report itself on farmers' plans.

As of February 1, growers intended to cut corn acreage by 22 per cent from last year to 5.70 million acres. Soybean plantings are expected to remain the same as 1982 at 4.95 million acres. Prospective wheat acreage is estimated at 2.55 million acres, down 21 per cent from last year. By types, spring wheat will be 2.40 million, down 22 per cent, durum is pegged at 50,000 acres, down 37 per cent and winter wheat at 100,000 acres, up 11 per cent from last year.

Oats plantings are forecast at 1.70 million acres, down six per cent from 1982. Barley producers expect to plant 950,000 acres, up six per cent. Flax acreage may increase 17 per cent to 140,000 acres.

February intentions point to a 13 per cent decline in all sunflower plantings to 470,000 acres. Non-oil varieties may be down 49 per cent while oil varieties may fall only 10 per cent. Sugarbeets are forecast at 257,000 acres, up one per cent. Dry edible beans may drop 31 per cent to 66,000 acres.

The state's farmers expect to cut 3.0 million acres of hay, up five per cent from 1982.

Buckling Up Is Topic Of Safety Survey

Minnesota department of public safety survey of the awareness and attitudes on safety belts reveals that people would generally buckle up if some special incentive were offered. Surveys were conducted at driver exam stations around the state with 417 men and women responding.

One of the best safety belt incentives is a simple one — the driver of the vehicle requiring that everyone buckle up before the vehicle starts. Nearly all of those surveyed (95 per cent) agreed they would wear a safety belt if asked to do so by the driver.

Being paid a monetary sum for wearing safety belts would be enough of an incentive to cause 66 per cent of the group surveyed to buckle up.

Another strong economic incentive would be if safety belt use were a job requirement. Of the group surveyed, 90 per cent agreed they would buckle up. A number of prominent Minnesota businesses have aggressive safety belt programs for employees because motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of on the job injuries.

If it would mean a savings on auto insurance, 81 per cent said they would wear safety belts all of the time. However, only half of the survey group thought a law requiring everyone to wear safety belts would be a good idea.

USDA Report Is Released For Public Review

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) has released its final report on a new national program for soil and water conservation and copies are available for public review.

National conservation program is the result of four years of study by USDA and four stages of public input. About 83,000 people, including 2,608 Minnesotans, responded during the last public comment period November 1981 — January 1982.

New program was mandated by the soil and water resources conservation act of 1977 (RCA). The act directed the secretary of agriculture to analyze the nation's soil and water resources and to develop, with public input, a national program to better meet the nation's soil and water resource needs.

National program proposed by USDA and transmitted by President Reagen to congress on December 21 calls for redirecting federal soil and water conservation efforts. It also calls for expanded state and local conservation roles. In the near future, congressional leaders will be holding public hearings on the program in Washington, D.C. and in other locations to be announced.

USDA says the new program is needed because, in spite of years of conservation assistance at several government levels, one-third of the nation's cropland is still eroding at rates that reduce its long-term productivity. Some of the problem may be tied to increased agricultural surpluses and expanded rowcrop acreage, USDA officials say. Grazing land, agricultural water use and upstream flooding are some of the other priority problems needing new direction according to USDA.

In transmitting the report to congress, President Ronald Reagen said, ". . . after nearly half a century of Federal conservation assistance programs, a substantial number of farmers have not applied needed conservation measures. Too much soil continues to erode at rates that threaten productivity and impair water quality. Too much water is not efficiently managed, resulting in a threat of water shortages. Too much land is subject to excessive flood damages."

One important aspect of federal conservation redirection is that of targeting, which provides increased assistance to critical problem areas. By 1987, target assistance will account for about 25 per cent of the technical and financial assistance budgets of two USDA agencies — soil conservation service (SCS) and agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS). However, a base-level assistance program will be maintained by the agencies to continue providing technical assistance, cost sharing and other services to all landowners.

According to Donald G. Ferren, SCS state conservationist in St. Paul, a target area has already been set up in southeast Minnesota that includes the counties of Goodhue, Wabasha, Olmsted, Winona, Fillmore and Houston. For the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1982, the target area received $275,000 for additional SCS assistance and $620,000 of additional ASCS cost sharing money.

"The target area funds received by both agencies are mostly "new" funds; the money isn't taken away from our other programs," Ferren said. "We hope that the bulk of the target money in future years will continue to be new money," he said.

Ferren said that an application has been submitted to establish a target area in southeast Minnesota and another application is being prepared to establish a target area in northwest Minnesota. "These are two other areas of the state we believe have the most serious erosion problems and require priority attention," he said.

Some other aspects of the new national conservation include increasing emphasis on conservation tillage and other cost-effective erosion control measures; eliminating conflicts among USDA programs; awarding grants to local soil and water conservation districts through state conservation agencies; and requiring some farmers home administration borrowers to have conservation plans to control erosion on land for which the loan is to be used.

USDA officials say the national program will slow the deterioration of soil and water resources, but they concede that present budget restraints will not allow the resource degradation trend to be reversed. Simply increasing federal contributions to meet every state and local need would result in unacceptably high costs to American taxpayers, they say.

Ferren said that people may see the full report at any soil conservation service or agricultural stabilization and conservation service office in Minnesota. Copies are also available for public review at the extension service and farmers home administration state offices in St. Paul, he said. Ferren also said that copies of the report are being sent to many other resource agencies and everyone who responded during the last public comment period will receive a brochure summarizing the report.

TIPS ON TRIPS

SHARPSHOOTING AND HUNTING:
Facts From Revenue Canada Customs and Excise

If you're an American sharpshooter and/or hunter, you'll enjoy your sport in Canada...!

But when you pack for your trip to this beautiful country, leave your handguns behind—otherwise they will be detained once you're on Canadian soil.

Sporting rifles and shotguns for hunting purposes pose little problem, as long as they meet minimum length standard. Hunters may bring in 200 shells duty-free. Five-shot pump or semi-automatic shotguns used for hunting must be "plugged" so that there can be no more than one shell in the breech and two in the chamber.

Your shotguns and rifles (both standard and auto-loading) may be allowed free temporary entry.

A Temporary Admission permit and a deposit may, on occasion, be required for more valuable weapons to guarantee their exportation. The deposit is, of course, refunded when the weapons are exported at the conclusion of your visit.

Each Canadian province or territory makes its own regulations for hunting game and non-migratory birds and fishing. In the interest of conservation, seasons and bag limits are strictly controlled. Closed seasons for certain game birds are sometimes called on short notice, so it is best to check with provincial or territorial authorities before setting out. Also in Canada, there are clearly-marked protected areas where no hunting is allowed such as game sanctuaries, and some private lands which have been posted to prohibit hunting.

For certain competitive shooting events, rifles, shotguns, even handguns pose no problem. Competitors in marksmanship events registered with the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, the Shooting Federation of Canada, or any of the clubs and associations affiliated with them, may bring in 1,000 shells duty-free. Five-shot pump or semi-automatic shotguns used for skeet or trap events need not be "plugged".

If you are competing in a pistol or revolver event sponsored by those organizations, you will need a permit to transport restricted weapons. These may be arranged for through the host organization by contacting in advance, the Registrar of Firearms (usually the police station) in the city nearest the site of the event.

Welcome to Canada...and good luck!

Dist. Legion Band Starts 55th Season

Ninth District American Legion band, the only district legion band left in the United States, is looking forward to another season. This band started practicing in 1928 and was organized at the East Grand Forks district convention in 1929 where the members wore "bib" overalls as their first uniform.

By 1930 it was a first class Legion musical organization when it appeared at the state convention in Crookston. Most of the credit for this organization is given to its first director, the late bandmaster Ted W. Thorson, who served as its director for the first 40 years of its existence. The continued success of this band is due to the dedication of the individual band members and present director Bill Pond.

Since its beginning the band has appeared in all district and state conventions. It has also attended national conventions in St. Louis, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Miami Beach, New Orleans, Honolulu, Minneapolis and Boston. When attending the national convention, the band produces the marching beat for the colors carried by the Minnesota delegation. At the 1973 national in Honolulu and in Boston in 1980, the band stole the show in the convention parades. At the Minnesota party in Boston, members of the band made up three different dance band combinations which furnished music for the Legion's successful banquet and dance.

Band members represent over 20 communities in the 9th district and cover some 2,200 miles when attending practice. Membership of the band has always been over 70 per cent registered Legion members. For state and national competition, only 25 per cent of the membership in the various marching units need to be registered legionnaires. Fourteen of its members are from East Grand Forks. Moorhead ranks second in its band support and membership.

Main project this year is to maintain the high musical standards set up over the year. However, the big project, being led by the 9th District commander Bill Barbnecht and co-chairmen Don Bjornstad and Gene Sheik, is to raise funds on a statewide basis so that the band can attend the Seattle national convention this coming August. This organization has been considered the Minnesota state Legion band for many years.

If any further information is needed, contact the band business manager and recruiter, Herchel H. Lysaker, at 129 Mill, Crookston, MN 56716.

The Thinker ... and Believer

The sculptor was right. Our ability to think — our determination to think — this is the key to human progress.

But the same God who endowed man with the ability to think also gave him the sense of spiritual destiny. To be thinkers is only a beginning in the quest for our purpose, our mission, the meaning of our existence.

The message of Christianity has always been directed toward men and women and youth who have the God-given zest for thinking. Week after week in our churches the thinker is challenged to become a believer.

The most exciting and promising of man's endowments is not his capacity for thought . . . rather his yearning for faith. And faith is never content with human progress. Faith is determined to commit our intelligence to the achievement of Divine Progress.

Clothing Care ALERT!

BE FAIR TO YOUR FURS

The crisp snowfalls of winter call for warming furs. What better protects us from the discomforts of cold and wet that snowfalls bring?

But how should we protect our furs so they last the full lifetime we expect of them?

Fur care is a specialty that you and your cleaner can become partners in.

Your part involves good storage habits, advises the International Fabricare Institute (IFI), the world-wide association of drycleaners and launderers, the caretakers of tender skins. Paying constant attention to your fur garment's condition will add usable years to your furs.

Be on the lookout for rips, tears, shedding and brittleness in the skins. Look for broken seams and wear spots in the lining. Be especially careful of the fragile furs — sable, chinchilla, mink, Persian lamb, caracul and other curled furs.

Hang your furs at all times on hangers shaped to conform to the neck and shoulder line of your coat. Never enclose them in plastic. Furs, like all natural materials, need a storage environment that allows breathing space. Don't jam a fur into a crowded, heated closet.

Wetted furs must dry naturally, in an open space, away from the direct heat of a stove, radiator or heat register. Shake furs gently and let them dry slowly at room temperature.

Shake out, rather than comb or brush, your furs. Shaking will spread out the fur fibers and will give you some protection against moths.

Drycleaners who accept furs will do their best to preserve your fur. IFI procedures include an inspection for rips and wear damage and minor repairs before the cleaning process begins.

The cleaner will carefully comb matted areas and will remove or cover buttons to protect them.

A special fur-cleaning compound will absorb the collected dust and dirt and leave the cleaned fur with a powder-puff sheen.

After the soil is removed from your fur, the cleaner will polish and iron your pelt to renew the original finish and smooth out all tufting and matting.

A final glazing softens and smoothes out the finish.

The last step in cleaning a fur is hand-ironing the lining.

When the fur-wearing season ends, professional storage can give your furs added life. At-home storage may subject your furs to damaging temperatures that are too hot and atmospheres that are too dry or too damp. Moths may take their toll or thieves may take your furs.

Professional storage will guarantee the correct humidity, temperature, ventilation and fumigation — all important elements that contribute to the longevity of your fur.

Good care will give you beautiful skins — lasting skins that can be restyled as fashion dictates; healthy skins that will keep you cozy through the cold.

Valentine Star Brightens Up Southern Sky

Like a belated valentine, the red super giant star Antares is bright in the southern sky in the early mornings of late February.

Although this red star is 500 light-years from Earth, it appears bright to us because it is 50,000 times more luminous than the sun. A famous star since people first viewed the heavens, it is one of the 20 brightest stars in the sky. Its name is Greek for "a rival of Mars," the only planet that appears reddish to our eyes. Look for Antares just below the planet Jupiter in the southern sky.

But the reddish glow of Mars — caused by sunlight reflecting from its many rusty rocks — is faint and prosaic compared to the hot red gaseous glow of Antares. It is a massive star — 20 times the mass of the sun — on the way to its death.

In this death, Antares may well follow the scenario astronomers have pieced together for stars that are about four to 50 times the mass of the sun. Red supergiant stage, in which Antares shines now, is the first step in that scenario. In it, the star swells and pulsates, like a vast beating heart. If Antares were in the sun's position, its hot gaseous edge would have completely engulfed the orbits of Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars by now. And if Antares had had any planets, they surely would have been destroyed by the star's pulsing.

Next stage — supernova explosion — may or may not hold true for Antares, according to Terry Jones, astronomer at the University of Minnesota. It will occur — within 100,000 years — if the star's inner core collapses quickly enough to heat the star material to the explosion point. This would blow the entire shell of the star outward at a speed of a few thousand miles per second, qualifying Antares for supernova status.

Star in this phase can blaze as brightly as an entire galaxy — about 10 billion times brighter than our sun — for several days or months, as most of its mass explodes into space. If Antares becomes a supernova, future inhabitants of Earth will surely notice.

Whether the star collapses this quickly or more slowly, Antares will probably end its life as either a neutron star or a black hole. As its nuclear fuel runs out and the outward pressure of nuclear fission can no longer prevent it from collapsing under its own weight, it will become extremely condensed.

In this stage, the star shrinks to about the size of a big city but still contains about as much mass as the sun. Result is incredible density and gravity about a trillion times stronger than Earth's.

Exact dimensions of this gravity determine whether the star becomes a neutron star or an even denser black hole with gravity so powerful that even the star's light cannot escape. Neutron stars signal their presence with brief and strange pulses as they rotate — up to about 700 pulses per second — and are known to astronomers as pulsars or X-ray bursters. They gradually slow down to become "dead" neutron stars. Black holes remain black holes forever, sweeping up gas clouds and perhaps even stars, like galactic garbage collectors.

Star death like that of Antares is significant for the galaxy as a whole. Without the elements forged in the inner turmoil of red giants, red supergiants and supernovas, life as we know it could not exist. Through the violent synthesis of atoms, such stars create the basic elements of life: carbon, nitrogen and oxygen. As Francis Bacon, perhaps the Western world's first modern natural scientist, said: "There is no excellent beauty that hath not some strangeness in the proportion."

Superinsulation New Trend In Housing Design

Newest trend in housing design may make home ownership more of a reality to many Minnesotans. Superinsulation design, in most cases, can actually lower total monthly housing costs when considering savings on annual heating bills over the life of the mortgage.

Superinsulation is a building technique that features extra amounts of insulation inwalls and ceilings, an air-vapor barrier to seal out moisture and chilly drafts, and a heat exchanger to circulate fresh air throughout the house. Besides the incomparable comfort that superinsulation offers, flexibility in design is a key factor.

"In the past some homeowners had to trade off energy efficiency for more hi-tech design. With superinsulation, you need not sacrifice traditional design, or even adapt a design to suit your particular space needs, as evidenced in the superinsulated house plans now available to Minnesotans," stated Mike Murphy, assistant commissioner of the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development.

Energy division is currently involved in an ambitious superinsulation building demonstration project including 25 new and existing homes. New homes, many of which used the house plans are being built by area vocational technical schools and scheduled to be finished this spring. Priced at $25 each, the superinsulated house plans contain complete blueprint details and specifications from which a builder or contractor can begin work. Plans are available in traditional ranch, rambler, split level and two-story designs.

"In addition to new homes, many people are finding it cost effective, and actually just plain sensible, to superinsulate when remodeling," continued Murphy. "All the plans meet code and are quite a deal. . . most house plans cost $100 or more!"

Energy division urges all Minnesotans with any housing plans at all to review the superinsulation house plans with their builder or contractor. Ordering information is included in the enclosed brochure. Or, inquiries may be made by the Minnesota energy information center hotline at 296-5175 or toll-free 1-800-652-9747 outside the Twin Cities metro area.

Is Your Child Hyperactive?

A bright child with difficulty in school may be hyperactive—and can be helped.

A bright child with a short attention span, lack of self-control, perceptual difficulties, regular frustration and learning problems, may be hyperactive. The child's doctor should be consulted.

Hyperactivity is a learning disability, ranging from mild to severe, affecting an estimated five percent of all grade-school-age children in the United States.

The causes are not yet fully understood, but may include genetic, biological, physiological, social and environmental factors.

Its symptoms sometimes lead parents and teachers to consider a child "bad" or "uncontrollable." That can lead to inadequate learning opportunities. In addition, the hyperactive child suffers considerable emotional pain while struggling to learn in an environment which hinders rather than helps.

A hyperactive child can sometimes be helped with medicine or with a diet change. A restructured educational environment—shorter lessons, greater understanding and reinforcement may help, too.

Of the three to four million children in the U.S. who may be suffering with hyperactivity, under ten percent have been identified and are being medically treated or specially educated.

To help all hyperactive children, their parents and teachers, the Center for Hyperactive Child Information was created. It is a clearinghouse for research and provides a free referral service for parents looking for help from special schools and other organizations. It also maintains an ongoing nationwide campaign to tell parents and teachers about hyperactive children and the help they need. It is supported by voluntary contributions and all its services are provided free of charge.

People interested in a free booklet "Helping the Hyperactive Child", or people concerned enough about America's children to want to make a tax-deductible contribution, can write to the Center for Hyperactive Child Information, Inc., P.O. Box 406, Murray Hill Station, New York, N.Y. 10156.

Ballad of Buckwheat Jones

One of our readers from the Gatzke area sent this poem found in a Jan. 1, 1928 issue of a magazine called "Farmstead, Stock and Home" and noted that ". . . if more of us had vowed a vow to pay our way, as the poem suggests, there would have been less crying over spilled red ink now."

"The Ballad of Buckwheat Jones" was written by J. Edward Tuft:

My wife and I are crowding up to quite a noble age
She has become a sort of seer and I a sort of sage
As New Yeay's day confronts us now we both review the past,
Take inventory of our lives, check on them, first and last!
By Jove we feel we've earned our keeps, we feel we've paid our way,
We see no ink in crying red spread out along the way!
Back in the days when wife could sing and both of us could dance,
When she was stepping out in curls and I wore shortened pants,
We vowed a vow to pay our way regardless of the road,
And I feel certain we have lived up to our creed and code!
The year which now is coming in, before it has to go,
Will no doubt place upon each head, another wreath of snow;
The year which now is Hale and young and full of force and pep.
Before it goes may take a notch out of the springing step;
This worthy year one-nine-two-eight, before its course is run,
Before it puts to bed its moon and lays away its sun,
May add a wrinkle to the group that camp beneath the eye,
May draw a line across the brow, We feel it wife and I
But neither one of us will say we want the year to whoa,
And keep the wheels from turning round, we will not say "go slow"!
For where's the good in standing still, and why shout "stop"! and "Halt,"
For anybody standing still is never worth his salt!
No, every hair that turns to white we'll reckon as a sign,
That Father Time is keeping books on wife's good deeds and mine!
Each wrinkle that is left to camp upon our cheeks and chins,
We will reckon as book entries made upon our mortal skins,
We'll reckon them as Father Time's own way of keeping track,
Of sheaves that we have tried to place in shock or in the stack;
We'll reckon these as items placed in nature's ledger book,
In that great volume of our lives in which the Angels look.

Wouldn't Move The Mail

Following editorial is from the Tacoma (WA) News Tribune and was submitted to the Times by an area postal worker who agrees with the content:

Many people like to sing the blues about the mail service, so it isn't surprising that Ralph Nader's Center for the Study of Responsive Law has joined the chorus. In a 512-page report, The Postal Precipice, Nader says the Postal Service is riding toward disaster on the backs of underserved, individual letter-writers. He says Congress should get back into managing the post office.

We disagree. Nader does make good points about the decline in some services, such as door-to-door delivery. But he seems to forget that the Postal Service was reorganized and made independent in 1970 to make it more efficient — an arrangement which seems to be working. It is no longer an expensive political pawn of Congress.

The Postal Service has its problems, but it also has its successes, due largely to management changes of the past decade. Last year, as in 1979, it made a profit. And even though the 20-cent, first-class postal rate seems high in comparison to rates of a decade ago, it nevertheless is lower than in most industrialized nations. It costs Germans, for example, 33 cents to send a first-class letter.

Nader complains that the Postal Service caters to corporate mailers. Well, there's a good reason for that. Large mailers do a lot of the post office's work, through pre-sorting.

U.S. postal workers have become the world's most efficient. The average employee handles about 161,000 pieces of mail per year, 44 per cent more than his closest competitor, the Japanese postal worker.

Door-to-door delivery is nice, but expensive. It is also not the only way to get mail to consumers. Post office boxes and grouped mail boxes have been common in rural communities. Why shouldn't they be used in cities when practical?

The Postal Service is not trying to self-destruct, as Nader claims. It is, rather, trying to do a more efficient job, and has been somewhat successful.

If Congress interferes again, the Postal Service is likely to become once more the largest and least-efficient federal fiefdom.

We don't see how that would move the mail.

Recovery Signs

Following editorial is from the Sacramento (CA) Union:

President Reagan declared last fall that "the nation is recovery-bound and the world knows it." This month has brought the best evidence yet of the country's emergence from the long dark night of one of its worst recessions.

The Labor Department reported Feb. 4 that unemployment in January declined from 10.8 per cent to 10.2 per cent, or 10.4 per cent not counting the military personnel who were included in the jobless figures for the first time.

The traditionally cautious Congressional Budget Office forecast in its annual economic report that the economy will grow 4 per cent in 1983 and 4.7 per cent in 1984 — exceeding the Reagan administration predictions.

These developments follow an upturn in the goverment's Index of Leading Indicators, a compilation of measures designed to show future economic trends. It jumped 1.5 per cent in December, the biggest rise in two years.

This prompted the president of the American Business Conference to observe: "The long awaited recovery is no longer illusory." Combined with other positive statistics, he said, it "implies that December marked the turning point for the economy."

The Commerce Department the other day said that construction spending rose 1.4 per cent in December and orders to American factories for new manufactured goods rose 4.8 per cent, providing grist for the recovery of the hard-hit industrial sector.

Assembly plants are being reopened by General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler, and GM is recalling 21,000 furloughed workers as auto sales perk up — along with retail sales and activity in the housing industry, which has led the way out of past recessions.

The Commerce Department anticipates "vigorous growth" in residential housing "as lower mortgage interest rates are reflected in further increases in housing starts." Builders are expected to start about 1.5 million housing units in 1983.

Even Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Wolcker, usually tight with optimism, ventured the other day that "progress on inflation and productivity gains point to the possibility of a really extended recovery."

Volcker made his comments as the Reagan administration sent Congress its mid-term economic report forecasting sustained economic growth over the next six years — "assuming we do not see a repeat of the mistakes of the past."

Martin Feldstein, chairman of Council of Economic Advisers, who presented the report to legislators, warned against mistakes such as loosely pumping money into the economy through the federal budget or the Federal Reserve.

He also warned that delaying this year's installment of the president's tax cut would tell consumers to cut their spending just when it's needed for recovery, and that any major jobs program would add to budget deficits while having tardy results.

Estimated Federal deficits of $200 billion and $189 billion this fiscal year and next darken the economic outlook, along with unemployment, which is expected to remain in double-digit, and strains on the international financial system.

But the positive signs give Americans reason to move forward in 1983 with confidence. If enough businesses and consumers act on it in their economic decisions, we can do far more than moaning about the remaining problems to revive industry and put people back to work.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"What's your name, son," the new customer asked of the paper boy.

"Lyndon Johnson," the lad replied.

"Well, that's a pretty well-known name, isn't it," the customer remarked.

"It should be!" the kid retorted. "I've been delivering papers on this block for darn near six months now!"

Time spent refurbishing your wooden pier can extend its life. After stripping the old finish, coat the pier with a waterproof protective sealant and then repaint. Do the same on backyard decks, which are exposed to bright sun and humid summer weather.

Waterproof boat pier

Be a dock doctor

Whether you own a 60-foot yacht or a 6-foot dinghy, your boat pier should be in tip-top shape. If care isn't taken, the paint will blister and peel, leaving the bare wood exposed to damaging elements. Before you rush to build a new pier, try these tricks to refurbish the one you have.

Remove as much of the old paint as possible. Sand uneven edges smooth, especially if you can't remove some stubborn paint.

After wiping clean, coat the pier with a water-repellent sealant, such as Geocel Water Shield. Don't forget to coat the underside, too. That wood is especially susceptible to water damage and decay. Water Shield penetrates into the pores and forms a waterproofing membrane that prevents moisture penetration.

For best results, apply two coats of the sealer. Let dry for 48 hours, then apply a good latex or oil-based exterior paint or stain. Nonporous epoxy paints are not recommended for this job. Using a liquid sealer as an undercoating will also extend the life of the paint. Some sealers can even be poured right into the paint to cut down finish time. Read directions on the can.

Though refurbishing your pier will take a couple of days, it's the least you can do for full boating enjoyment. You won't have to worry about further deterioration this summer, and your pier will store well in the fall.

REPORT

From The Minnesota House of Representatives
by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

The governor began by saying his budget message is simple — "making government work again."

But when he proceeded to unfold his plan for Minnesota, I realized that it is far wider in scope and direction than any since the early 1970s — and probably just as controversial in some respects as any recent budget proposal.

But I like his priorities and goals: helping those in need while restraining the costs of government; maintaining high quality education; stabilizing the budget process; putting Minnesotans back to work and improving our economic health.

Again, I believe the governor's direction and priorities are admirable and right for the state. I commend him for offering the legislature some very innovative ideas about how we should deliver services to the people of Minnesota and how we can pay for those services. What I am not so sure about are some of his specific proposals to balance the budget — proposals which are certain to come up for hard scrutiny in the next few months.

One of the more commendable features of the budget is that it would restrain state spending — holding it to less than 10 per cent for the biennium — while maintaining a commitment to education, aiding those in need, and restoring our infrastructure, particularly the decaying highway system.

He proposes to do all of this without significant tax increases, although he does ask that the six per cent sales tax and 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes be continued. And he wants to increase the gas tax by five cents per gallon to improve highways and bridges. In addition, he seeks simplification of the state income tax by conforming to federal deductions.

A goal we all share with governor Perpich is to restore the state's triple-A credit rating and to reduce short term borrowing. He makes several proposals to move us in the direction of "pay as you go", including changing the timing of some state aid payments and the collection of property taxes quarterly, which I oppose, rather than two times a year.

The budget also provides for a reserve fund to provide some assurance we can avoid further budget crises during the next two years. And the government promises that his budget will forestall the need for additional shifts of any state financial obligations into future bienniums.

Now I would like to capsulize some of his other proposals for your consideration:

Education

—Per pupil unit foundation aid will increase from $1,313 to $1,475 in 1983-84 and stay the same in 1984-85.

—Students in all the states' higher education systems would pay higher tuitions, with the greatest increases at state universities.

—Grants and loans would be increased to help offset higher tuition for those in need.

—AVTI tuitions would go up, requiring students to pay 25 per cent of their education costs.

—Governing boards of all higher education systems would be given the authority to close schools as their budgets tighten because of declining enrollments.

Unemployment

—The governor wants a private and public partnership to put Minnesotans back to work. The state would pay companies $191 per month (an amount equal to the regular General Assistance grant) for each person hired, with the company making up the difference in salary.

Small Business

—Establishment of an enterprise fund to provide loans and lower interest for small businesses.

—Lower property taxes on the first $50,000 of value of commercial property.

State Aids

—Counties and towns would no longer receive state aids; cities would.

—Levy limits would be removed on counties and towns and retained for cities — to be automatically adjusted for inflation each year.

Property Taxes

—Property taxes would increase on some homes. The governor wants to reduce homestead and rent credit and increase funds for the circuit breaker property tax refund program which is related to income. The homeowner would be responsible for paying the first $100 of the tax bill and the state would pay 50 per cent (instead of the current 58 per cent) of the remainder, up to a maximum of $650.

State Hospitals

State hospitals would be put on a competitive basis to cut costs, and nursing home rate increases capped at eight per cent.

Energy Program

Energy conservation and the use of alternative energy sources would be encouraged through a $30 million energy program.

Risk Sharing

It is well-recognized that state revenue forecasts have a built-in margin of error because they have to look at least two years into the future. To reduce the consequences of such errors, the governor proposes to create a $250 million reserve fund and to ask local governments to share in the risk of potential shortfalls. Automatic decreases in state aids would kick in when revenue falls short and a specified amount of the reserve has been used.

Many of the Perpich proposals raise questions about the direction of state government and its financial relationship with other units of government. The legislature will have to study them closely before final decisions are made.

I sense a lot of concern among my colleagues about these issues, particularly property tax relief, tuition increases, the removal of levy limits and shared risk.

I would appreciate your comments and suggestions. You can reach me at Room 263, State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or (612) 296-9918.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRov Stumpf
State Senator — District 1

Governor Perpich charted a new and clear direction for the state in his budget address to the legislature last week. While I am examining each of his proposals carefully, I believe the governor should be commended for designing a straightforward plan that restores stability to the state budget and encourages economic recovery.

The governor recommended major changes in Minnesota's tax relief programs, in particular, the homestead tax credit. That program has expanded greatly in scope since it was first enacted in 1967. A recent study by the legislative auditor predicted that the program would cost approximately $1 billion during the next biennium.

The governor recognized the need to scale down the program in light of our severe budgetary constraints and to target relief to those who need it most. He recommended eliminating credit for the first $100 of property tax and reducing the state's share of the remaining tax from 58 to 50 per cent, to a maximum of $650. He also called for expansion of the property tax circuit-breaker to provide relief to needy homeowners who are under 65 years old. I believe that all of those proposals deserve serious consideration.

The governor also proposed retaining the two taxes approved on a temporary basis last year — the six per cent sales tax and the 10 per cent income tax surcharge. I agree with the governor that those taxes are needed for at least the first year of the biennium in order to adequately fund state programs and services.

Another of the governor's proposals calls for school districts and local governments to share the risks of state revenue collections. If revenues fell significantly below forecasts, state aid would be reduced, and the school districts and local governments would be allowed to levy local taxes to make up the difference. This proposal is sure to spark controversy, but I am hopeful that a compromise can be reached which recognizes that local aid payments account for a significant share of the state budget.

The governor proposed three major initiatives to spur economic growth: a $75 million jobs program that would subsidize employers who hire out-of-work Minnesotans, a $30 million program of weatherization and alternative energy development, and a $30 million economic development program which would target aid to depressed areas.

While those programs are expensive, they represent an important effort to help Minnesota recover from the worst economic downturn in half a century. The governor has pledged to work hand-in-hand with businesses to ensure that tax dollars are repaid many times by new investment and jobs in our state.

In the area of education, the governor has recommended a major change in the way that we fund post-secondary institutions. He has proposed an "average cost funding" system that would take into account the level of instruction, the cost of programs and the number of students attending each institution. This system could be used to identify differences in the cost of running institutions and to address those discrepancies.

The governor also has proposed changing tuition levels to better reflect the full cost of a student's education. He has suggested that college and university students pay 35 per cent of the costs of their education, and that students at vocational-technical institutes pay 20 per cent in 1984 and 25 per cent in 1985. He also has recommended increasing student grants and aids and directing them toward those who need it most.

As chairman of the Senate education committee's subcommittee on post-secondary and higher education, I will be leading a review of all of those proposals. Our committee will also consider governor Perpich's recommendation for a statewide board to govern vocational technical institutes, and a bi-partisan commission to identify possible institutions for closing.

I look forward to hearing from you about the governor's budget proposals and other issues of concern. Please contact me at my office (306 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155) or telephone (612) 296-8660.

TIRE TIPS

Tire safety is no accident. Here from the experts at Uniroyal, a leading American tire maker, are some simple precautionary measures to avoid potential hazardous situations and unnecessary problems.

The foremost consideration when encountering a flat tire is safety.

- A severely under-inflated tire or flat tire can be spotted by a quick walk around the car before you get in.
- Familiarize yourself with the equipment needed to change to the spare tire.
- Review the proper procedure for changing a tire contained in the owner's manual.
- Keep a flashlight or a pair of gloves in the glove compartment.
- When checking for proper inflation with a tire gauge, be sure to include the spare tire.
- A number of cars are equipped with special, high pressure, temporary spare tires. Familiarize yourself with its operation.

If you should experience a flat tire while the car is in motion, continue to drive to a safe place. Don't worry about further damage to the tire or rim — the cost of both are more than repaid by your safety.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q.: My mother is being treated for cancer. She has become so depressed that we're all worried more about her state of mind than her illness right now. Are there any specific causes for the depression that we might not be aware of? What can we do for her?

A.: Many cancer patients are depressed at various times during their illness and treatment. Cancer specialists and psychiatrists have studied this problem. They believe depression is caused by a variety of circumstances in a cancer patient's life.

Some of these circumstances are physical problems brought about by the disease and treatment, such as pain or discomfort, difficulty sleeping, loss of appetite, loss of strength and energy. These physical problems often can be corrected or improved with medication or an adjustment in the treatment. As the patient feels better the depression will improve.

Other types of depression may have more emotional causes. The patient may feel that he or she has become a burden on the family because they're not able to contribute as much and are costing the family money and time. If the patient has lost a body part due to surgery to treat the disease, they may have a difficult time adjusting to their new body image. Most cancer patients feel they have lost contact with some of their friends as a result of the disease. All of these emotional complications can cause the patient to feel depressed.

Families who are aware of the special stresses cancer and its treatment place on patients can help. By keeping the normal channels of communication open and encouraging patients to be open and honest about their feelings, families can work to prevent the withdrawl and feelings of isolation that cause depression. Patients should be encouraged to tell their doctors about any physical problems they are having.

A booklet called "Taking Time" published by the National Cancer Institute offers other suggestions for ways families can help cancer patients cope with their disease and the alterations it causes in their lives. If you would like a free copy of "Taking Time", call the Cancer Information Service. The toll-free number in Minnesota is 1-800-582-5262. In North Dakota and South Dakota it's 1-800-328-5188.

Q.: My 59 year old son has cancer. He had surgery to remove the tumor. Then his doctors recommended chemotherapy. His doctors say he has responded very well and he is now in remission. Would you please explain what remission means. Can he be cured with chemotherapy?

A.: The term remission means that the doctors can find no trace of cancer in your son's body. The goal of all cancer treatment is remission of the disease.

Chemotherapy is a very effective treatment for many kinds of cancer. About 46,000 patients were curred last year with chemotherapy — either used alone or in combination with surgery or radiation therpay. The National Cancer Institute estimates that 45 per cent of all patients with cancer can be cured today.

Q.: Can you tell us something about multiple myeloma? One of our friends has just found out he has this kind of cancer. We had never heard of it.

A.: Multiple myeloma is a cancer of the blood-forming organ, the bone marrow. Plasma cells in the marrow grow abnormally. They group together forming tumors that may crowd the normal bone marrow, and eventually they may grow into the bone itself.

There are about 9,400 new cases of multiple myeloma in the U.S. each year. Medical scientists do not know what causes this disease. Men are more likely to have it than women, and it almost always occurs in people over 40.

Myeloma is often a slow-growing cancer. People with this disease may not have any symptoms for years. The first symptom is almost always bone pain, often in the back or neck. This pain, which usually seems worse at night, is mild and occasional at first, but becomes increasingly severe as the disease progresses. Other possible symptoms of multiple myeloma are abnormal bleeding and increase susceptibility to infections.

Bone tumors associated with multiple myeloma usually develop in bones which contain the most bone marrow: the ribs, spine, skull, pelvis and long bones of the arms and legs. If the disease is not treated, these tumors can cause bone fractures and collapsed vertebrae.

Myeloma interferes with the proper functioning of the body's immune system, and patients with this disease are susceptible to a variety of infections. They must be careful to avoid exposure to infections and must be treated promptly if any develop.

Many patients also are anemic and may need periodic blood transfusions.

Chemotherapy is the treatment most frequently given for patients who have active multiple myeloma. Radiation therapy also may be used to control the bone tumors.

A patient who responds well to treatment usually feels better, has less bone pain and is more active within three to five weeks. Some patients treated with chemotherapy have full remissions in which all signs of the disease are gone.

Q: A few weeks ago I called the Cancer Information Service toll-free number you give in your column. The person I talked to was very nice and helpful. I just wondered what kind of training those people who answer the phone have.

A: The Cancer Information Service is staffed by dedicated volunteers who are selected for their interest and experience with cancer. Some are former cancer patients, some are nurses or other health care professionals and others are students in one of the health professions.

Before they start taking calls, volunteers must complete an intensive training program. They learn about the different types of cancer and their common symptoms, how cancer is diagnosed and treated, how people can protect themselves from cancer and much more.

The Cancer Information Service office has its own extensive library of reference materials — Books, pamphlets, clipping files, and resource directories — which are constantly updated so that volunteers can look up current and accurate answers to most questions.

When a caller asks a question a volunteer isn't qualified to answer, a specialist in the subject can be consulted. Staff of the American Cancer Society, the National Cancer Institute, physicians and health care professionals at clinics, hospitals, universities and other institutions throughout the region have agreed to serve as consultants to the Cancer Information Service. Agencies of the federal and state governments also may be called upon to assist with questions about such topics as cancer-causing agents or services available to cancer patients.

While CIS volunteers can't recommend a particular treatment or give you a diagnosis, they can discuss warning signs of cancer, suggest questions you can ask your doctor, help you locate a doctor if you don't have one, and tell you about other service resources in your area.

The Cancer Information Service toll-free number in Minnesota is 1-800-582-5262. In North Dakota and South Dakota you can call toll-free 1-800-328-5188.

Q: I've head of a cancer that attacks children. It's called Wilm's tumor. How common is this cancer and what are its symptoms?

A: Wilm's tumor is a relatively rare type of cancer. It usually occurs in children from infancy to age 15 and most commonly between ages two and five.

Wilm's tumor is a cancer of the kidneys. The most common first sign of the disease is a lump in the belly or a swollen abdomen. Sometimes blood in the urine is the first sign. Of course these symptoms can be caused by infections or conditions other than Wilm's tumor. It's important that a child be taken to a doctor at the first sign of bloody urine or a lump or swelling in the abdomen.

Wilm's tumor is one of the few types of cancer that can be hereditary. Parents who had the disease when they were children or know of other family members who had it should be especially alert. The child's doctor should be told about the family history as well.

Fortunately, Wilm's tumor is one of the success stories of modern cancer treatment. It is the most frequently cured of all childhood cancers. It can be cured in nearly all cases if the tumor is found early.

Q: My doctor has advised that I have a colonoscopy because of some bowel problems I've been having. He says he wants to rule out to chance that it is a tumor. What is a colonoscopy and how is it done? Is it painful?

A: Colonoscopy is a test used to diagnose colon problems that cannot be detected by x-ray procedures. The instrument that is used, called a colonoscope, is a flexible tube through which doctors actually can see the inside of the colon.

You probably are familiar with the proctoscopic examination, or procto. A doctor inserts a lighted metal tube, called a proctoscope, into the anus to examine the rectum and lower portion of the colon. Because the proctoscope is rigid it can only be used as far as the first bend in the colon, normally less than 12 inches.

Colonoscopy is similar to proctoscopy except that the tube-like instrument is flexible and can bend with the normal bends in the colon.

Patients usually are told to eat only liquid foods for one or two days before the examination. The doctor will prescribe laxatives and an enema to clean out the bowels before the exam. A sedative is given just before the examination to help the patient relax.

A colonoscopy usually is done with the patient lying on his side with his knees drawn up to his abdomen. The colonoscope, which is well lubricated, is inserted with slow pressure through the anus into the rectum. The doctor gradually advances the instrument looking for any signs of disease along the inside walls of the colon. During the examination the doctor may need to fill the colon with air periodically in order to see the walls better.

After the doctor completes the examination, the colonoscope is slowly withdrawn.

There usually is some discomfort associated with a colonoscopy. The patient will feel a fullness in their abdomen while the colonscope is being moved through the colon. There may also be some crampy abdominal pain. The discomfort usually goes away as soon as the colonoscope is removed.

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

A phone rang and my friend answered an overseas call coming in from his Haitian manager, who was anticipating the visit of food scientist from the home office arriving the next day. He wanted to know how he could recognize the man. My friend said, "If you are downwind of him, you will know him, because he stinks so badly!" All of this was audible because the conversation was on a speakerphone.

When the call was completed, I asked if it was really true that my friend's company employed someone who smelled so bad that it was common knowledge. I was told that it was true. I was also told that this man had been informed about the problem and did nothing about it so that he was to be fired when he returned from this trip, even though he was capable and a good worker.

I suggested that my friend call the food scientist into his office, explain the problem explicity, and see the response before he fired him.

He did call the man in (and the man really did stink). He told him that he stank, that his habit of wearing the same clothes for weeks, no apparently taking regular baths, and overlooking health habits that kids are routinely taught had to change that day because he smelled so bad that no one wanted to work with him. One more day of what had been tolerated, and he would be fired without further notice.

The food scientist asked my friend why no one had earlier said anything about this problem to him. My friend told him that there were at least six notations and dates on his personnel record indicating that he had been told, again and again.

The point, many people thought they had communicated with the man, but no one, in trying to be kind, spelled things out and said what needed saying in a way that made this "3-degree" guy understand. Once told, he quickly changed his ways.

This inability to communicate is one of the biggest problems we face today. It applies to our personal lives between family members. It applies in our political and business systems. It applies to our international relations.

Studies indicate that most Americans will respond in the right way given all of the facts, and that our people are only performing up to about 60 per cent of their capacity at any time. We just do not communicate with and motivate our people.

A 55 year old man who had been with a company more than a quarter of a century was shocked when the company closed down and he found himself out of a job and without the security the company had always provided. In speaking to his former boss, he asked how this problem could have developed so quickly that no one anticipated it and could do anything to resolve it.

His old boss said that for years the company had told everyone who listened that costs were way out of line and that the company could not compete with other firms here and overseas. The laid off employee said that he couldn't remember ever being told that this kind of problem existed or he would have done his share to help. The former boss pulled out a file of letters, bulletins and house organs, all discussing the problem. The 25 year employee said that while he remembered all of these letters and bulletins, he never had fully understood what they said and implications. He thought they were just filled with excuses to keep him from getting a raise because they always started appearing just as the union contract was about to expire.

A senior partner in a large law firm, someone everyone liked, lost his wife. Everyone assumed that he was handling the loss well until he threw himself in front of a suburban commuter train. No one knew that he was that depressed, and everyone believed that they had been getting through to him on how they felt about him.

Is it any surprise if husbands and wives have trouble, business and labor have difficulties, politicians and their constituents aren't doing so well, all using the same language, that we have major problems communicating internationally, where a language barrier exists? Can you remember when a President of the United States made a speech in a foreign language (phonetically) that infuriated his audience because the words he used had multiple meanings and the translator made lots of mistakes, so that he wasn't saying what he thought he was saying to the Polish people.

I wonder whether it isn't about time for our educators to take the time to teach effective oral and written communications, both for use in the United States and overseas? I suspect that it would be more meaningful than some of the courses presently being offered through our schools. After all, isn't a primary function of education to help our people adjust and function in our local, national and international society?

That's Straight Talk!

Jobless Benefits Outstrip Pay For Some Americans

WASHINGTON — Recently I suggested that high unemployment and welfare benefits have made joblessness an increasingly attractive alternative for many Americans.

This argument prompted many reactions, most of them favorable. But I was roundly criticized in some quarters for claiming, according to the critics, that we have high unemployment today because the unemployed simply prefer not to work.

First, let's be clear about what I did and did not say. I did not say that the vast majority of jobless Americans have chosen this condition. There is no question that most desperately want to work. I did say, however, that double-digit unemployment is caused by many factors, including the recession; excessive taxes and regulations that have strangled business activity; unreasonable wage demands by labor leaders which have helped price many of our products out of world markets; and finally, the fact that in recent years we have pushed unemployment and welfare benefit levels so high that joblessness has become a preferable and, in some cases, a more profitable alternative to work.

As evidence of this, consider the example of a typical Florica family of four with a weekly income of $250. (I am grateful to the Florida Farm Bureau Federation for providing me with this information.) If the wage earner in this case were laid off from his job, he and his family would receive the following monthly income and benefits:

Unemployment compensation, $537.50; food stamps, $151.75; housing and utilities assistance, $333.35; school breakfasts and lunches, $70.40; energy assistance (approx.), $50.00. Total unemployed monthly income: $1,143.00.

In other words, this worker, while unemployed, receives a tax free monthly income that is actually greater, six per cent greater, than his salary on the job. Moreover, his jobless income and benefits are tax free while the salary is not. This makes the "unemployment premium" that much greater.

In fact, once taxes are taken into account, this $250 per week worker would have to find a job with a weekly gross pay of $312 in order to match in take-home pay what he gets by being unemployed.

In relating this example I am not passing judgment on whether current unemployment benefits are too high or too low in terms of what it takes to provide for a family of four. But simple common sense about human motivation suggests that a society based on a system of incentives must reward those who work at a higher level than those who don't, regardless of whatever misfortune pushed the latter group into that condition.

Unemployment is a personal tragedy for millions of Americans. But for others it is a matter of choice — and that choice is draining our economy of precious resources that should be in the hands of businesses and consumers so that jobs can be created for all those who do want them. This is a national tragedy that no one talks about.

Abraham Lincoln stood in the Oval Office and turned to a friend from his home state of Illinois: "How many legs does a dog have if you call the tail a leg?"

"Why, five, of course."

"No. Four," Lincoln explained. "Calling a tail a leg doesn't make it so."

As we celebrated Lincoln's birthday last Saturday, I couldn't help thinking that our present politicians could use a dose of Lincoln's honesty.

A tail is always a tail. And a tax is a tax. Even if you give it a new name.

Indeed, thinking up new names for tax increases has become a growth industry in Washington. Last summer we had "revenue enhancement," "loophole closing" and "base broadening;" in the fall we had "user fees;" and now we find a "stand-by insurance program." funny, but they look like tax increases on the working men and women of American to me.

Our pocketbooks are all too familiar with last September's "revenue enhancements" which will drain $227 billion out of the economy in a five-year period. And while we were promised $3 in spending costs for every dollar in tax increases . . . well, somehow Congress forgot that part of the bargain.

The "user fee" for highway repairs is a sound concept but Congress used the nickel a gallon tax on gasoline as simply an addition to general revenues and siphoned off large chunks of the cash to make-work boondoggles.

Now skyrocketing federal spending threatens to leave us with ever increasing deficits and Congress responds with "don't ask us to be responsible in how we spend, rather let us have another peek in the taxpayers' pockets to see what is left."

Desperate to keep their hands on "their" money, the politicians have come up with several proposals to increase our taxes — although they put it in different words.

One proposal is to cancel the third year of the Reagan tax cut — the 10 per cent cut in income taxes that taxpayers had been promised. Your tax return and a pocket calculator will tell you how much this will cost you. Another thought is to repeal the indexing of tax brackets. It is said that this would save up to $120 billion from 1985-1988. Save? Save it from remaining in your pockets! Repeal of indexing would return us to the days where Congress reaped billions in new taxes as inflation forced taxpayers into higher tax brackets. The taxpayers got poorer and Uncle Sam got richer.

And now the administration has proposed a "stand-by insurance program" which would place a five per cent surcharge on the taxes you pay (a tax on a tax) and put a $5 per barrel tax on all oil, if the deficit is above 2.5 per cent of the gross national product in 1986.

Abraham Lincoln observed that "you cannot fool all of the people all of the time." He was right. The American taxpayers know a tax when they see one.

And as for this "insurance program" — expected to cost taxpayers over $129 billion — well, cancel my policy, those premiums are too high.

Don't Bury Supply Side Economics Try It

Stop that funeral dirge. Take off the black veil and stop payment on the mortician's check. There will be no burial for supply-side economics today.

We can't bury something we haven't tried.

Haven't tried? What about the "massive" 1981 tax cut that promised to leave $960 billion in the pockets of American taxpayers between 1982 and 1987? That's not small change, you know.

Well, I am sorry — truly sorry — to say that the other day I sharpened my pencil and practiced my grade school arithmetic . . . subtraction.

For starters, the 1981 tax cut was 69 per cent cancelled before it ever passed due to Jimmy Carter's social security tax increases, the "windfall profits" tax, and inflation-fueled bracket creep totalling $660 billion. That left taxpayers with a net tax cut of only $300 billion.

In September of this past year, Congress decided that even this was too generous and subtracted another $229 billion from the 1983-1987 tax relief. Now where do we stand? Oh, yes, at $71 billion. Then came the gasoline "user fee." Scotch another $16 billion. That leaves $55 billion.

Keep your pencil at the ready because state and local governments got into the act raising their taxes by $32 billion in 1981 and $25 billion in 1982. Good-bye "massive" tax cut.

In sum, the taxes you and I pay to federal, state and local government actually rose from $838 billion in 1980 to $957 billion in 1981 and reached $968 billion in 1982! Our taxes are going up, not down.

This is not supply-side economics.

Supply-side economics argues that if you tax something you get less of it. And for too long government has been taxing hard work and savings — destroying jobs and draining off the savings and investment capital America needs to create new jobs. What supply-side economics isn't is an "untested theory" or a "river boat gamble." History and common sense combine to demonstrate its validity.

When President Calvin Coolidge reduced the top marginal tax rates from 75 per cent to 25 per cent, the American economy responded with the Roaring Twenties. Forty years later, President John Kennedy cut all tax rates by 22 per cent over a two-year period to "get America moving again." Unemployment dropped below four per cent.

Supply-side economics — reducing taxes and controlling government spending — has served America's working men and women well in the past. It will work for us today — if we give it the opportunity.

American humorist Mark Twain once read his obituary in the newspaper and remarked that the "reports of my death are greatly exaggerated." The tax and spend politicians whose policies brought us the present recession and who insistently proclaim the death of supply-side economics are likewise premature — and self-serving.

Seal holes, gaps

Eliminate wasteful air leaks

There are several measures homeowners can take to combat persistent air leaks in the home. One of the most effective is to fill large gaps by using a foam sealant that expands while drying.

According to experts at Geocel Corporation, foam sealants are an economical way to save energy. One inch of Geocel's expanding foam sealant has an R value of five. In some small places, foam can be used instead of fiberglass batts to avoid wasting material. And because foam expands, it can be used to fill holes ordinary caulks can't.

Foam sealants are especially effective in basement and attic applications. Check for holes and gaps around window frames, plumbing pipes and dryer vents. Fill holes about one-third of the depth. Then allow 24 hours for the foam to expand fully and cure to a hard surface. To get rid of any uneven bulges, cut the foam flush to the surface with a sharp knife. If you want to paint the cured foam, be sure to lightly sand the surface for best results.

One application of a foam sealant will go a long way to eliminate energy-wasting leaks. Save your sales slip, too, because foam sealants qualify for the 15-percent energy tax credit.

Expanding foam sealant is an effective insulator around attic windows. One inch has an R value of five. When fully expanded, the foam can fill gaps surrounding batt insulation.

Your Public Schools

by Willard H. McGuire, president
National Education Association

Values Taught In Our Public Schools

Many religious and spiritual values are taught in today's public schools.

You may be surprised by that statement since some media have carried stories from ultra-conservatives alleging the opposite.

Nevertheless, look at the values that are taught in school: stealing isn't condoned, respect is taught, honesty is demanded, plagiarism isn't tolerated, and the rights of individuals are respected.

Perhaps the most important reason for values education in schools is to help students learn how to make responsible decisions to solve human problems. Future problem-solvers will have to deal with many issues that affect all of us—in the United States and the rest of the world—issues such as increasing technology and nuclear weapons, the pollution of the atmosphere, the likelihood of world hunger, medical advances to prolong life.

Parents are often disappointed when they realize that their children's values only faintly resemble their own and that their own attitudes and lifestyles are not acceptable to their offspring. Despite these difficulties, parents should not become discouraged. Here are some ways parents can explore values with children:

- Try to define your own beliefs and attitudes for your children.
- Talk with your children about their values and your own to discover which ones you hold in common and which are different.
- If your child's school offers courses in values, talk with teachers to find out the purposes of the courses and what the teachers are trying to achieve.
- Discuss with teachers any suggestions you may have about values education, such as a different emphasis or approach.

In these ways you can open up or improve communication with your children and teachers. Improved communication about beliefs and attitudes will mean better understanding for all—children, parents and teachers.

IT'S POTATO LOVERS MONTH!

SOUP A SPUD LOVER WILL SAVOR

Be sure to jot this one down on the calendar: February has been declared Potato Lover's Month. For spud lovers everywhere, now is the time to celebrate by serving exciting potato dishes.

Potatoes have long been a traditional ingredient in many varieties of soups and chowders. A bowl of warm potato soup not only appeals to the culinary imagination but also satisfies hearty winter appetites.

This Potato and Leek Soup is a tasty and simple example patterned after a classic French recipe. It's not only impressive to serve but also easy to make because it begins with instant mashed potatoes that eliminate much of the time-consuming preparation. Enjoy it as a light meal or serve as a tasty first course.

POTATO AND LEEK SOUP

- 1 cup sliced leeks or green onions (with tops)
- 1 large onion, chopped (about 1 cup)
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 1 can (13 3/4 ounces) chicken broth
- 4 cups milk (1 quart)
- 1 1/3 cups Potato Buds instant mashed potatoes (dry)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 2 tablespoons snipped parsley

Cook and stir leeks and onion in margarine in Dutch oven until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in chicken broth and milk. Heat just to boiling, stirring constantly. Reduce heat; simmer uncovered 5 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling. Serve immediately. Garnish with snipped parsley if desired. 4 or 5 servings.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): No adjustments are necessary.

JOBS CREATION and unemployment issues subcommittee of the Minnesota House of Representatives met in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium on Saturday, to hear testimony regarding those issues. From left are Representatives Wally Sparby, Karen Clark, chairman, and Phillip J. Riveness. State Senator LeRoy Stumpf arrived after the hearing was in progress, and was asked to join the committee in questioning witnesses.

House Subcommittee Hears Jobless Views

Meeting of the jobs creation and unemployment issues subcommittee of the Minnesota House of Representatives was held in the basement meeting room of city auditorium on Saturday, to hear testimony on problems regarding those issues.

Meeting was arranged by Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, who is a member of that subcommittee. Meeting was presided over by chairman Karen Clark, Minneapolis. Also on the subcommittee is Representative Phillip J. Riveness, Bloomington. Senator LeRoy Stumpf, Thief River Falls, arrived after the meeting was already in session and was asked to sit in on the committee by Chairman Clark.

With people coming and going during the approximately two-hour meeting, attendance could only be estimated at about 70 to 80 people.

Testimony of approximately one dozen people was arranged ahead of the meeting, with several unemployed people from the area offering their personal observations following planned testimony. Among those on the agenda were Greg Pribula, an area farmer who related, among other things, some of the problems encountered in seeking part-time employment to supplement farm income. He noted that unemployment statistics could not take into account the number of people who were only marginally employed.

Jack Petrillo related situations he had encountered in attempting to find work, noting that problems caused by economic conditions made it difficult to move to another location, when real estate couldn't be sold. He also noted that many employment agencies seemed to favor metropolitan residents with sections of help wanted ads left out of met area newspapers sent to this area.

Arlene Forsberg testified on the need for assistance to displaced homemakers, noting that they lacked training and experience necessary to find a job in many cases.

Orley Gunderson, director of the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute, related problems encountered by vocational schools in instituting new programs to meet training needs of new businesses. He noted that "red tape" often could delay instituting new programs for a year, preventing them from providing employees needed by industry.

Job Service representatives Jeff Gustafson and Mike Yeanda spoke on problems faced by their office in meeting budgets due to cuts in finances, and presented the committee with statistics relating to employment in this area. They noted that underemployment and people whose unemployment benefits had expired made statistics seem more favorable than they are. They noted that what was needed was legislative

Leland Nelson Family Is Awarded County Honors

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Relative newcomers to dairying but intending to be in the business to stay, the Leland Nelson family of rural Thief River Falls has been designated honor dairy family for Pennington county in 1983. A plaque with that honor designation was presented at the Red River Valley Dairymen's association banquet Friday at the Eagles hall in Crookston.

Born only three-quarters of a mile from his present farm five miles southwest of Thief River Falls, Leland went into dairying on his own after 13 years in an office supply store, a short period of operating his own service station at St. Hilaire and serving as a purchasing agent for Arctic Enterprises and Forsberg's, Inc.

Is he at all sorry he made the change?

"You couldn't get me back behind a desk now," he says.

After three months of operating the dairy herd alone, he was joined by his two sons and they have now formed a three-way partnership. The boys — 22-year-old Gary and 21-year-old Dale — share their father's enthusiasm for dairying, and spreading the work load makes a demanding occupation much more tolerable.

Main basis of the Nelson herd was a full herd of 42 grade Holstein milk cows purchased from Arvid Rosing of Audubon in August of 1979. Now only half of that original herd remains as the Nelsons have been adding young replacement heifers they have produced and a few cows they have purchased.

The dairy operation began with a 36x70 machine shed which was converted to a dairy barn on a quarter section of land which Nelson has owned for a number of years. An 18x20 milk house was built to serve the Grace A dairy operation. A 36x80 addition was placed on the end of the barn in 1980 and a 36x80 building added in 1981 to serve as a calf barn. The original 16x30 calf barn which was located on the farm is also used for young calves.

The herd has grown to 62 head of milk cows, with about 55 head regularly in milk, and 80 head of heifers. The herd purchased from Rosing had been on DHIA test and Nelson began his DHIA testing immediately on going into the dairy business.

The dairy barn has 32 tie stalls with the remainder of the milking string kept in loose housing. The loose housing herd is rotated into the tie stalls for milking. The Nelson have six milker units and a pipeline system which transfers milk to two 400-gallon bulk tanks. Another phase of the Nelson farm operation is raising of dairy steers to 400-500 pounds for sale as feeders.

In addition to the 160 acre homestead, the Nelsons farm 300 rented acres including hay stumpage and pasture and building site. Gary, who married Barb Bulger in 1980, lives on a farm site owned by Don Dyrdal three and one-half miles from the Nelson farm. There he cares for 45 head of the Nelson young stock and raises his own flock of sheep. That farm gives the Nelsons use of a 30x60 barn with a 16x60 lead-to, and two 30x50 three-sided pole barns.

To feed their large herd, the Nelson regularly have to buy hay, but believe that in most years it can be purchased as cheaply as it can be grown and processed. The cattle are fed on a large dry lot when weather permits and the milking herd is never pastured. Bedding for the KEEPING RECORDS is a necessity for good management in any farming operation. Mrs. Leland (Janice) Nelson and her daughter-in-law Barb review some of the production records for the Nelson dairy herd. Barb's husband Gary, his brother Dale and their father Leland have a three-way partnership in the dairy herd. Janice Nelson works at St. Hilaire Cooperative elevator as a bookkeeper and Barb, the former Barb Bulger, works in the office of Kmart in Thief River Falls.

Budget Message Gets Reaction By Legislators

Special To The Times
by Jim Robins
Northern Star News Service

Major revamping of Minnesota's property tax system is the most far-reaching part of Governor Rudy Perpich's budget proposals. Property tax reform comes as a part of a $9.8 million total budget.

Perpich's plan calls for reducing what had been an increasingly heavy burden of funding property tax credits, especially the homestead credit.

Another big change calls for putting counties out on their own, levying their budget entirely through property taxes and without state aids. Along with this major change, the governor proposes lifting levy limits for counties, while allowing for some relaxation of the limits for cities and school districts.

Property tax changes also build in some relief for the typical small business on main street. Reduced commercial and industrial tax on the first $50,000 of valuation could cut small business property tax bills by $200 to $300 a year.

Rep. Wallace Sparby of Thief River Falls speculated that the governor's proposal to lift local property tax levy limits might create some problems.

Most tax increases in the past few years have been put on the farmer, he said, and lifting limits may cause them to be taxed even more.

Gov. Perpich's plan to reduce the amount of homestead credit refunds is a "fair" idea, according to Sparby. However, he questions the proposal to change the circuit breaker system to give more tax aid to the poor. "I'm not so sure that's the right thing to do," he said. Sparby said he thinks the circuit breaker plan has to be studied further.

The governor's suggestion to lower property taxes on $50,000 worth of commercial property is "long overdue," he said. Property taxes have been a "burden" for business.

Some legislators have said the budget is too big, but Sparby replied that critics "always have that argument" and to cut the budget is to cut programs — and the people aren't ready for that.

There are some things Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer likes about Perprich's property tax proposals, such as scaling down of homestead credits. But he warns, "The rural legislators have to watch the total property tax package."

In particular, Stumpf sees no relief targeted for farmers. "I think the governor should have addressed agricultural property tax relief," he said. The net results means "a definite increase for farmers," according to Stumpf.

He also feels Gov. Perpich may have gone too far by calling for removal of all aids

Bemidji Quilter Is Guest Speaker At Zehlian Meet

Ione Benck McIntyre of Bemidji, a quilter and author of the book, "American History in Patchwork Patterns," was guest speaker at the meeting of the Zehlian Art group of the General Federation of Women's club (GFWC) held recently at the home of Marge Green.

To add interest, Mrs. McIntyre gave a slide presentation on patchwork quilts and also displayed a number of quilts she had made. She stated that patchwork is history through women's eyes. Through the years, women have incorporated into patchwork pattern names all their varied interests, from things in their immediate environment to people, places and events of national scope. She also quoted Rose Wilder Lane. "When you know patchwork patterns, you know all American history" because it depicts, like art, sculpture and other artistic endeavors what people are thinking and feeling at a given time. She concluded by saying she hoped that her book will contribute to a greater understanding and appreciation of American heritage, as well as give inspiration to quiltmakers and patchworkers.

At the meeting of the book group of the Zehlians, held at the home of Maxine McEwen, the book "Kane and Abel" was studied and discussed.

During the Zehlian business meeting, the group donated $25 to the GFWC foundation in memory of Ebba Sagmoen, and $100 to the Crippled Children's clinic. It was noted that an art symposium had been presented at the local elementary schools by the Art Adventure volunteers on February 18; and that 130 children had been checked at the Children's clinic.

The local group also decided to participate in the "Eliminate Highway Hazzards," program, being promoted by the GFWC.

Announcement was made that the GFWC district convention will be held April 16 at Stephen. The convention will include an Art Festival as well as the student art contest for students in grades 6 through 12. Instructors will be contacted regarding the contest. Members of the Zehlians were encouraged to attend the convention which will begin at 9:30 a.m. Coffee will be served at 8:30. It was also noted that each club may send four delegates.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District 1

This week, I am happy to pass on to you some information recently released by the higher education coordinating board which reflects well on our state's post-secondary students. According to the board, Minnesota has a much better record than many other states in paying back student loans.

For instance, Minnesota students pay back loans in the guaranteed student loan (GSL) program at a rate of about 96 per cent. That loan program, which is the largest in the state, handles about $200 million of loans a year. The average national default rate is nearly 12 per cent, compared to Minnesota's four per cent rate.

Minnesota students also are more conscientious than the national average in paying back loans from the national direct student loan (NDSL) program. Unlike the GSL program where money is loaned by banks and other lending institutions, the NDSL program arranges for loans to be made directly by the colleges. Our state's default rate is 10 per cent for this type of loan, or considerably below the average national default rate of about 16 per cent per year.

Our students deserve praise for being very responsible in paying back their loans. The lenders, often community banks, also should be commended for counseling students about their repayment obligations and keeping in contact with student borrowers to encourage repayment before delinquent loans are reported as defaults.

In my role as chairman of the Senate education committee's post-secondary and higher education subcommittee, I have seen the critical role that loans play in our educational system by providing opportunities for young people to further their education. Nearly half of all post-secondary students in Minnesota use some form of government-backed student loans.

In the next several weeks, the legislature will discuss several proposals by Governor Perpich to change the way that we fund higher education in Minnesota. The governor's proposals would result in higher tuition levels at public colleges, universities and vocational-technical institutes, and more money allocated for loans for needy students.

If the proposals are approved, loans will become even more crucial to many students as a means of paying for their higher education. By continuing and perhaps even improving Minnesota's pay-back rate for student loans, we can ensure that deserving students get the full use of our tax dollars.

Please write to me with your questions and comments. My office address is 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155, and my phone number is (612) 296-8660.

Pennington Co. Homemakers To Meet Friday

Pennington county extension homemakers will learn about family communications at their leader training on Friday, March 4 at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room.

Don Janes, from Northwestern hospital, will conduct the leader training which will focus on ways that healthy families communicate, how family members can become better listeners, and ways that families can share in conversations. Family communication booklet will be available for all extension homemaker members.

Anyone interested in this topic is invited to attend the training session.

Northland To Hold Science Fiction Class

Nothland Community college will be offering during the spring quarter a novel's class in science fiction. Novels will be primarily the classics of science fiction dealing with the world in the future.

Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein" will be the first book. Unlike the movies' Frankenstein monsters that have ranged from a grunting, half-machine to a sophisticated creature that could dance to "Puttin' on the Ritz," Shelley's monster is an articulate creature that illustrates the theme of man's moral inability to play god.

Second book is Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World", the most well-known of the futuristic society books. It deals primarily with the loss of human feeling in the face of a machine-oriented society. George Orwell's "1984" will be read to see if there is anything to fear in the coming year. This books deals with the totalitarian soceity and its effect on human feeling and independence.

Fourth book is Ray Bradbury's "Fahrenheit 451." This books deals with a futuristic society that stultifies thought by burning books and controlling human ideas. Pat Frank's "Alas, Babylon" is the fifth book. This book is particularly topical since it deals with the horrors of a nuclear holocaust. Sixth book is Arthur Clarke's "Childhood's End." This book shows human thought having come full circle from "Frankenstein" since its basic theme is humans' ultimate evolution into gods.

Class will begin Tuesday, March 15, at 7 p.m. in B-21. Students may register at the college during the regular office hours of 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or the evening of the first class. Fee is $19 per credit hour. Senior citizens may register for an administrative fee of $6 per credit on a space available basis. For more information call the college at 681-2181.

Buffalo Feeds Set For Nurse Training Fund

With proceeds to be dedicated to the nurses training program, Voiture 737 of the 40 et 8 will be holding "buffalo feeds" at American Legion posts in Thief River Falls, Plummer and Red Lake Falls, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 5.

Since members of Voiture 737 come from all three American Legion posts, decision was made to use all three clubs simultaneously, to enable the public to attend at the location most convenient to them.

Menu will include roast buffalo, potatoes with gravy, coleslaw and other food items. Price for the meal will be $4.50.

Nurses training program of the 40 et 8 has produced at least 30 registered nurses over the years, with many more student nurses having benefited to a lesser degree.

Conservation District Meet Held In Grygla

Annual meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district was held recently in Grygla, with Lyndon Magnuson, acting chairman, summarizing the past year's activities.

Film, "Conservation Down on the Farm" was shown, illustrating a variety of practices to conserve natural resources and control erosion.

Guest speaker was Donald Ferren, state conservationist with the soil conservation service. Ferren commented on the years of leadership of the local supervisors, including Oliver Howland and Lyndon Magnuson, charter members with 32 years of service; Peter Aune, 23 years; Grant Satre, 20 years; and Lloyd Wiseth, 11 years; for a total of 118 years of leadership experience as district supervisors.

Ferren also discussed the budget and staffing needs of the S.C.S. as well as the need to continue erosion control measures. He noted that 100 million acres in Minnesota are subject to erosion, half by water and half by wind, and that the Red River Valley has the bulk of soils with wind erosion hazard. Minnesota has 25 million acres of cropland with only 3 million protected.

Ferren also spoke on "targeting" which is a concentration of technical and financial assistance in an area in need of erosion controls. Area proposal has been submitted for the Red River Valley, including Marshall County. He also spoke on how S.C.S. technical and financial assistance interacts with counties, soil and water conservation district's, Watershed Districts and A.S.C.S. Boards.

Legislators React To Gov. Budget Plan to counties and lifting the levy limit as well. "I can see the need for some flexibility," Stumpf said, but he opposes the total lifting of the levy limits.

Stumpf is very supportive of one Perpich proposal, cutting the commercial and industrial tax rate on the first $50,000 of valuation. "That will help small business," he said. Stumpf had been co-author of similar legislation last session.

Gov. Perpich made every effort to pound in the idea that property taxes are local. "The property tax is a local tax from which the state derives no revenue," he said, repeating the point for media, legislators, property owners and other listeners who were asked to repeat the point for those who weren't listening.

To no one's surprise, Perpich proposed continuing the temporary taxes put on in special sessions last year. The income tax surcharge and additional one cent of sales tax are expected to bring in $771 million. While the governor didn't propose making these taxes permanent, there are relatively few examples of temporary taxes not becoming permanent.

Other tax increases include:

+ Adding five cents to the gas tax — including three cents as soon as possible, plus another two cents starting next year. The total cost adds up to an estimated $78 million.

+ Tax simplification — state income tax forms to conform more closely to federal deductions. Total return is expected to be $54 million.

+ Increasing the tax on motor vehicles from five to six per cent, raising $52 million.

These tax increases add up to less than the projected return from broadening the six per cent sales tax to clothing, which had been seriously considered as a proposal from Perpich.

Although he promises to boost school aid from $1,313 to $1,475 per pupil next year, that level would hold steady for 1985. Also, schools would be faced with the possibility of not getting the full amount under Perpich's plan to share the risk of revenue shortfalls in the state budget.

A Perpich incentive plan for reducing the cost of schools isn't getting much of an enthusiastic reaction from rural legislators. The governor is pushing for pairing of administrators, academic and vocational programs and is recommending an additional $50 per pupil unit of aid as an incentive.

"A number of school districts have substantially reduced student populations. Rather than close institutions, there is a strong case to be made for pairing districts," Perpich's budget message stated.

Committee On Jobs Creation Meets In TRF

efforts to make the business climate of the state more attractive to the private sector, and halt the exodus of jobs to other states.

Chris Twomey related his experiences with the Occupational Development Center, noting that with the economy down, businesses which normally hired the handicapped to do some of their work were cutting back, leaving them with less income from the private sector.

Terry Gere, representing Jobs Inc., related some of the efforts made locally to encourage new business. He also indicated the city's willingness to tax for construction of a Federal Aviation Authority automated flight service station should the city be chosen for its location.

Jack Quinlivan, city planner, spoke of the city's efforts to obtain a community development block grant to foster new industry on a revolving loan basis. Members of the committee seemed genuinely interested in the concept, and expressed a willingness to support the effort.

Dave Strong spoke on the need for modification of rules on duty free ports of entry along the Canadian border to encourage international trade.

Roger Reuter spoke of the need for property tax abatement and maintenance of tax status for industrial development revenue bonds. He also related the efforts made in the city through formation of a centralized job development committee.

Hearing was closed with thanks from the committee members for the input received on the crucial problem of unemployment, and promises to take the information back to the capitol for consideration in legislative efforts.

Dear Readers,
Locating important papers, documents, and accounts at time of death can be very frustrating for a spouse or family. No one wants to anticipate death or really prepare for it. However, it will prove a real service to your family if you do make a list of all documents and accounts, and where they can be found.
Respectfully,

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

District 1B

I have been pleased at the turnout at the constituent meetings Sen. LeRoy Stumpf and I have been holding in our district. We have heard concerns and suggestions from many of you, and we appreciate the time and the effort you have given to helping us.

The House health and welfare committee is studying options for changes in medical assistance services provided by the state to make them less costly but more effective. Committee members are taking a hard look at Minnesota's present system and at systems in other states.

Four states are investigating a pre-payment approach in which health care providers — individual physicians, nurse-physician teams, clinics, etc. — bid on providing medical services.

Providers would know they can't charge more for their services or string out treatment, so they would work to keep their costs low by keeping their clients healthy.

Two pilot projects in Minnesota are now trying to determine if pre-paid medical assistance would halt the upward spiral of costs.

Another approach being tried in California is the preferred provider. This approach means that medical insurers or groups of health care providers would recommend members of the medical profession or hospitals that are very efficient and effective but low cost. Medical assistance clients would go to these providers and receive quality care at less cost to the state.

A third proposal would give vouchers to medical assistance clients so they could purchase health insurance or health care directly. The thought behind this voucher approach is that M.A. recipients would be most cost conscious and shop around as they would if they were using their own money.

The House committee is following these proposals and experiments carefully, especially in light of the governor's budget message in which he called for halting the rapid rise in medical assistance costs.

A bill to curb people who write worthless checks recently came before the House financial institutions and insurance committee. It would make it more difficult to open a checking account and would create stricter penalties for the intentional check bouncer.

The bill is intended to stop people from opening accounts at banks when they have no intention of having enough money in their accounts to cover checks. Research shows that 80 per cent of the bad checks written in the state were drawn within six months of opening the account.

The bill would require anyone opening a checking account to provide proper identification. If the applicant has not had an account in the last year, had an account closed involuntarily or had been convicted of writing a bad check within the last two years, the date the account opened would be noted on the front of the check.

Merchants would have to take more care with checks, comparing identification to the check writer's personal characteristics. We hope that measures such as these would detect people who pass bad checks, prevent the checks from being passed, and therefore, save banks and merchants money.

The bill will now go to the House judiciary committee, where legislators will scrutinize the bill and work on problem areas.

If you have any questions on these or other legislative concerns, you may reach me by writing Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or phoning (612) 296-9918.

Campaign Check-off

In a public opinion letter in today's issue of the Times, Fran Stromberg encourages state taxpayers to check-off the campaign contribution box on the state income tax form. Then she very clearly makes her points as to why the check-off is important in the political arena.

Fran is a tremendous organizer, a very nice person and an exceptional leader in her DFL party. We have gotten along well over the years although we sometimes differ on political philosophy. One of those differences is the campaign check-off.

We have never checked off that contribution box on the income tax form as Fran suggests.

First of all, we make our contributions directly to the candidates' campaign committees if we support those candidates individually. If we believe a candidate should not be elected, we don't contribute to his or her campaign. With the party check-off, you buy a piece of the package, good candidates or bad.

Second, we frequently vote for candidates of different parties for various offices. It makes little sense to contribute financially (yes, even the paltry $2) to the campaigns of these we wouldn't support at the polls.

Third, while accepting funds from the public financing restricts a candidate's spending limits, it doesn't restrict spending by his or her opponent. Therefore, a candidate who is bound by spending limits as a result of using the fund can be at a distinct disadvantage against a candidate with unlimited (or at least more extensive) personal or special interest resources.

Fourth, although the check-off doesn't increase the taxpayer's liability nor decrease a refund, it does deprive the state's general fund of that amount of tax revenue. Therefore, the state must recover the check-off money in other ways which ultimately increases taxes.

Be sure to read Fran's well-written letter. Public opinion on the question through signed letters to the editor would be appreciated. There certainly must be other points to be made, pro or con.

Can U.S. Export Oil?

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

The oversupply of oil is not only driving down prices but demanding a fresh look at some energy policies put in place when it was presumed that oil would be scarce rather than plentiful. One of them is the law that prohibits the export of Alaskan oil.

Our trade deficit with Japan makes a compelling case for lifting the ban. Oil could be shipped to Japan from the Alaskan port of Valdez at a fraction of the shipping cost for oil from other sources, so it is likely that the Japanese would jump at the chance of buying Alaskan crude.

The problem is the Export Administration Act of 1979 provides that all oil from the North Slope of Alaska must be sold within the United States. This has led to an expensive trip for Alaskan oil traveling via Panama to Gulf Coast ports. If some of our Alaskan production were diverted to the Asian market, Gulf Coast refineries could replace it with oil from Mexico and Venezuela. Everyone would save in transportation costs.

The aim of the 1979 law was to assure that Alaskan oil served only to make the United States less dependent on imported oil. That dependence has become less worrisome since the Persian Gulf states and the OPEC cartel lost their dominance of the market and oil has become available in greater quantities from such non-OPEC sources as Mexico and the North Sea.

It should be possible to negotiate contracts for sale of Alaskan oil to Japan, which would be subject to suspension or cancellation if events disrupt the international flow of oil. In such an emergency, Alaskan production again would be directed exclusively to the U.S. market.

Resistance to lifting the export ban is coming mainly from maritime unions, which want to protect jobs aboard tankers carrying oil from Valdez to other U.S. ports. Under the Jones Act, oil moving from one U.S. port to another must travel in U.S.-manned ships. Lifting the export ban probably would see some of the Alaskan oil moving in foreign tankers.

That's a protectionist motive for perpetuating an export control that otherwise is not making much economic sense. Our government has been pressuring the Japanese to open their doors to more U.S. products. Alaskan oil is a candidate, and our laws — not theirs — are keeping it out.

Authority To Close Campuses

Following editorial is from the Fergus Falls Daily Journal:

Gov. Rudy Perpich this week created a blue-ribbon commission to make recommendations to the Legislature about the state's system of higher education. That seems like a good idea, considering the problems the four-pronged system has.

But he also proposed giving the boards of each of the state's systems the authority to close campuses.

That is an abominable idea.

As Perpich quite rightly pointed out, the decision to close any state institution is a political hot potato. That's true, but that's no reason to take the Legislature off the hook or to give such important decisions to boards that are, after all, not elected by the residents of the state.

It may be that those boards already have too much power and guard it too carefully. The University of Minnesota, the State University System and the State Board of Community Colleges — let alone the locally-controlled tech schools in the AVTI system — aren't famous for working together to avoid duplication while best serving the needs of state residents. Far from it. Each, at times, resembles a kingdom, ready to defend itself from onslaughts by "outsiders" who might take away power.

That situation is best illustrated by the recent admonishment of the local advisory boards of the various community colleges by Chancellor Philip C. Helland. The message they received was that their job did not include making recommendations directly to him or to the state board.

As members of the Fergus Falls advisory board commented, if they aren't in a position to knowledgeably advise state officials on matters afecting their communities, who is? And isn't it not only a right, but a responsibility?

As for the Legislature, we sympathize with the problems of dealing with political hot potatoes — but isn't that what the legislators are there for? The whole idea is that in a democracy, we elect people to represent us in the decision-making process. That's their job. They shouldn't hand decisions over to appointed officials just becuase the issues are controversial.

The only issue, in fact, that may have to be handled by a bipartisan commission is that of reapportioning legislative districts; that's not because the Legislature can't do the job, but because it has proven that it won't.

On other matters, what legislators should do — and what we like about the blue-ribbon commission — is listen to advice from all over the state and keep in mind the best interests of all residents, both present and future. They should weigh that advice carefully.

And then they should have the courage to make the decisions and answer to the voters for them.

A Real Heart-Stopper

When it comes to real gut-busting, Brain-wrenching, white-knuckle, no-holds-barred frenzied excitement, what news event of the past week could possibly surpass Walter Mondale's announcement of his candidacy for President of the United States?

What other happening could have so suddenly burst upon the scene as to cause startled shrieks after nerve-wracking, nail-biting, breath-taking suspense, anxiety and excitement, not to mention the almost unbelieveable impact on the nation's citizenry?

One would have to look a long way — perhaps halfway to St. Hilaire or Holt — to find anything near the significance of the announcement. It descended upon us with the explosiveness of a sponge crashing on shag carpet, it thrilled the soul like a downpour on a summer picnic, it quickened the pulse like a pair of new overshoes and would definitely rival watching boards warp as a real heart-stopper.

If you gather from this that we're something less than exultant over the possibility of this country being on the Fritz, you're a quick study in astute observation. We strongly suspect that a lot of people who heard of the announcement aren't opening their mouths to cheer — they're simply yawning.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Mother at coffee party: "Our son hasn't been the same since he found out that in order to collect unemployment insurance, you have to have a job first."

Minnesotans To Participate In Energy Plan

Minnesotans will have the opportunity to participate in the development of the fourth national energy policy plan. This plan is written every two years by the United States department of energy (DOE), which submits it to congress. The DOE is inviting state governments, local agencies, private organizations and groups, and citizens to participate so that diverse views are taken into account when the plan is written.

Governor's office will be providing the state's energy plans, and encourages other organizations and citizens to submit their ideas by the March 21 deadline. Written comments should be sent to William J. Silvey; associate director, office of policy, planning and analysis; department of energy; 1000 Independence avenue SW; Washington, D.C. 20585.

In addition, there will be a public hearing on the plan on February 28 in Detroit. Persons or organizations interested in attending this hearing should contact the Minnesota energy information center at 296-5175, or outside the metropolitan area, toll-free at 1-800-652-9747.

ALVIN NELSON, whose son and grandsons operate the Nelson dairy farm southwest of Thief River Falls, has a good friend in the family's Dalmatian dog. A resident of Riverside Terrace apartments in Thief River Falls, Alvin still drives to the farm often to be a part of the activity there.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As income tax time is here again, I want to encourage all of you to take advantage of the public campaign contribution check-off when filling out your state income tax forms.

You can play an important role in reducing the influence of large, special-interest groups on state campaigns by contributing to the public campaign fund. The fund allows candidates who are not wealthy to run for office without soliciting money from large numbers of one-issue, political action committees. The funds available in 1982, apparently, were less than in previous years. This no doubt was due to people forgetting, or an unawareness of the check-off privilege.

By contributing to the fund, you also can help control campaign spending, since all candidates who accept public financing are bound by state spending limits. During the last election, the vast majority of legislative candidates chose to accept the money, and, therefore, limit their campaign spending.

You can contribute $2 to the fund (or $4 for a couple filing jointly) without increasing your tax liability or decreasing your refund. Simply check off one of the contribution boxes located on line 31 of your state income tax form. You may specify that the money be contributed to the party of your choice or to the general campaign fund.

Sincerely,
Fran Stromberg, Chair
Pennington County DFL

FEEDING GRAIN and concentrate according to production is the task which falls to Leland Nelson in the dairy operation southwest of Thief River Falls. The Nelsons raise most of their own oats and buy corn for the feed mixture, using a roller mill which breaks down the grain without creating much dust. Each cow receives an average of 30 pounds of hay and 20 pounds of grain a day. Some corn silage is also fed early in the fall and winter. The Nelson barn is unique in that tie stalls are faced toward the center of the barn with gutters on the outside. The barn is equipped with a barn cleaner and pipeline milking system.

Leland Nelson Family Earns Dairy Award

cattle requires about 3,500 bales of straw a year.

Because the herd has many young animals in it, DHIA production tests aren't as high as the Nelson would like them to be. Highest herd average has been 16,441 pounds of milk and 563 pounds of butterfat in May of 1981. Immediate goal is to get the herd back to that type of production, then to go on from there.

There are some good producers in the Nelson herd. One cow in her fourth lactation had production of 23,056 pounds of milk and 843 pounds of fat in 340 days and another produced 22,017 pounds of milk and 775 pounds of fat in 305-day test.

Eighteen heifers will be added to the herd this fall. The Nelsons are planning to expand to a 100-cow herd but will need one more 36x80 addition to the barn to have the required space. The tie stall barn is unusual in that the cattle face the center with the gutters on the outside areas of the barn. A barn cleaner is used and manure is spread each day. The loose housing area is heavily bedded with straw and the barn is cleaned about once a month, depending on the weather. Cattle in tie stalls also have straw bedding.

The Nelson have their own hay equipment including a 14-foot "Haybine" for cutting and crimping of alfalfa and balers for both square and large round bales. Square bales are used for feeding the milking herd and round bales are used to feed youngstock. There is a 34x70 hay shed on the farm and effort is made to get all of the square bales stored under cover.

A 1955 graduate of Lincoln high school, Leland married Janice Olson of Thief River Falls in 1960. In addition to Dale and Gary, their children include 13-year-old Dana, an eighth grader at Franklin school. He and Dale live at home.

Leland is a member of the American Dairy association, is a supervisor for Sanders township and is a past trustee of Our Saviour's Lutheran church. Janice is a past treasurer of the women's missionary society and is a bookkeeper at St. Hilaire elevator in St. Hilaire as well as on the farm. Gary's wife Barb is employed in the office at Kmart in Thief River Falls.

"Dairying is a lot of work, but it's not like it used to be," Leland said of his new-found occupation. "Mechanization has made things a lot easier, but a dairyman has to stay pretty close to home. It helps a lot to have three of us involved because one can get some time off every once in a while."

One of those times off was a trip for Leland to Crookston to pick up the plaque for being selected honor dairyman for Pennington county. A person can't help but believe he enjoyed it.

UM Study Seeks Heart Attack Victims 30-64

"Can heart attacks be presented by lowering cholesterol?" This is the question asked by a team of researchers conducting a national study at four clinical centers. Most heart trouble results from atherosclerosis or hardening of the arteries.

A clue to the cause of atherosclerosis may be that cholesterol, a fatty substance, is found in diseased arteries, but it is still uncertain whether lowering cholesterol can actually prevent heart attacks. There are more than 700 volunteers from throughout the country already in this study, but more are needed to help answer the cholesterol question.

Study seeks persons aged 30 through 64 who have had their first and only heart attack within the past five years and are free of diabetes, stroke and heart surgery. For more information, call collect at (612) 376-4494. The number again is (612) 376-4494. You may call collect.

Prowlers Meet Lakers

On the surface, Thief River Falls looks like a heavy favorite in Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game against Detroit Lakes at East Grand Forks.

After all, the Prowlers will come into the game as the No. 3-seeded team owning an impressive 15-5-1 season record, including a late-season 6-3 victory over Detroit Lakes. The Lakers, meanwhile, are just 9-14 for the year and they had to knock off two higher seeded teams just to reach the semifinals, beating Brainerd 4-2 in second round sub-sectional play and trimming No. 2-seeded Lake of the Woods 5-4 in Saturday's Section 8 quarterfinals.

However, Thief River Falls can ill-afford to take Detroit Lakes lightly. The Prowlers have a definite edge in depth, skating three full lines to the Lakers' two. But Detroit Lakes has some skilled people, including junior goalie Chad Meyhoff, who kept the Lakers in the game Saturday even though the Bears out-shot them 41-14.

He's one of those goalies who can really scare the opposition. He's the epitome of the "hot goalie" that make things so interesting in high school hockey. He made his varsity debut as a freshman and last year was a second-team pick in the All-Section 8 balloting. This year he didn't match his sophomore success, admits his coaches, but is still more than capable of playing outstanding goal.

"As long as he stays up, he's tough to beat," explained Detroit Lakes goalie coach John Jacobson, who was the Lakers' head coach in 1973 when they stunned heavily favored Thief River Falls 8-7 in the opening round Section 8 tournament quarterfinals at the sports arena. "He was doing too much dropping earlier this year. He's staying up now, and that makes him tough. He's big, he has good range and he has a good glove side."

"They obviously have more depth than we do," explained Detroit Lakes head coach Duane Earnest in sizing up the Tuesday match. "But we feel we have some strong talent in our two lines — WCHA material."

Among those forwards are junior Bob Caulfield, who had a hat trick vs. Lake of the Woods, plus seniors Chris Ahles and Brent Stromme.

"We've had a rough time this year," admitted Earnest, "but we seem to be peaking at the right time. Our very best game of the year was when we played Brainerd. We know we're the Cinderella team. They (TRF) beat us 6-3 when we played before. They were the better team that night. But in high school hockey, emotion plays such a big part of the game. You never know what to expect. If we play with emotion, play our positions, fill the three lanes and play good defense, we'll be all right."

Actually, said Earnest, that earlier Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes match-up wasn't a bad effort on the Lakers' part. "I felt we played a pretty good game that night. Take away (Tim) Bergland's three goals and an assist and you have an even hockey game." But Bergland dominated play and the Prowlers won.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, after watching No. 1-seeded Roseau, No. 2-seeded Lake of the Woods and No. 4-seeded Bemidji fall from the first round, is wary of the Lakers. "I thought they (DL) played very well," he said after Saturday's games. "Their key people played well for them. We'll have to be ready to play well if we expect to beat them."

North Half 8AA Girls Pairings

North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball coaches met Wednesday to seed teams and complete pairings for the 1983 tournament, which will be held at various sites this week.

And ironically, the four match-ups that were created all featured instant replays from the final week of regular season play.

Thief River Falls is paired against Fergus Falls tonight (Monday) to start post-season play. The Prowlers and Otters met here just last Tuesday, with Thief River Falls winning 65-60.

On Tuesday, Wadena plays Park Rapids, Moorhead meets Detroit Lakes and Crookston tackles East Grand Forks. Like Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls, each of those teams met just last week when Wadena beat Park Rapids 40-33, Moorhead defeated Detroit Lakes 56-50 and East Grand Forks upset Crookston 40-33.

Top-seeded Bemidji draws the Thief River Falls-Fergus Falls winner Tuesday.

+ Thief River Falls' Mitch Rustad, a junior on the University of North Dakota tennis team, began the 1983 season at No. 1 singles for the Sioux, who opened their schedule over the weekend with matches against Moorhead, St. Cloud and Creighton. SET UP IN front of Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin 1-on-1, Moorhead forward Jeff Falconer couldn't get a hold on the puck at his feet during the third period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinal game played at East Grand Forks. The Prowlers reached the semifinals with a 5-2 win over the Spuds.

Prowlers Beat Spuds 5-2 In Section 8 First Round

It wasn't anything too pretty, but Thief River Falls defeated Moorhead 5-2 Saturday to complete the first round quarterfinals in the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament being played at East Grand Forks.

Even though the Prowlers looked a little rough around the edges, they at least had a win to show for their efforts, something the other three seeded teams weren't able to accomplish.

Fergus Falls, the first place finisher in the final regular season Section 8 standings, fell to No. 8-seeded East Grand Forks 7-4 in the tournament opener Friday, with fourth place finisher Bemidji falling to No. 5-seeded Roseau 5-1 later that night. The trend continued Saturday when Lake of the Woods, runner-up in the regular season standings behind Fergus Falls, lost to No. 7-seeded Detroit Lakes 5-4.

Thief River Falls, the third place team, finally upheld the seeding system that gives the top four regular season finishers automatic berths into the Section 8 quarterfinals while the others qualify through sub-sectional play.

That sets the stage for the semifinals when defending champion East Grand Forks meets Roseau tonight (Monday) and Detroit Lakes challenges Thief River Falls Tuesday. Both games have 7:30 p.m. starting times. Winners will meet in Friday's 7:30 championship game.

Five different players scored as Thief River Falls beat Moorhead for the third time this season — Gary Cornell, Ryan Bakke, Tim Bottem, Tim Bergland and Jerry Hallamek. But even though the Prowlers had a decided territorial edge, it was a 1-1 tie after one period and stayed that way until Bakke and Bottem scored back-to-back goals in the second period.

"I didn't think we played as well as we can," admitted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "I think in the first period especially we showed signs of a week lay-off. I didn't feel we moved the puck particularly well. We maybe made the pass, but it was slower than what we would have liked, consequently we lost out on a number of scoring opportunities."

Cornell opened the scoring with a low slap shot from the point at 6:09 of the first period, but Moorhead's Jim Steen, who missed the entire regular season schedule because of an injury suffered in the preseason jamboree played here, tied it on a power play rebound off a scramble in front of Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin at 7:10.

Bakke was set up in front on a nice play by Steve Wiskow at 9:03 of the second period to break the tie — just seconds after sending a shot off the crossbar. Moments later Bottem scored on his own rebound in front of Moorhead sophomore goalie Chris Miller.

Fifteen seconds into a power play later in the period Bergland scored from in front to open up a 4-1 gap.

Moorhead hung close, though, when Steve Hartog scored on a tip-in just 1:19 into the third period, but Hallamek scored on a rebound at 9:08 to wrap it up.

The Prowlers, who beat the Spuds 5-1 and 8-3 during the regular season, had a 44-15 shots-on-goal average.

"We made some fundamental mistakes and gave them some goals," noted Moorhead coach Terry Shercliffe, "but we've got nothing to be ashamed of. We get kicked by them twice during the season, and tonight we were within 4-2 in the third period. I thought our goalie played well."

Thief River Falls' record climbed to 15-5-1, with Moorhead ending the year 3-20, only one of those wins coming during the regular season.

LHS Girls Play Otters In Tournament Opener

Thief River Falls visits Fergus Falls tonight (Monday) to kick off the 1983 North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament.

A coaches' seeding meeting was held Wednesday, with Bemidji getting the No. 1 draw, followed by No. 2 — Moorhead; No. 3 — Crookston; No. 4 — Wadena; No. 5 — Park Rapids; No. 6 — East Grand Forks; No. 7 — Detroit Lakes; No. 8 — Fergus Falls; and No. 9 — Thief River Falls.

Tonight's Thief River Falls-Fergus Falls game will round out an eight-team field for Tuesday's quarterfinals, being played at the site of the top four seeded teams.

Tuesday's match-ups will have the Thief River Falls-Fergus Falls winner at Bemidji; Park Rapids at Wadena; Detroit Lakes at Moorhead; and East Grand Forks at Crookston.

Semifinals will be played Thursday at the two sites of the highest seeded quarterfinals survivors, with a lower seeded team inheriting the higher seeded berth in case of an upset. Championship game will be played Saturday at a neutral site. All games start at 7:30 p.m.

The North Half Region 8AA winner will face the South Half representative in the state tournament-qualifying Region 8AA championship game Fri., March 11, at the site of the South Half winner.

Thief River Falls finished its 1982-83 regular season schedule last Tuesday with a 65-60 home court win over the same Fergus Falls team the Prowlers face in tonight's tournament opener. That victory snapped a prolonged 12-game losing streak for the Prowlers, who will go into tonight's game with a 3-13 record.

Prospects of facing Fergus Falls, then meeting top-ranked Bemidji Tuesday if they should win tonight doesn't worry the Prowlers as much as the back-to-back road games, regardless of the opposition, according to head coach Tom Schafer. "That's going to be tough," he admitted.

Despite the record, Schafer figures the Prowlers can compete on even terms with anyone in the tournament. "All year long we've been in just about every game," he pointed out.

His line-up will remain intact, with junior Paula Wilkens and sophomore Michelle Olson at the guards; seniors Paula Meyers and Lynne Culkins at forwards; and senior Pia Tymberg, a froeign exchange student from Sweden, at center.

EAST GRAND FORKS center Dale Johnson was whistled for his fourth personal foul on this play as he tried to block a shot by Thief River Falls center Randy Naeseth in the third quarter of Friday's high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. Getting into position under the basket for a rebound were Warren Menge and John Miller of East Grand Forks, along with Jeff Hamerlinck of Thief River Falls. The Green Wave routed the Prowlers 67-38.

Prowlers Lose To Wave 67-38

East Grand Forks, eyes firmly fixed on a No. 1 seed in the upcoming North Half Region 8AA high school basketball tournament, was assured of at least one first place vote Friday after the Green Wave routed Thief River Falls 67-38.

"They're No. 1," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We would have had to play a super game just to stay with them. We obviously didn't have a very good game. It was the poorest we've played in two months."

"It would be nice," said East Grand Forks coach Ray Stinar, speaking of the possibility of gaining that top tournament spot. "I'd like to think we'd have a shot at it, but you never know how those things will turn out. I think Tom will vote for us."

It was no contest. East Grand Forks bolted in front 10-0 in the first 4:22, led at one point 18-2 and then 22-4 when the first quarter ended.

Trailing 32-4, Thief River Falls nearly doubled its offensive output on a three-point play by forward Mark Gere with 4:13 remaining in the first half after the Prowlers' offense had only a pair of field goals to show for nearly 12 minutes of basketball. East Grand Forks, meanwhile, effectively worked the ball inside to 6-6 Dale Johnson and 6-3 John Miller for a bundle of easy points.

East Grand Forks built a 29-point, 38-9 spread before settling for a 38-13 halftime cushion. Both sides substituted freely in the first half — Thief River Falls out of frustration; East Grand Fors as a luxury.

Thief River Falls still trailed by 27, 52-25, at the end of the third quarter. Biggest gap was 35 points — 64-29 with 3:13 remaining in the game.

Miller had 16 points and Johnson 14 for the Green Wave, 11-6 overall after a pair of close losses to area Class A powers Warren and Fosston in recent back-to-back games. East Grand Forks is 5-1 against North Half Region 8AA opposition, losing only to Bemidji, a team Thief River Falls beat twice this winter. Gere led the Prowlers with 11 points.

"We played well tonight," acknowledged Stinar. "The kids were hungry. This was a big game for us. It's probably the best we've played in our last four games. We went to the basket and we played aggressive defense."

East Grand Forks shot 44 per cent from the field (26-for-59) and 65 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-23). Thief River Falls shot only 30 per cent from the floor (14-for-47) and 50 per cent at the line (10-for-20). The Green Wave accumulated a huge 40-15 rebound advantage, getting 16 of those on the offensive boards. Play was ragged at times when the game got out of hand and the result was 23 turnovers for the Prowlers and 19 for the Green Wave.

"This was a good win for us," mentioned Stinar. "We've always had trouble playing here," he said, apparently knowing it was just the second East Grand Forks win at Thief River Falls over the last seven years.

Thief River Falls, 7-10 for the year and 3-7 against North Half Region 8AA teams, will close out its 1982-83 season Friday at home against Warren.

Northmen Top Royals For Third At State Basketball Tournament

A third place game at the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state basketball tournament, matching the previous night's semifinal losers, isn't always something to write home about. Most cases you're still bummed out from the loss less than 24 hours earlier that took away the state championship dreams teams bring into the tournament.

But Saaturday afternoon the Northland community college basketball team collected a third place trophy that meant almost as much to the Northmen as a state title since the 88-70 victory came against long-time tournament nemisis Golden Valley Lutheran, the pre-tournament favorite at the Normandale community college gym in Bloomington.

The Royals, a perennial power, were unbeaten as champion of the always-strong Central Division this winter. They brushed off Willmar 87-73 in Thursday's opening round quarterfinals, but then dropped an 87-78 decision to Northwest Division champion Fergus Falls in Friday's semifinals to fall into the third place game.

Northwest Division runner-up Northland, after beating Northeast Division champion Vermilion 76-73 in the quarterfinals, lost to eventual state champion Rochester 115-87 in the semifinals. The Yellowjackets beat Fergus Falls 106-89 in the title game.

Northland bounced back, though, to beat Golden Valley Lutheran for the first time ever, finishing the 1982-83 season with an 18-4 overall record.

"Actually we played well," said Northland coach Chet Engelman after the tournament was completed. "We had a very poor first half against Vermilion; we were embarrassing ourselves. But we kept our composure and we came back. Rochester just hammered us; we just plain got beat. But we hammered Golden Valley, and that's worth quite a bit. It was very enjoyable. We picked them apart. We beat them at everything we did. We wanted them badly. We embarrassed them. They had more talent than any team in the tournament, but they were lazy. Our kids played stronger and stronger as the game went along. It was very satisfying."

"No question, Rochester played the best basketball in the tournament, they deserved to win," he added. "The tournament actually finished just the way it should have, with Rochester No. 1; Fergus Falls No. 2; and Northland No. 3."

MCCC Results

Northland .... 76 Vermilion 73

Northland overcame a poor first half showing in a come-from-behind 76-73 win over Vermilion to open the tournament Thursday afternoon.

Vermilion, beaten by Northland 93-88 during the regular season, led 24-14 midway through the first half and led by as much as 13 on three occasions, including 36-23 with 4:24 remaining, before Northland managed to cut the deficit to 38-31 at intermission.

With 9:07 remaining in the game Vermilion still sat on a 57-52 lead, but that's when the Ironmen lost 6-8 John Podominick, who scored 24 points, with five fouls. Four minutes later Northland had a 63-63 tie and with 1:57 left, Kyle Ramsey of the Northmen hit a basket for a 57-55 lead. They held the ball after that and settled for nine free throws the rest of the way to win it.

Nordics End Frustrating Season With 7-11 Record

A disappointing 1982-83 regular season schedule ended on another disappointing note for the Marshall County Central high school basketball team Friday as the Nordics lost a one-sided 58-33 home court decision to Hallock.

Marshall County Central ended the schedule 7-11, including four straight losses over the final two weeks. It's only the second losing season experienced by coach Ron Ueland in 17 years at Newfolden, and the first time he's seen the Nordics lose four-in-a-row.

"It's frustrating," he sighed. "The kids are frustrated, and so am I. We wanted to gain a little momentum this time of the year." Obviously they weren't able to accomplish that goal.

Hallock used an accurate shooting eye to win Friday, hitting 18 of 31 field goals attempts (58 per cent) and 22 of 25 free throw tires (88 per cent). Marshall County Central, on the other hand, was only 16-for-46 from the field (35 per cent) and a less-productive 1-for-2 at the line.

"We committed too many fouls," acknowledged Ueland.

Hallock led at the quarter stops 16-10, 32-17 and 42-29. Jon Bloomquist led the Bears with a big 30-point night. Todd Johnson added 12, including 10 free throws. No Marshall County Central scorer hit double figures.

The Bears had a 25-16 edge on the boards and topped the turnover charts 14-13.

Goodridge .... 72 Climax 42

Goodridge completed its regular season schedule Friday with a 72-42 win at Climax as the Huskies improved their record to 10-8.

"I was really happy with the way everybody played," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "It was probably one of the best games we've played all year. We played with intensity."

Goodridge had quarter leads of 20-8, 40-19 and 50-29.

Darin Easthouse had 24 points to lead the Huskies, with Ross Parnow getting 16 and Jeff Langan 14. Wayne Iddings scored 12 points for the Vikings.

Goodridge shot 47 per cent from the field (29-for-62) and 89 per cent from the free throw line (16-for-18). Climax shot 30 per cent from the field (17-for-56) and 73 per cent at the line (8-for-11). Goodridge had a big 39-16 rebound advantage, with Climax topping the turnover figures 22-17.

"We played real well," said Grygla coach Vern Johnson, who had special praise for Irlbeck, who scored 11 points — bettering his entire season's out-put to that point. Mike Brateng had 25 points to lead the Eagles, who finished their regular season schedule with a 7-11 record.

Duck Numbers Will Be Hurt By Less Snow

Because water is life to North America's wild waterfowl, the current lack of snow across Canada's important prairie breeding grounds is diminishing hope for any substantial improvement in nesting conditions for returning birds come spring, according to Ducks Unlimited biologists in Canada.

Concern over water on Canada's prairies arises out of the fact that, during a normal year, this region accounts for nearly 50 per cent of the continent's total waterfowl production. At the present time, snowpack on the important breeding wetlands of southern Manitoba, southeastern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta remains below normal. Land throughout most of southern Alberta lies almost completely exposed, enabling precious soil moisture to evaporate.

Most groundwater supplies in Canada's waterfowl incubators — called the prairie potholes — are ample. But without a substantial blanket of snow the soil moisture will be sucked from the land by prairie winds. As a result, when the spring rains arrive, they will be largely absorbed — the way a dry sponge absorbs water — without letting it run off into the ponds, potholes and marshes where it will do waterfowl the most good.

"With generally improved soil moisture conditions over the drought years of 1980 and 1981," says Sandy Macaulay, DU Canada biologist, "there is still reason for guarded optimism; but, once again, we are in a position of having to count on late winter storms, a quick runoff and spring rains if breeding conditions in western Canada are going to improve over 1982."

Ducks Unlimited, the world's largest waterfowl conservation organization, has just completed another record fund-raising year with more than $34.7 million raised.

"A lot of people say that, considering the economy, our dollar growth was rather remarkable," says Dale E. Whitesell, DU Executive Vice-President. "But we don't make excuses because excuses don't raise any ducks. We expect to exceed $40 million this year."

According to a recent Simmons Study, the more than 500,000 readers of Ducks Unlimited magazine have a median age of 38 and a median household income of $37,700. Nearly 45 per cent graduated from college.

Eighty-four per cent said they went fishing, 58 per cent said they went camping and 86 per cent said they went hunting in the last 12 months.

Speed of a duck's flight depends on two factors — its ability to fly through the air by its own exertions and the influence of the wind.

For most ducks, ordinary flight is around 40-50 mph. They can add an additional 10-15 mph when danger forces them to turn on the afterburners. Contrary to popular opinion, mallard and pintail are faster than teal.

Canvasback, sometimes called the "king of ducks", have been clocked at 72 mph. Thus, a canvasback who was really in a hurry with a 30 mph wind at its tail could be capable of better than 100 mph.

And that, as they say, is really flying.

Last Herd Of Caribou In U.S. Is Endangered

Last herd of woodland caribou still occurring in the United States outside of Alaska, Idaho's southern Selkirk Mountain herd, will be added to the endangered species list under an emergency rule, Interior Secretary James Watt has announced.

"Listing the Caribou as endangered has been under consideration for nearly 10 years," Watt said, "but no action to protect the species was taken by previous administrations."

Only 13 to 20 animals survive in the population in Washington, Idaho, and southern British Columbia, making the woodland caribou the most critically endangered mammal in the "Lower 48."

The caribou occur primarily on national forest lands administered by the U.S. Forest Service, which has taken necessary steps to protect the Caribou's habitat. The population is threatened by poaching, wildfire and collisions with vehicles. Poachers killed at least one animal from the herd annually from 1980 through 1982. Calf survival is low, possible due to inbreeding in the small herd, and the herd is not being replenished by the immigration of woodland caribou from other populations in Canada, which also have been declining.

Woodland caribou (a different subspecies from the caribou of northern Alaska) once occupied nearly the entire forested region from southeastern Alaska and British Columbia to Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. In the "Lower 48," they were found in Washington, Idaho, Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. Largely because of illegal hunting and massive habitat alteration, caribou disappeared from New England by about 1908 and from the Great Lakes States by 1940. Woodland caribou populations in Alaska and Canada are not presently considered to be endangered or threatened.

Southern Selkirk Mountain herd is eligible for protection under a provision of the Endangered Species Act that provides for listing of a "distinct population" of a vertebrate species that is endangered or threatened in a particular area, even though the species may be more numerous elsewhere.

Listing of the woodland caribou as "endangered" should improve coordination and management of federal agency actions that could affect the herd, facilitate international cooperation on the caribou's behalf, and provide for development of a caribou recovery plan that spells out actions that need to be taken to conserve the caribou.

The listing will also provide additional federal law enforcement protection for the herd. Poachers will be subject to penalties under the Endangered Species Act, which can range up to $20,000 in fines, one year in prison and forfeiture of vehicles and equipment used in the violation.

The emergency rule protects the caribou as "endangered" for 240 days, during which time the Fish and Wildlife Service intends to propose permanent endangered status for this population. No critical habitat was designated for the caribou under the emergency rule.

THERE WERE A lot of black Moorhead uniforms in front of Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin in the first period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinal game, and the result was a goal by the Spuds' Jim Steen (21) that tied the game 1-1. Thief River Falls defenseman Brian Johnsson (2) tried to help out on the play as Wollin got tangled up with a player in front of the net. Todd Schuler (29) of Moorhead was also looking for the puck. National Wildlife Federation News Release

With federal budget cuts threatening the enforcement of environmental laws, the nation's natural resources are struggling to hold their ground, according to seven environmental indicators in the National Wildlife Federation's 1983 Environmental Quality Index.

According to the 15th annual index, resource conditions either remained the same or worsened during 1982. Those that worsened, according to the index, include water resources, soil resources and living space.

The index, published in the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication, National Wildlife, is an analysis of the state of the nation's natural resources. The information included in each section is based on personal interviews, news reports and the most recent scientific studies. The judgments on resources trends represent the collective thinking of the editors and resource experts on the National Wildlife Federation staff.

According to the NWF, the last time an improvement registered on the index was during 1979, when air quality began to show the effects of 1970's Clean Air Act — a law that Congress is considering for reauthorization this year. Air quality is the only indicator that has improved since 1970. "Legislatively, we haven't accomplished all that we wanted, but we've done a lot more than we expected," said Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice President of the National Wildlife Federation.

During 1982, the Endangered Species Act was reauthorized by Congress; lawmakers also passed a major law protecting coastal barrier islands, and overwhelmingly opposed an Interior Department plan to expand energy development and mineral leasing in most wilderness areas.

During the same year, however, the budget of the Environmental Protection Agency was cut by more than a third and its staff was reduced by a fourth according to National Wildlife. Conservationists became increasingly worried that these budget and personnel cutbacks were undermining the ability of the federal government to enforce environmental laws.

Details in the Environmental Quality Index include:

Wildlife: Conditions remained the same as in 1981. In the same year that Congress reauthorized a strong Endangered Species Act, the Army Corps of Engineers sought to weaken the laws that protect wetland habitat. Chemical contamination threatened wildlife as scientists found high levels of endrin in waterfowl and upland birds, and PCBs and other potential deadly substances in fish.

Air: (Same conditions). In 23 cities, six years of pollution controls have cut by 39 per cent the number of days when breathing was unhealthy. In Congress, however, no compromise on the reauthorization of the Clean Air Act has been reached, and battle lines are drawn over the cost of clean air, and whether the federal government should be the regulator. Acid rain, according to the scientists, continues to be responsible for killing fish in thousands of lakes, damaging forests and threatening human health, yet appeals to the Reagan Administration for the controls on the emissions that cause it to fall on deaf ears.

Water: (Worse conditions) Federal funds to build and upgrade sewage treatment plants have been cut, and 37 states report they won't be able to meet the Clean Water Act's goal of "fishable and swimmable" waters by 1983. The controversy over ocean dumping continues, and the National Wildlife Federation has sued six municipalities that are dumping contaminated sludge in the Atlantic Ocean.

Living space: (Worse conditions). With the administration favoring land sales in an attempt to reduce the budget deficit, parkland acquisitions were curtailed drastically in 1982, and development around park boundaries continued to threaten the air and water quality inside those reserves.

Minerals: (Same conditions) With home heating oil plentiful at prices holding with the previous year, the Interior Department stages the biggest coal leasing sale ever in the Powder River Basin of Montana and Wyoming, and announced a plan to offer oil and gas leases through one billion acres of the outer continental shelf.

Soil: (Worse conditions) America is in the midst of an erosion crisis, with fertile topsoil being washed or blown off farmland at the rate of 5.3 million tons a year. In June, however, the Farmland Protection Policy Act went into effect, directing all federal agencies to minimize development on cropland.

Forests: (Same conditions) Although the faltering economy kept demand for forest products at near record lows, the Agriculture Department argued for greater productivity from national forests and public lands.

A free reprint of the environmental quality index is available from the National Wildlife Federation; additional copies, from 2 to 100, are 35 cents each and 25 cents a piece for more than 100 copies. Write to Educational Services, National Wildlife Federation 1412 16th St. NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Special Fund For Highways Moves Ahead

"The spirit of cooperation that exists this year between the state legislature and the Governor's office is extremely encouraging," according to Bob Johnson, executive director of Minnesota good roads. Johnson made the statement following a special highway funding briefing by the Minnesota department of transportation in St. Paul last weekend. "Nearly everyone," says Johnson, "now seems convinced that Minnesota's tremendous investment in its highway system is being threatened by deterioration, and wants to get on with the job."

Richard Braun, the commissioner of the department of transportation, told the conference while the actual miles traveled on our state highways is expected to remain the same, the fuel-efficient automobiles in use today has caused a drop in revenues from the gas tax. "Still," he said, "the need remains the same." Braun also pointed out that for every mile per gallon drivers gain through this new efficiency, the state can count on one cent less in actual gas tax revenue.

As a result, the Governor's office, the Minnesota house of representatives, and the Minnesota senate are all proposing legislation to increase the gasoline tax by five cents a gallon over the next two years. Johnson says the tax increase is needed badly. "Not only will the increased revenue allow the department of transportation to repair our vast highway system," says Johnson, "it is also a needed investment in our faltering economy." Experts indicate each million dollars spent on road construction or maintenance results in the creation of 42 highway construction jobs. The Minnesota good roads official says thousands of new jobs would be created by the money raised by the increased gas tax.

Keith Ford, an aide to Governor Rudy Perpich, told the briefing the increased funding "is a major and integral part" of the Governor's program. Two bills being considered by the house and senate would raise the gas tax two cents this year and another three cents in 1984. Governor has indicated he would like the tax raised three cents this year and two cents in 1984. Further, the Governor supports a provision of the bills to exempt gasahol from the tax increase. Ford says "he believes it will encourage farm product usage, and" he added, "the exemption is a tax loophole for those who want to avoid paying the additional five cent tax."

A bill being considered by a house committee this week would provide $417,000,000 for 66 specific construction projects through a four year bonding program, and would increase the gas tax five cents over the next two years. Senate bill, authorized by DFL Senator Clarence Purfeerst of Faribault, would also increase the gas tax by five cents over the next two years, and would allow the sale of $58,000,000 in bond sales which have already been authorized as trunk highway bonds. Purfeerst bill does not include specific programs. Ford says the Governor supports the Senate version of the bill.

Johnson says he is certain, because of the nature of the support in both the house and senate, that the Minnesota legislature will be able to agree on legislation that is acceptable to the Governor and that it will insure that Minnesota's roads are maintained at an acceptable level.

"We're told," says Johnson, "that 40 per cent of Minnesota's roads are in only fair to poor condition. This gas tax increase is absolutely necessary to bring those roads up to the condition Minnesota drivers deserve." The Minnesota Good Roads executive is asking his organization's members and all Minnesotans to contact their legislators, and urge them to support the legislative efforts to provide more highway funding.

Wheat Growers Assisting In Food Program

At the request of a number of Minnesota farmers, the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers has established the wheat growers flour fund, to accept donations and to provide flour to the Foodshare program, the month-long emergency food drive to help the unemployed in the Twin Cities metropolitan area and on the Iron Range.

According to Harry Howard of Warren, president of the Minnesota Wheat Growers, the idea for the flour fund originated with a number of wheat growers, who wanted to donate wheat and have it milled into flour to place on the emergency food shelves in the state. To avoid the cost and the logistical problems associated with the collection and transportation of many smaller parcels of wheat, it was decided that any farmer wishing to donate to the flour donation program should sell to his local elevator, whatever amount of wheat he wishes to donate, and have the check issued to the wheat grower flour fund. Checks should be sent to the Minnesota wheat growers office in Red Lake Falls, MN.

According to Howard, International Multifoods Corp. has agreed to sell a like amount of wheat in the form of bagged flour from their new mill in New Prague, at the price of only the wheat used, thereby absorbing the milling costs themselves. Bemis, Inc., also of Minneapolis, is donating the special 10-pound bags for packaging the flour. Howard said that by following this method, it will also give those producers who are not in a position to sell wheat, and others who wish to make a tax deductable contribution, the opportunity to donate to the fund in the form of a check, also made out the wheat grower flour fund. This money, too, will purchase the wheat equivalent in flour for the Foodshare program. Wheat growers hope to have all donations in by February 15, in order to complete the Foodshare program in a timely manner.

"Farmers and the city workers share the burden of the depressed economy," Howard stated. "Although farmers are only three per cent of the population, when you consider all of the people who make their living from agriculture, including those who mine the ore, make the steel, manufacture and sell the machinery and other inputs for the farming operation and those who process and sell the food and clothing that is produced in raw form on our farms, agriculture really provides about 25 per cent of the jobs in the United States. Therefore, when farmers have to cut back on their input and machinery purchases because of low commodity prices, it affects the entire industry," he said.

"We believe that all of these people who rely on agriculture for their livelihood must stick together," Howard concluded, "and although farmers are enduring very depressed conditions, many still want to share what they have with other Minnesotans who are less fortunate."

Any wheat producers or others wishing to contribute to the flour donation program, may receive more information by calling the Wheat Growers office in Red Lake Falls toll free, 1-800-242-6118.

Survival Rate For All Cancer Patients Rises

New statistics from the National Cancer institute indicate that the five-year survival rate for all cancer patients is 46 per cent, and a more optimistic calculation, based on the same data, is 49 per cent five-year survival.

"This is good news, indeed," said Arnt Aune, president of the American Cancer society's Pennington unit. "In the early 1900's, few cancer patients could expect to survive. In the 30's, only one in four survived and in the 60's, one in three. We are definitely making progress in the war against cancer."

Aune attributed the rising survival rates to progress in cancer treatment and new knowledge of cancer presention and detection early enough for cure.

"Cancer research is paying off," he said, "and as new answers are being found, it is vital that we continue to support research and also disseminate the new knowledge that exists about how to prevent cancer and how it can be detected early enough for successful treatment."

Aune added that American Cancer soceity volunteers raise significant funds each year for cancer research and also conduct important cancer education programs. He invites any interested persons to call him at 681-4601 to see how they can help the society's cancer-fighting programs.

Drug Abuse In Teens Examined By PTA Today

High incidence of adolescent drug abuse today is primarily due to the increasingly low age at which children are becoming involved with drugs, reports one article in the February issue of "PTA Today," the National PTA's magazine.

Authors Kevin McEneaney, director, and Paul Fishbein, training coordinator, drug abuse prevention and education unit, Phoenix House Foundation, Inc., New York City, cite the following statistics: Almost one-third of today's high school seniors first used marijuana before entering high school, many of them between the ages of 12 and 14, while use of other, harder drugs such as cocaine and sedatives is on the rise. In addition, 75 per cent of America's youth have used alcohol by the age of 16. Roughly one-third have used alcohol by the age of 13.

"Early adolescence is a time when children are particularly vulnerable to drugs," according to the authors. "Ready availability of drugs in almost every community offers these youngsters the means to escape, to experience new thrills, and to join a closely knit group of other users." Further, many professionals consider alcohol and marijuana to be "gateway" drugs — drugs which introduce youngsters to an environment in which other, harder drugs are available.

Youngsters' perceptions of society's attitude toward drugs is another factor contributing to adolescent drug abuse, according to McEneaney and Fishbein. Decriminalization of marijuana has contributed to a climate that encourages drug abuse (27 million American use marijuana — more than twice as many as ten years ago.) Existence of "head shops" where drug paraphernalia are sold reinforces the message that drug use is "socially acceptable."

According to McEneaney and Fishbein, parents, as the primary preventors of drug abuse, must develop in their children an early resistance to experimentation with drugs. As rule setters, they must draw lines, determining curfews, hours for study, assigning chores, and setting standards for behavior. They must become informed about drugs and signs of drug use (sudden drop in school performance, lethargy, red eyes, staggering gait, slurred words, unexplained weight loss or gain, sudden avoidance of old friends, secretiveness.) And they must devote more time to real communication with their children — finding out how their children feel and what is important to them.

Land O'Lakes '82 Sales Reach A New High

Land O'Lakes, Inc., a farm supply and food marketing cooperative based in Arden Hills, reported record high sales in 1982 of nearly $3.8 billion, a nine per cent increase over 1981. Margins, however, suffered from the prolonged economic downturn in agriculture. The cooperative announced a loss from operations of $19.2 million.

Sales increase was primarily due to the January 1, 1982 merger of Midland cooperatives with Land O'Lakes which consolidated marketing strengths and positioned Land O'Lakes for better service to members in the future.

During 1982, cash payments of $8.9 million were made to members on prior years' allocated patronage and estate redemptions, "confirming Land O'Lakes' continued dedication to the improvement of farmers' income," according to Rolf Haugen, Group Vice President, Finance.

Yearly financial report was made to Land O'Lakes' membership February 22, the opening day of the cooperative's three day annual meeting at the Minneapolis auditorium. Approximately 4,500 farmer-owners and managers of member cooperatives from eight midwest states attended the meeting.

Land O'Lakes, with assets of $792 million is owned by 1,260 member cooperatives and 15,891 individual farmer stockholders. Over the past 10 years, it has returned in cash to its member-owners nearly $122 million.

Agriculture Week Set For March 18-24

"Agriculture day" has been set for March 21, the first day of spring. It is also the midpoint of agriculture week, which runs from Friday, March 18, through Thursday, March 24.

This annual observance is a community-oriented occasion, endorsed by Congress and the President as an official national observance. It was set aside 10 years ago to celebrate United States agriculture's contributions to the economy and to explain the complexities of a system on which one of every five American jobs depends. Millions of Americans in cities, suburbs and towns all across the country will observe ag day.

Theme of the 1983 observance is: "Agriculture — America's Heartbeat.

This is an occasion to remind other Americans of the strength of agriculture and its dramatic leadership role in the United States economy.

+ Our nation's number one industry — With assets of $1.1 trillion equal to 88 per cent of the capital assets of all manufacturing corporations in the United States.

+ Our nation's number one employer — With 23 million people employed in the food and fiber system.

+ Our nation's number one inflation fighter — with each farmer producing enough food and fiber for 76 persons.

+ Our nation's number one exporter — About $40 billion in 1982 and with every additional $1 billion in farm exports, about 31,600 jobs are created.

Every citizen has a personal stake in keeping agriculture's heartbeat strong. Help celebrate ag day in your community on March 21, 1983.

16 Million New Jobs Needed In Next 7 Years

When the economic recovery gets in full swing, employment may move up faster than many believe.

According to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, an estimated 16 million new jobs will be needed in the next seven years to eliminate the current bulge in unemployment, to absorb new entrants into the job market and to assist disadvantaged and unskilled workers to find jobs.

In the chamber's view, the jobs can be achieved based on statistics of the recovery from the 1974-75 recession. In that recession, employment bottomed out at 85.2 million in March, 1975. In the first two years of recovery, employment increased to 90.8 million. This was an increase of 5.7 million jobs, or an average of 234,000 jobs per month.

By May, 1981, employment has risen to over 101 million, an increase of 15.9 million jobs in a little over six years.

Si And Marge Hanson Are Co. Farmer, Homemaker

A rural Thief River Falls farm couple who agree that the best crop they ever raised was their two children has been selected as Pennington county's valley farmer and homemaker for 1983. Mr. and Mrs. Si Hanson accepted the award plaque last Tuesday at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston.

The Hansons were married in 1947 and since that time have lived in the Thief River Falls community where Si was born and raised, and where he began farming with his father in 1942. Both have been active in community business and organizations for a number of years.

Now semi-retired, the Hansons have leased their 640-acre farm east of Thief River Falls to their son-in-law and daughter, Mark and Linnae Enge. Si continues to operate the insurance agency which he and Marge formed a dozen years ago.

In addition to farming, the Hansons have been involved in several other business ventures. Marge was deputy registrar of motor vehicles for 12 years from 1959 to 1971 and they were involved in a sunflower handling operation for a short time during the early years of sunflower development in this area.

Their farm operation included raising of registered Hereford cattle for a number of years, as well as production of registered and certified wheat, barley and sunflowers. Si was among the first to participate when sunflowers were introduced as a crop in the Thief River Falls area.

The Hanson trace their agricultural interests back to their 4-H club experiences as youngsters. Si carried projects in beef and agronomy while Marge was active in areas of home beautification, baking and health and safety. Later they became active supporters of the 4-H club program and both of their children — Ross and Linnae — were active 4-H club members.

Involvement in community activities seemed second nature to the Hansons. Si was a member of the Consumers Cooperative board of directors for 20 years and served on the board of Midland Cooperatives for 11 years. He was vice president of that major regional farm cooperative until its merger with Land O' Lakes cooperative on Jan. 1, 1982.

A clerk of Silverton township for many years, he also was a founder and charter of the Pennington county township officers association. He served on the Silverton Lutheran church board, rural school board, Pennington soil and water conservation district board, and was among the main supporters and a former director of the Red River Valley winter shows.

Si and Marge were active in the reorganization of the Pennington county fair when a new organization was formed to assume ownership from the former Pennington county agricultural society. They are charter members of the present association which operates the county fair in Thief River Falls each year.

HONORED COUPLE at the Red River Valley winter shows were Mr. and Mrs. Silas Hanson of rural Thief River Falls, selected as Pennington county farmer and homemaker of 1983. The Hansons have farmed in this community since their marriage in 1947 and have been active in a number of community organizations and events.

County Road Restrictions To Start March 7

Effective date of road restrictions on all Pennington county roads has been set at March 7, according to Wes Gjovik, Pennington county highway engineer. Limits are based on gross axle weights which include the weight of the vehicle and the load it is carrying.

No permits for overweight axle loads exceeding the posted weights will be issued during the period when the signs are in place or while road restrictions are in effect, Gjovik said.

During the period when signs are in place or road restrictions are in effect — approximately March 7 to May 15 — any county or township road is restricted to five tons gross weight per axle except as otherwise signed. If no signs are erected, the five-ton gross weight provisions shall apply.

Roads posted for seven tons gross weight per axle include CSAH 3 from highway 59 east to CSAH 25; CSAH 7 from highway 39 east to CSAH 22; CSAH 28 from highway 1 north to the Pennington county line; CSAH 17 from CSAH 3 south to the Red Lake county line; CSAH 23 from CSAH 3 south to the Red Lake county line; and CSAH 24 from CSAH 3 north to highway 1.

Posted for six tons gross weight per axle will be CSAH 12 from CSAH 3 south to the Red Lake county line.

Roads which can carry a legal axle load of nine tons and therefore will not be posted include CSAH 17 from First street in the city of Thief River Falls south to CSAH 3, and CSAH 3 from highway 59 west to the Polk county line.

"Because of the high cost of maintaining our county roads and the shortage of funds available, the Pennington county sheriff's department will be implementing an intensive program to weigh vehicles on our county road system with portable scales," Gjovik noted.

Officials Say Arctco Dealer Response Good

Officials of Arctco, Inc., of Thief River Falls continue optimistic about response from dealers to their plan to build approximately 2,000 Arctic Cat snowmobiles in Thief River Falls later this year.

Bill Ness said that the newly-formed company has continued to contact dealers and receive telephone commitments. Secured orders with letters of credit from banks have also been received with increasing frequency but the process is taking more time than had been anticipated, Ness said.

Arctco informed about 1,100 dealers two weeks ago that the company would manufacture only to order with delivery guaranteed by December of 1983. Two models, the Panther and El Tigre, will be produced. Letters of credit must accompany the orders, and Ness said that provision has slowed the process.

4-H Favorite Food Show Set For Saturday

Members will be judged on their food knowledge, nutrition knowledge and the food itself. Each 4-Her will receive a participation prize. Public is invited to walk through the Mall on Saturday and see what the 4-Hers have made.

Broten Pleads Not Guilty To Roseau Charges

This week's issue of the Roseau Times-Region reports that Gordon Broten, 38, Roseau, entered pleas of not guilty to eight charges before Judge Warren Saetre in Roseau county district court Thursday.

Broten is charged with three counts of arson, four of burglary and one of criminal damage to property. Charges result from burning of the Times-Region building, fires in attorney Martin Berg's office and Nelson's cafe, burglaries in Berg's office, the Times-Region, Nelson's cafe and R & H Shoes and criminal damage to properties of Larry Rose, Marshall Thorkelson, Gerry Schiltz and Martin Berg.

Attorney Dennis Murphy is representing Broten and in response to questions by Judge Saetre indicated he had no objection to the legal sufficiency of each charge nor to the jurisdiction of the court in the case.

Bail was continued at $100,000 and Broten remains in custody.

School To Borrow Cash Flow Funds

In an effort to ease the cash flow problem which is expected later this spring, the Thief River Falls board of education Monday night authorized the sale of $1,540,000 in tax anticipation certificates. Bids will be received until 4:30 p.m. on March 14 for reading at the regular meeting that evening.

Sale of the anticipation certificates will give the school district cash to use during the heavy expenditure period of the year and is also expected to result in a net gain for the district of approximately $25,000. The certificates will be pledged to be paid from local tax receipts, and will be paid by the end of March, 1984, according to Harry Nelson, school district business manager.

Nelson said that the saving results from using cash borrowed by the district at an estimated 5.95 per cent interest rate (including financing costs) rather than borrowing from district funds through inter-fund transfer. The district funds would be invested at a rate near 8.45 per cent.

Evenson-Dodge bond consultant firm, which was approved by the board as consultant on the issue, had projected net cost of the sale of tax anticipation certificates would be $4,857 while the cost to the district by inter-fund borrowing would be in excess of $29,000.

Inter-fund borrowing has not been a common occurrence in previous year, Nelson said, but had been done occasionally during recent years when state aid payments were deferred or lowered, leaving local districts short of funds at critical times of the year.

Discussion of the 1982-83 expenditure budget was held and Supt. Robert Block suggested a number of budget areas to be frozen with any exceptions to be authorized through the superintendent. Budget line item adjustments will be submitted to the board for approval at a future meeting with no increase in the total expenditure budget.

Areas proposed for budget freeze included travel, public relations, laundry, custodial supplies, care of supplies and equipment, instructional supplies, textbooks, audio-visual aids and miscellaneous. Supt. Block expressed the opinion that this could result in a cut of approximately $40,000.

The superintendent also noted that the district still has $176,309 in the fuel budget, but has not received January and February fuel bills. There is an outside possibility, Supt. Block said, that there could be additional cost savings in fuel. Those savings would be in addition to a $40,000 to $50,000 adjustment made earlier due to energy efficiency.

Among information presented to the board on proposed cuts in the school district budget for the 1983-84 school year was an alternative for scheduling at Mark Twain elementary school. Rather than moving of all fifth grade sections in the district to Mark Twain, consideration is being given to adding a section to each grade level currently at the school.

Adding a section to each grade level would permit nearly all of the students from Knox elementary school to attend classes in the Mark Twain building. This would reduce the number of students who would have to be provided bus transportation to other schools in the community.

A resolution was approved by the board which sets forth the board's commitment to local control of each area vocational-technical institute. It also urged continuation of local governance in partnership with the state even if a new state board for vocational education is created.

Thief River Falls swim club's request for use of the Franklin school swimming pool was received but a decision delayed until information is available on what the program costs the district and if the club could defray those costs.

The board reached agreement on a contract settlement with Kay Fleegel, former food service supervisor, and accepted the resignation of Marla Jenson as library aide at Washington elementary school. Authorization was given to the administration to post for the equivalent of a one-third time or two- one-sixth time SLD positions at Franklin.

Acceptance was given to American Family life assurance company's offer to revise the life premium from 19 to 22 cents per $1,000 in order to extend coverage to people on disability.

Next meeting for the board will be Tuesday, March 8, when a public hearing on the proposed closing of Knox elementary school will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria. A general meeting of the board to discuss proposed budget cuts will follow the hearing. Next regular meeting of the board is March 14.

Photographer Hopes To Show Other Side Of U.S.

Looking somewhat gnome-like behind a full beard and long hair, international photographer Georg Stark's appearance is not that of a man one would associate with the "jet set". Indeed, dressed in a wool sweater and a pair of corduroy pants, he looked a little like a "hippie," but his quick smile and twinkling eyes put me at ease almost immediately, as we were introduced by our hostess, Val Holmes.

Val explained that her husband had met Georg about five years ago in Calcutta, India, while visiting in the area where he had been stationed while in service. As he had described it, Georg had just walked up and asked if he could share their hotel room. While such a request might seem strange in this country, Georg noted that standards for accomodations in Calcutta are not quite the same as in this country. His request was honored, and the men soon became close friends.

Val added that since that first meeting, their daughter had spent time in Switzerland as a foreign exchange student and had been a guest of Georg and his wife while there. They have had exchange visits several times since. Val notes that Georg would be considered a fairly wealthy man in Switzerland and described his home as being very comfortable.

Georg has traveled all over the world in his quest for pictures, and notes that when he met Bill, he was in Calcutta taking pictures for a book on the markets of the world. He has had seven books published in Switzerland now, but he notes that he does not think of himself as an author. He prefers to describe himself as a collector, working as a commercial photographer because it allows him to do what he likes, which is taking pictures. He says he has a contract with an editor, which helps pay some of his expenses. When he has the pictures he needs to illustrate the idea he wants to portray in a book, he says he will seek a writer to help him put it together. Publishing is done with a grant from the Nestle Foundation.

Georg notes that publishing in Switzerland is a very expensive proposition, since the government requires that each book be printed in three different languages. With 65 per cent of the population

Pre-School Round-Up Here Meets With Success

Pre-school round-up conducted by School District 564 met with exceptional success last week with more than 90 per cent of four-year-olds in the district tested, according to Leo Ruberto, director of special education in the district. Participation last year was about 75 per cent.

Pictured here is Nicholas Stokke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stokke, responding to test questions asked by Janet Dostal, speech therapist.

The three-day program, conducted by classroom teachers and special education personnel from the district, included testing of five-year-olds missed last year or selected for follow-up testing on Wednesday. District 564 four-year-olds on Thursday and Plummer and Goodridge school district four-year-olds on Friday. Friday testing also included some Thief River Falls youngsters.

50th Anniversary Noted By Ernest Bjerkens

Approximately 100 relatives and friends gathered on Sunday, February 20, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bjerken on their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception at the Don Narverud home.

Hosting the reception were the couple's five children and their spouses: Carol and Don Narverud, Richard Bjerken, Wayne and Keren Bjerken, Larry and Barbara Bjerken, all of Thief River Falls, and Donna Thorson of Spokane, Wash.

For the occasion, Mrs. Bjerken's dress was reminiscent of her wedding dress 50 years ago. The couple's silk corsage and boutonniere were of yellow roses and white stephanotis.

The serving table, covered with a pale yellow cloth, was centered with a tiered anniversary cake decorated with yellow roses and topped with a gold 50th anniversary emblem.

Assisting in serving the reception were Mrs. Bjerken's sisters: Maurine Tinsley, Concord, Calif., who was at the coffee service; Violet Lindberg and Eileen Rhodegard of this city, who served punch, and cut and served the cake, respectively. At the guest book was Celeste Bjerken, a granddaughter.

In addition to local friends and relatives, well-wishers present were from Grand Forks, N.D., Santa Rosa, Calif.; Mahnomen, Pelican Rapids, Waubun, Roseau, Detroit Lakes, Minneapolis and Moorhead. The couple also received cards and gifts from friends and relatives in Seattle, Wash.; Reno, Nev.; Los Angeles and Alameda, Calif.; Rapid City, S.D.; Moline, Ill., and Eugene, Ore.; as well as a congratulatory message from President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan.

Following the reception, a buffet dinner was served to members of the immediate family. An informal program, given by the couple's children, followed. Included were the playing of cassette tapes extending greetings and well-wishes from those unable to attend.

Attending the dinner and program, in addition to the children and grandchildren were Maurine Tinsley, Violet Lindberg, Eileen Rhodegard, Kathryn and Stacey Porter, Roger and Evonne Knutson, Ronald and Judy Lindberg, Pauline, Jennifer and Kristi Lindberg and Mark Beedy.

speaking German, 30 per cent speaking French, and five per cent speaking Italian, he notes that the Italian edition is not very economical to print. With a shrug, he adds that in Switzerland, even the money is printed in three languages.

Publication of the first edition was $500,000 on the last book, with the lithography alone costing about $40,000. Cost of the books in Switzerland is approximately $7.50 each.

Although the books are not printed in English, if Georg's book on the U.S.A. which Val has a French edition of, is typical, words are almost superfluous. Pictures are beautiful, with their layout speaking volumes about this country without a word being written. Georg notes that out of 140 pages, 70 contain photographs. Printing is of a quality reminiscent of the Time-Life books or National Geographic. Georg said that he took nearly 20,000 pictures, which were reduced to about 200 for the book.

Georg says he likes to show people a different view of the world than they are normally exposed to in textbooks or newspapers. He notes that the concept for his books is like a magazine, with the pictures as important as the text. Although his books are somewhat like travel brochures, he notes that landscapes are secondary to people.

Somewhat wistfully, he says he fears that books are dying in popularity, due to the popularity of television. Yet, he notes that the television image is "gone after 10 minutes, but a book can be read again and again." He notes that for about 90 per cent of the people who buy one of his books, it will be their only book purchase in a year.

His book on the USA has a page which illustrates how an American mining company can build a town almost overnight, and he notes that Europeans think that Americans live a "strange style of life." By contrast, he says that the town of Horgen, where he lives, is 500 years old, and his house is 800 years old. "People in Switzerland have difficulty understanding that America is a continent and not just a country," he says. "The vastness of the United States and the pace of life here is very difficult for them to comprehend."

Georg says that Switzerland is approximately one-fourth the size of Minnesota. In order for someone to become a citizen of that country, he says they would first have to become a citizen of a city. With permission from the city, they could then become a citizen of a Kanton or state, and then a Swiss citizen.

Government there has no major party, and representatives belong to seven different parties. The president is primarily a diplomatic figure with no real power, and is changed every year.

Georg is currently in this country to do a book on the Mississippi River. He has already done books on the Danube river in Germany and the Thames in England, and says he has a concept of making a series of books on the rivers of the world. His book will not be strictly scenery, he says, but he hopes to show how life has developed and changed for the people and animals along the river. He says he is especially interested in learning about wild rice and meeting some Indian people to give the book a sense of history.

Since he plans to take pictures of the river from the source of the river at Itasca State Park, to New Orleans, and will be shooting in four different season, he notes that layout and design problems will be enormous, since the river must appear to flow in the same direction throughout the book. A tiny detail perhaps, but his attention to detail is reflected in his work.

Cruise Control Discouraged On Slippery Roads

Motorists who have vehicles equipped with speed-cruise control devices are advised by state patrol Chief Roger Ledding not to use them when driving on slippery ice or snow packed roads.

"Most, if not all, operator manuals that come with new cars warn against using speed control devices on slippery, wet, non-hard surfaces, or winding roads," said Ledding.

"I have had a number of state troopers who have investigated accidents this winter tell that many motorists involved have admitted they were using cruise control devices at the time of their accident," Ledding said. "This undoubtedly contributed to the accident because the operator was not in complete control of the vehicle and could not react properly to a skid situation."

Ledding advised motorists to decrease speed when icy or slippery conditions occur. Get the feel of the road and drive according to existing conditions and don't use a speed or cruise control device.

If a motorist should get into a skid situation, Ledding offered these tips:

With any vehicle skid, the main idea is to keep the rear of the vehicle from overtaking the front. To do this a driver must either slow the rear wheels somewhat (release pressure from the accelerator on a rear wheel drive car) or speed up the front wheels (maintain some power on front wheel drive vehicles to help pull the car straight) and turn the steering wheel in the direction the rear of the vehicle is skidding. If the brakes must be applied to stop, a driver should apply steady, gentle pressure just to the point where the wheels are ready to slide. If the wheels start to slide, immediately let off the brakes and again start applying gentle pressure.

CANDY-STRIPED uniforms of these eight girls identify them as teenage volunteers at Northwestern Hospital in Thief River Falls. During four nights of orientation, the girls, aged 14 to 18, were familiarized with various departments and routines in the hospital. They will now be assisting the nurses at the hospital in limited areas of patient care. Volunteering a minimum of two hours per week, the girls work toward goals of a patch at 50 hours, a cap at 100 hours, and a bar at 200 hours. From left to right, the volunteers are: (seated) Sherri Minar, Becky Voelk, Lorretta Mott, and Becky Ruud; (standing) Jill Johnson, Laura Dunning, Kellie Austad, Penny Bjerke and Instructor Sherry Mogen, LPN.

Si And Marge Hanson Earn Shows Honor

Si also served as chairman of the Pennington county seed and feed show, an early spring program for competitive exhibit of crops and forage as well as homemaker activities. The show was canceled one year following a poor crop year and then was discontinued due to lack of continuing interest.

Marge is a past president of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women (BPW) club and has been active in the Thief River Falls chapter of the federation of women's clubs and the Zehlian art group. She has chaired the annual art-in-the-park summer activity and worked on the membership committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce.

A past officer of the Silverton Lutheran ladies aid, she has also been on the Trinity Lutheran Church women board in Thief River Falls and on the youth board at Trinity. She has been a member of the Silverton homemakers club and says her role as a farm wife included such titles as truck driver, chore girl, parts-getter, yardman and related tasks.

Marge has also been the recipient of a National 4-H safety congress award in 1958 and 4-H alumni award in 1966.

The Hansons also did their bit for international relations, hosting a farm youth exchange student in 1966 and keeping in touch with him right up to the present time. They have met again several times in his home country as well as the United States.

The Hansons' son Ross lives at Waconia where he is a frozen food production manager for the Pillsbury company, previously serving in that capacity with the Green Giant company before it was purchased by Pillsbury. Ross and his wife Janet have two daughters, 2½-year-old Berit and seven-month-old Courtney.

The Hansons' daughter Linnae has continued to live in the Thief River Falls community where her husband Mark Enge is employed by the Soo Line railroad in addition to farming. They have three children, 10-year-old Aaron, eight-year-old Amy and 1½-year-old Casey.

It is interesting to note that the day they were honored as valley farmer and homemaker at the winter shows was one day short of the 38th anniversary of the day they first met. That meeting took place at the winter shows during a snow storm. Marge Ofstedahl from Plummer was attending the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston.

Producing top quality cattle and crops has been a goal and practice for Si and Marge during their farming career, a tribute to their hard work and management ability as well as a source of pride and satisfaction. "But the kids — they're the best crop we ever raised," the Hansons agree.

MN Motorists Worried About Drunk Drivers

Minnesota motorists are apparently cognizant of the danger posed by drinking and drugged drivers, according to a survey given at driver examination stations across the state in the last few months of 1982.

Minnesota department of public safety polled 468 individuals with the majority indicating they favor stiffer penalties against drunk drivers, a continuing support of driver education programs in schools and media campaigns warning the general public about the hazards of mixing drinking and driving.

Survey responses indicated that:

— Seventy-four per cent correctly agree with the statement, "Half of the highway fatalities in Minnesota involve alcohol."

— Over 85 per cent of the respondents believe the chances of being arrested for drunken driving are greater now than they were a year ago.

— There was almost total agreement (96 per cent) that a good citizen should take the responsibilty to stop an intoxicated friend from driving.

— More than 85 per cent support furthering education programs in the schools dealing with drinking and driving.

— When estimating the number of drunken drivers on the road, 75 per cent believe that at least one of four pople traveling on the highways on a typical Friday night is driving after drinking.

— Sixty-nine per cent of the respondents over 25 years of age favor strengthening penalties for drunk driving. However, only 48 per cent under age 25 see a need to increase penalties.

— Among all those surveyed, 79 per cent consider drugs and driving as big a problem as drinking and driving.

— While 64 per cent of those over 25 years old believe alcohol blood tests are reliable, only 31 per cent agree that breath tests equally reliable. For drivers younger than 25, fewer than 20 per cent trust breath tests.

— Only 25 per cent agree that safety belts are the best protection against drunk drivers.

Rural and urban Minnesotans disagree on a number of points. 75 per cent of the rural respondents perceive a greater than one in 50 chance of being arrested for drunk driving in Minnesota while only 60 per cent of the urban-suburban residents perceive those same chances of arrest.

In rural Minnesota 52 per cent agree that court punishment for drunk driving is firm but only 43 per cent of the urban group agree with that assessment.

Urban respondents, 78 per cent, also favor a statewide phone number for reporting drunk drivers compared to 67 per cent from rural areas.

Men and women also had some significant differences in responses. Increased penalties for drunk drivers are favored by 74 per cent of the women but only 61 per cent of the men agreed with that idea. Fewer women (40 per cent) than men (55 per cent) believe that courts are firmly punishing drunk drivers. While 45 per cent of the male respondents would not feel safe riding with a driver who had three drinks within an hour, 68 per cent of the women thought it was unsafe. More women (57 per cent) than men (31 per cent) agree they had never driven after drinking beyond the legal limit.

Roseau Club Wants On-Sale Liquor License

Roseau Eagles club may be granted an on-sale liquor license if current legislation before the Minnesota Senate is passed.

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer, is sponsor of the bill and he predicts passage of the legislation because exemption bills for the other clubs have carried easily in the past.

Current state law mandates a 15-year existence for any club that wishes to have an on-sale liquor license. Roseau Eagles club has been operating only since October of 1979.

Frank Nystrom, president of the Eagles, requested Stumpf's aid because the club believes business will increase with the on-sale license. A 3.2 beer license from the city is held by the Eagles now. If granted, the new license could increase membership and community service by the club, Nystrom commented.

Total membership at the club stands at about 280 men and 100 women auxiliary members.

Roseau mayor Milt Arneson believes the Eagles would be granted the license by the city council because of the fraternal nature of the club.

General public in Roseau is served by two privately owned 3.2 beer establishments and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion clubs which have on-sale licenses.

Every parent of children tested should receive a test evaluation before Easter, Ruberto said. Students missed in this screening will be tested as five-year-olds next year or monitored when they start kindergarten. The latter could handicap a child, Ruberto said, particularly if there is an undiagnosed problem which could hamper the child's learning ability.

Tax Tips For Those Who Are Self-Employed

An enduring facet of the American dream is the option of working for yourself. As your own boss you accept certain risks but claim special rewards from your own business or labors.

You also face certain responsibilities to Uncle Sam, including reporting your income to the IRS and remitting your self-employment social security tax. According to the Minnesota society of CPAs, even those who are self-employed part time have to comply with certain tax rules. Here are the more important ones, plus some hints on how to deal with them so you don't lose out on benefits to which you are entitled.

If self-employed, you have to report your income and deductions on tax form Schedule C for "profit or (loss) from business or profession." Nearly 10 million Americans file a Schedule C with their tax return.

Unlike those whose taxes are deducted from wages on a pay-as-you-go basis, self-employed people are expected to pay estimated taxes quarterly. To determine your income and self-employment tax payments you can use tax Form 1040-ES ("Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals.")

Be careful in estimating your tax for these quarterly installments, CPAs warn. In many cases you could be liable to a penalty if your estimated tax does not equal at least 80 per cent of your final tax liability.

CPAs have a number of suggestions to help the self-employed reduce their tax bite. For example, you could contribute to a Keogh retirement plan and deduct the contribution from your income. You can stash away 15 per cent of your income, up to $15,000 a year, in a Keogh account. And you can contribute to a Keogh right up until your tax return due date with extensions. But the account must have been set up before the end of the tax year for which the deduction is taken.

For the first time tax laws now permit a self-employed person to establish an individual retirement account (IRA) in addition to a Keogh plan. You can contribute up to $2,000 a year ($2,250 with a non-working spouse on a joint return) to an IRA, and defer taxes on that amount. You can establish and make payments to an IRA up until your tax due date with extensions, and still take the deduction for 1982.

You may be able to save taxes by deducting some costs to maintain an office in your home, CPAs note. If you set aside space in your home that is used exclusively and regularly as your principle place of business, you may be able to deduct a percentage of the costs of general maintenance, depreciation, heat, electricity and special upkeep as a business expense.

Your deduction cannot be in excess of the gross income from the business use of your home. For example, if you use a quarter of your apartment space as an office, you could deduct approximately 25 per cent of your rent, electric and heating bills.

You don't even need to dedicate an entire room to business to qualify. If you work at a desk in the corner, deduct the expenses for that limited area. Then if you paint the room, part of the cost is deductible, assuming you've made an appropriate space allocation.

CPAs advise maintaining proper records to justify business deductions. A conclusive element is a diary of the clients you contacted in your office space.

Before you start to do your 1982 tax return, be sure you have the correct tax forms and schedules. On Schedule C, report all gross receipts or sales from your work, plus the costs of your operations or goods sold, as well as depreciation.

In addition to Schedule C, most self-employed people must complete Schedule SE ("computation of social security self-employment tax.") Last year more than seven million taxpayers filed this form, paying over six and a half billion dollars in taxes, according to the IRS.

You are liable for the social security tax if your self-employment net profit income is $400 or more for the year. Tax for 1982 is 9.35 per cent of income up to $32,400, with a maximum tax of $3,029.40. Rate for regular employees, matched by their employers, is 6.7 per cent.

'U'M Exchanges Professors With Tokyo

An agreement was signed in Japan recently to exchange professors between the University of Minnesota school of management and Keio university in Tokyo.

Under the agreement, signed by Edward Foster, acting dean of the school, every two years each institution will send a faculty member to conduct research at the host university.

"At one time international issues were thought to be a field of specialized study," Foster said. "However, with a shrinking global economy and telecommunications, that is no longer appropriate. We are attempting to bring about adjustments in the school of management to make international issues pervasive throughout the curriculum."

The agreement will allow scholars to stay at the host university between four months and a year. Selection of faculty members will be based on scholarly achievement, planned research and academic record. The only other American business school to sign a similar faculty exchange agreement with Keio university is Harvard business school.

Similar agreement between the school of management and Lyon university in France applies to MBA students as well as to faculty members. In addition, three MBA students from the school spent last summer in internships in Japan. "These kinds of exchanges encourage deeper understanding of international issues for both faculty and students," Foster said. "It is important to have faculty and students directly involved in the cultures of foreign countries."

Foster said he hopes to reach similar agreements with other universities and is examining a potential exchange program with Madrid university in Spain. Foster made the trip to Japan with financial support from the Japan foundation.

A $1 million research grant made by the McKnight Foundation last year also encourages international research by school of management faculty.

'U'M President To Discuss Agriculture

University of Minnesota President C. Peter Magrath will deliver the 10th annual H.K. Hayes memorial lecture on agronomy and plant genetics Monday, March 7 at 8 p.m. in room 135 of the Earle Brown center on the university's St. Paul campus.

Magrath will speak on "Agriculture Leadership: Beyond the Confines of the Laboratory." The speech will review agricultural advances made at the university and will suggest a likely course of research in the next 20 years. Magrath will make the point that problems like world food production need scientists who are willing to speak out on social issues.

Magrath is a member of the Board for international food and agricultural development.

The late Dr. H.K. Hayes was a member of the university's department of agronomy and plant genetics for more than 40 years. He is considered one of the leading crop scientists of the 20th century for his work in plant breeding.

MACI Launches Effort Against Alcoholism

Minnesota association of commerce and industry (MACI), the state's largest business-lobby group, recently announced the beginning of a statewide effort to help businesses both prevent and help employees overcome problems relating to alcohol and drug abuse.

MACI President Win Borden said the 4,200 member association of businesses, chambers of commerce, and trade associations decided to begin its employee assistance program after analyzing the results of a survey sent to 300 MACI members late last summer in cooperation with former Governor Al Quie. According to Borden, the survey revealed "that business owners are not only increasingly aware of the nature and magnitude of alcohol and chemical abuse-related problems in the work-place, but also that they understand the potential value of company-based prevention and treatment programs."

Borden said a special MACI employee assistance committee has been formed to lay the groundwork for a program by which the association will work with other public and private groups to assist businesses in establishing their own alcohol and drug abuse prevention and treatment plans.

Committee is headed by Jim Keenan, general manager for customer relations at Northwestern Bell telephone company in Minneapolis. Roger Svendson, who was state director of alcohol and drug abuse prevention under former Governor Al Quie, is also serving on the panel along with a number of other business leaders from throughout Minnesota.

Keenan explained that "initially, we are gearing our program toward increasing awareness among business people. We want them to understand the nature of alcohol and drug dependency, how those problems affect the personal and professional lives of employees, and why it makes sense, from both a human and business standpoint, for employers to help workers successfully overcome dependency." Keenan said the committee is organizing a speakers bureau which will soon be available to the media and to civic and business groups. He added that the group will also be formulating sample guidelines for companies wishing to establish their own policies governing the use and serving of alcohol at business-related social functions.

"We are by no means attempting to bring back prohibition with this program," Keenan explained. "We are not saying that it is wrong for individuals to drink or for businesses to make alcohol a part of entertainment.

"We are saying that it is important for businesses to understand how to use alcohol responsibly, and understand how to deal with any and all problems which are brought on by irresponsible use of alcohol."

Among the most significant results of the survey, which was returned by 60 per cent of the MACI member companies surveyed, are these:

90 per cent of the persons who returned the questionnaire knew that alcohol was a depressant drug.

93 per cent recognized that most alcoholics were not on skid row.

94 per cent disagreed that only "weak" people can't handle alcohol.

91 per cent knew that the alcoholic typically denies his or her drinking problem.

79 per cent believed that preventative programs would help reduce alcohol and drug problems.

61 per cent thought the business community should support these programs even without a direct economic return to the company.

79 per cent supported giving employees time off for their chemical dependency treatment.

77 per cent thought that health promotion programs pay for themselves through increased productivity and improved morale.

92 per cent felt that the recovered alcoholic could successfully return to work in the business community.

95 per cent agreed with the statement that, "it makes good business sense for an employer to provide assistance to an employee with a possible abuse problem."

The more education a woman has, the greater the likelihood that she will seek paid employment, says a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor's Women's Bureau. Among women with four or more years of college, about three out of five were in the work force in 1981.

All IRA plans are not alike.

What if I don't have the money to open a Banco IRA?

We'll lend it to you.

In fact it could be the smartest use you've ever made of a loan.
The first advantage is that the entire amount of the IRA loan is tax deductible.
So if you borrow $2000 to open an IRA before the date when you must file your 1982 federal income tax return, that amount is immediately deductible from your 1982 gross earnings.
And the interest earned by the money in your IRA is tax deferrable too.
In fact you pay no federal tax at all on your IRA investment and its earnings until you begin withdrawing funds upon retirement.
Meanwhile your IRA just keeps on growing. And the interest on the loan is offset to a great degree by the interest you are earning on your investment. And the tax advantages you get.
It's a smart way to put your money to work.
See our IRA Specialist for the IRA plan that's right for you.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am using this means to present information to the parents of students in the Thief River Falls schools and other concerned community members.

The proposed budget cuts will directly affect the manner in which your child is taught next year and also, I feel their opportunity to learn. This concerns me very much as a teacher.

I teach reading in the middle school and would like to use that subject area as an illustration of how programs would be affected.

When students come into sixth grade from the elementary schools, we continue to place them into reading ability levels, so that we can better serve their individual needs. One of these ability level groups consists of students who are reading at least two grade levels below sixth grade. They need instruction in some of the very basic reading skills, and because of their varied individual needs, necessitate small class size.

A second group of students who enter middle school in the sixth grade are close to grade average, but often need extra practice in particular skill areas. If class size can be kept down for these students the teacher can spot weak areas and give immediate help.

A third and fourth group of students with whom I work are those reading on or above grade level. These are the students who need challenging materials so that they may continue to learn and grow. Numbers in these classes may be larger, but still need to be of a size where individual contributions of students can be recognized.

As a result of last year's cutback the reading classes are already larger than what I feel is conducive to good learning. There are 32-34 students in those classes where the more challenging materials are used. For the next year if the proposed changes come to be, it is very possible that there may be as many as 40 students in the classes of the more skilled readers. For those students needing to be taught the basic reading skills, class size could be smaller, but still larger than advisable for successful learning.

I feel learning would be adversely affected by the large class size.

We are told that the children now in school will hold positions that have not even been invented in some cases. We must prepare all students with adequate skills for that time when they will need to draw upon those skills to achieve in their new fields.

Certainly not as significant, but becoming a factor in the education process, is the need to educate students with skills for use in their leisure time. Reading, I feel, is a major one. I feel the schools should offer a fully staffed library with a wide range of available reading materials as a part of this process.

Sincerely,
Ardis Botner

To The Editor:

Though I live in St. Paul, I have seen some recent issues of the Times in which you devote quite a bit of attention to poetry. Your article was, for the most part, accurate. And since I am also in the typesetting business I can overlook the keylining error in the article. Such things happen. Your editorial pointed out, however, that we are in some disagreement in regard to what is "good" poetry.

I'm not sure where you got the impression that "nobody writes rhymed poetry anymore" or that I reject rhymed poetry out of hand. Maybe you misunderstood, maybe I misspoke. While it is true that I consider myself a free-verse poet, and that some grade school teachers killed poetry for me for a couple of years by making me gag on rhymed drivel, insisting that it was poetry, it doesn't mean that all rhymed poetry is bad.

Thomas McGrath in Moorhead and Phil Dacey in Marshall are two examples of poets who can write good poetry in rhyme. In fact, if you had quoted W.B. Yeats' "The Lake Isle of Innisfree", instead of the poem in Alaska, you would have made a much more convincing argument. The Alaska poem just doesn't strike me one way or another. It doesn't move me and it doesn't convince me I have to see Alaska.

Actually, I prefer the poems by local poets that you printed in the previous (Feb 2) issue of the Times. Maria Edington's "The Honey-Sweet City" shows me, in a rather skillful way, that I wouldn't want to live there. And the Yeats poem that I mentioned above, and which you might have used in your argument, shows me that before I die I'd better find my own "Lake Isle of Innisfree". It also reminds me of places I've been (in the Minnesota northwoods) where I was able to feel at peace with myself and the world for a short while. And you would like it because it rhymes.

Rhyming is one of the techniques you may use in poetry, just like a hundred other techniques (assonance and oxymoron to name two), most of which have fancy Greek names. The act of making poetry requires imagination, perception, mind, feeling and memory to name a few. These are things I try to strengthen and reinforce as much as I am able when I work in schools. To say that one must rhyme, however, is to take an extremist position, and it would throw out much of the poetry that is considered classic today: "Paradise Lost", much of Shakespeare's verse, to say nothing of Walt Whitman and Boewulf.

However, Marv, you are to be commended for presenting both sides of the argument and for printing poems from both points of view. At least that way the readers can decide for themselves. Besides that, it's democratic. If only all our wars could be like this.

With best wishes,
John Minczeski

(Editor's Note: John Minczeski was "poet in the schools" in Thief River Falls for one week late in January. He was featured along with several local students and their poems in the February 2 issue of the Times. The article he refers to is that article. The editorial on rhymed poetry appeared in a later issue.)

Today's Youth Copes With New Pressures

Though the typical, "normal" problems associated with growing up are still there — starting school, reaching puberty, gaining peer acceptance — the youth of today must cope with all kinds of new pressures brought on by a rapidly changing society. "Pressures on Youth" are examined in the February issue of "PTA Today," the magazine of the National PTA.

One article in the issue surveys changes and trends in the last two to three decades which are largely responsible for the added stress in children's lives, such as:

Fast pace of life: Daily routine of some children, who juggle music lessons, Scout meetings, homework, and school events, is faster than that of some business executives. Little time is left for them to relax and assimilate the experiences of the day, yet they may feel pressured to cope without admitting their confusion or pain.

Mass media: Children are constantly being bombarded with messages from the electronic media. Television ads frequently instill desires in children that cannot be fulfilled, and they may feel resentful and deprived if their parents refuse to buy them the toys and "goodies" they see on television.

Neil Postman, whose book "The Disappearance of Childhood" is quoted in the article, blames TV for eroding " 'the dividing line between childhood and adulthood. Electronic media place children and adults in the same symbolic world. Most vital cultural information is accessible to everybody, regardless of age or training . . . Media force the entire culture out of the closet. And out of the cradle.' "

Unemployment — With unemployment at 11 per cent, many parents are worried about losing their jobs or have already lost them. If parents try to keep job loss a secret, their children may wonder what the problem is or feel somehow responsible. If they are told, they may worry, yet feel powerless to help. Unemployed parent, spending more time at home, may alter child-rearing and household routines; resulting conflicts between parents may confuse and upset their children.

Other stressful factors discussed in the article include the sharp rise in the number of single parent homes and working mothers, the potentially hazardous effects of some day care centers, anxiety related to standardized test scores, and fear of nuclear war.

Monoxide Gas Is A Deadly Winter Hazard

Even though it's been a mild one (so far), keeping warm is part of life in Minnesota winters. We use fireplaces, weather-tighten our homes, idle our cars more, depend more heavily on our furnace and use recreational heaters for outdoor sports such as winter camping.

Each of these commonplace, and normally safe, activities, could expose us to a common hazard — carbon monoxide, a dangerous, sometimes deadly gas.

Carbon monoxide (CO) is a colorless, odorless gas produced when fuel is not burned completely, or when the flame does not receive sufficient oxygen from the air. Automobiles, charcoal, wood fires and improperly vented, defective or air-starved coal, oil and gas furnaces can produce carbon monoxide.

Fresh air is needed for combustion in furnaces, fireplaces, wood stoves, gas water heaters and clothes dryers.

As homes are caulked and weatherstripped to reduce cold air leaks, and we continue to use exhaust fans, vented clothes dryers, fireplaces and wood stoves, our appliances can starve for air. We draw more and more air from the house until fresh air may be sucked into the house down the furnace flue or fireplace chimney. Carbon monoxide poisoning can be the result.

Watch for these signs of air starvation: headaches, nausea, dizziness, excessive humidity or heavily frosted windows, fireplaces that smoke and won't draw, a furnace flue that backs up.

Here are some safety tips from the Minnesota safety council to avoid carbon monoxide hazards:

— In automobiles — don't leave the motor running in an enclosed space. Inspect exhaust system for leaks. Leave a window slightly open when sitting in an idling car.

— Home heating — inspect heating flues for blockage or holes. Add fresh air intake to furnace if winterization has cut off fresh air. Inspect burners for proper adjustment.

— Fireplaces — add glass doors. Open a window or permanently add outside air supply. Be sure fire is out before closing damper.

— Charcoal grilling — do not charcoal grill inside. Grill only with adequate fresh air supply. Dispose of coals safely outside.

— Camping heaters — Inspect camper stoves and heater for flue leaks. Ensure fresh air supply by opening a window or vent. Do not use charcoal or flame heaters in tents without open flaps.

If you suspect a carbon monoxide problem with your car, have it inspected by an auto exhaust system specialist. In your home, rely on your local utility or appliance service technician.

Taxpayers May Be Due Refund From Last Year

Those Minnesota taxpayers who are not aware of a law change last year that was not put on Minnesota tax forms may now write to the department for relief, according to Minnesota commissioner of revenue Arthur C. Roemer.

Last year the legislature passed a law reducing the amount a renter would normally receive on his Minnesota property tax refund return (Form M-1PR) by eight per cent. However, all tax forms were already printed when the law was passed; therefore, despite publicity, some people were unaware of this reduction when filling out their tax returns. Revenue department computers automatically reduced these refunds by this eight per cent.

If these taxpayers had used this refund as a credit to help pay their income tax, this credit may have been insufficient to cover their income tax liability.

Department's computer then billed these taxpayers for the additional tax, penalty, and interest for which they were liable for underpaying their income tax liability.

Commissioner Roemer said that the Minnesota public interest research group (MPIRG) brought this issue to the attention of the department. This situation only impacts about 2,800 Minnesotans. Computer cannot identify those individuals who owe penalty and interest because of this adjustment.

Department will entertain requests from individuals who have been so affected by this statute change and will adjust their accounts if there is an existing balance or issue a refund if the interest and penalty have been paid previously.

Requests should simply be in letter form, with the envelope marked: Attention — C.E. Peterson Jr., Department of Revenue, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55145. Taxpayers having questions on this may call toll free 1-800-652-9094.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, can the existence of God be proved?

A. It depends upon what you mean by proof. The proof most people prefer is scientific, mathematical, or logic. But God is much more enormous and infinite than to be proven by a laboratory.

I believe that the existence of God, and questions such as these relating to His existence can be intelligently answered. The reason we know God exists is because He has revealed Himself to us in several different ways.

He first revealed Himself and His existence through creation. Gen. 1:1 says, "God created the heaven and the earth." The universe and all that is in it, could not and did not evolve on its own, but was planned by the Master Planner, Almighty God.

He has also revealed Himself to mankind through the Bible. The Bible has demonstrated itself over and over again to be more than a mere book; it is the precious Word of God. The evidence is more than convincing to anyone who will honestly consider its claims. II Tim. 3:16 says, "All Scripture is given by the inspiration of God." The Bible has always given us sufficient reason to believe that it is the Word of the Living God, and that He does exist.

Another reason that we know God exists is because He has appeared in human flesh. Jesus Christ was God Almighty who became a man. Jn. 1:14 teaches that "God became flesh and dwelt amoung us."

If someone wants to know who God is and what He is like, he only needs to look at Jesus Christ. Col. 1:15 says, "Jesus Christ is the image of the invisible God."

When Jesus Christ rose from the dead, He established Himself as having the credentials to be God, and it was this miraculous act that demonstrated to an unbelieving world that He was, in fact, God.

Thus we have Creation, the Bible, the person of Jesus Christ, and Christ being raised from the dead as four strong reasons for the existence of God. No other religion or philosophy offers anything near to demonstrate that a God exists.

If you have any questions you would like to have answered from the Bible, phone write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

COLAs Responsible for Half The National Debt

George Washington looked at the newly created federal government and gave future generations this warning: "Government is not reason, it is not eloquence — it is force! Like fire it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master, never for a moment should it be left to irresponsible action."

I repeat, "never for a moment should it be left to irresponsible action."

A moment?

Irresponsible action has been the hallmark of Congress for the past 20 years! While Congress fiddled, the fire George Washington spoke of exploded into a conflagration as federal spending and the national debt tripled in the last decade alone.

And yet the politicians look up at us with large cow eyes and tell us that they certainly mean well, but — so sorry — much of the federal budget is "uncontrollable." By this they mean that the pay and pensions of government bureaucrats and now more than 30 per cent of the entire federal budget is automatically indexed to increase with inflation.

These "entitlement" programs — funny how bureaucrats and welfare recipients are "entitled" to money you earned — grow like Topsy without any vote by Congress.

But Congress is hardly the innocent bystander here. Congress itself created this problem when it indexed federal pensions to the Consumer Price Index in 1962. The bureaucrats and recipients of federal give-away programs knew a good thing when they saw it and the lobbyists went to work. Soon, all federal pay and many government programs received annual automatic cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs). Congress put federal spending on automatic pilot and walked away.

The costs ot taxpayers have been staggering.

Between 1970 and 1982, the automatic COLAs have cost taxpayers over $500 billion! What was Everett Dirksen's comment, "A billion here, a billion there and pretty soon you're talking real money." Well, $500 billion is real money in my book. It is half our national debt.

And if the runaway growth of these COLAs continues unchecked, the bill will climb to over one and a half trillion dollars by 1988. And that money is going to come from one source — your paychecks.

Ever wonder why welfare payments are skyrocketing, while working men and women are struggling to make ends meet? Well, for starters, 48 per cent of the growth in transfer payments over the last 12 years is a result of the automatic COLAs.

In 1982 alone, federal spending was $136 billion higher than it would have been without COLAs. The deficit was $110.6 billion. Had Congress not embarked on the tragedy of indexing government spending there would have been a budget surplus last year — not a deficit. And the politicians would not be streaming like lemmings to demand higher taxes from the American people.

These figures are an indictment of Congress and its "irresponsible action" that George Washington warned us against.

The answer is inescapable. Congress cannot slow the growth in federal spending until it takes its lead foot off the accelerator and this means repealing or reforming the cost-of-living adjustments. And what's more, Congress knows this.

No, my dear Congressman, COLAs and federal spending are not "uncontrollable," they are simply left uncontrolled — by you.

Some Economic Resolutions For 1983

A New Year is viewed by most Americans as a time of opportunity — opportunity to find the resolve to change things about ourselves that are in need of some improvement.

In no area is this need greater than in economic policy. Here are just a few New Year's economic resolutions, most of which are directed at our policymakers in Washington:

Resolution No. 1: No more doom and gloom prophecies about "the coming depression."

There's been all too much loose talk about depression by politicians, commentators and journalists. These remarks may make headlines, but they are unsettling and, more important, totally inaccurate. There is simply no comparison in any way, shape or form between today's economic conditions and those of the 1930s. Even in the hard-pressed areas of the nation where unemployment does approach depression-era levels, a whole structure of benefit programs is in place to help close the gap, unlike the situation 50 years ago.

Depression scare talk helps scare off the fledging recovery by undermining the confidence of consumers and investors. Cut if out!

Resolution No. 2: Stop listening to any politician who accuses another politician of trying to "gut" Social Security.

Making the retirement system solvent is one of our most urgent priorities for 1983. What we don't need is a rerun of the wild charges accusing those who offer legitimate reform plans of wanting to take food out of the mouths of the elderly. No serious politician in Washington wants to end Social Security, and only a handful even go so far as to suggest that anyone's benefit check be cut. It is safe to assume that a legislator who embarks on such rhetoric excesses will not be a constructive player in the Social Security reform effort, so why should we waste our time listening?

Resolution No. 3: Leave the tax side of the federal ledger alone.

It's doing just fine, thanks. Despite suggestions that the 1981 tax cut all but shut down the U.S. Treasury and this is to blame for huge budget deficits, Uncle Sam will collect more of our dollars in 1983 than ever before in history. The problem is that government will spend more than ever as well, regardless of claims that programs have already been cut to the bone. Taxpayers swallowed a huge increase in 1982 because we were told it was needed to prod Congress into cutting spending. In 1983, let's apply that prod to the appropriate part of the congressional anatomy and make our legislators live up to their promise to get spending under control.

Resolution No. 4: When economist Henry Kaufman issues an economic prognosis, get a second opinion.

All of us in the business of predicting our economic future have been wrong at times, including the most widely regarded figures such as Dr. Kaufman. In the fall of 1981, when interest rates were lodged at 21 per cent, he predicted they would soar even higher. Instead, they dropped to around 17 per cent in the ensuing months. Then, come spring of 1982, he said they would go back up to where they were in the previous fall. Instead, they plunged to the current 11 per cent range. Now those earlier forecasts have been forgotten and Dr. Kaufman is actually predicting a slight decline in rates during the first half of this new year. Now I'm starting to worry!

Resolution No. 5: Start an Individual Retirement Account.

If you are able to put aside a portion of your pay in savings, why not put those extra dollars toward a tax-deferred IRA, just as millions of your fellow citizens have done this past year. You have until April 15 to deposit up to $2,000 ($2,250 for a married couple with a nonworking spouse) to get the tax break on your 1982 return and, more important, prove to our Big Brothers in Washington that we really are capable of voluntarily saving for our own retirement. Retirement for many Americans may seem too far off to even worry about, but if you begin your IRA now, you and your family will enjoy happy new years when that golden age for you does arrive.

The Paycheck vs. The Welfare Check

"The rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

This shopworn punch line has enjoyed a journalistic renaissance of late, appearing in a spate of stories, studies and analyses designed to show that Reagan tax and budget policies have redirected the flow of national income from the poor to the rich.

Even the Wall Street Journal got into the act recently with a page-one article titled, "Studies Say Reagan Reverses Redistribution." The article cites a Congressional Budget Office analysis that the writer says "shows that income is actually flowing from the lowest to the highest income groups." The statistical evidence provided is a chart that shows the expected gain or loss in 1983 by household income category in terms of tax and benefit cuts. Let me say at the outset that this evidence and the way it is organized are suspect, but for what it's worth: Up to $10,000, federal benefit loss -360, tax cut gain 120, net -240; $10-$20,000, federal benefit loss -220, tax cut gain 440, net 220; $21-$40,000, federal benefit loss -140, tax cut gain 950, net 810; $41-$80,000, federal benefit loss -130, tax cut gain 1,830, net 1,700; $80,000 and up, federal benefit loss -120, tax cut gain 15,250, net 15,130.

Now, if you believe that Uncle Sam owns our labor and the income that flows from that labor to spend the way he sees fit, then you might draw the conclusion that administration economic policies are indeed taking from the poor and giving to the rich. But if you believe that your wages are yours and that you have a right to keep as much as possible, you might draw a different set of conclusions:

You might notice, for instance, that except for those households earning less than $10,000, every American will be better off in 1983 under the Reagan policies. You might also recognize that the beneficial effects of a reduction in inflation are not taken into account. Also, you can see that every group suffers some reduction in government benefits. In other words, the higher income levels are not "getting richer" because federal program benefits are being taken from the poor and given to the rich. All gains are totally attributable to the tax cuts, the benefits of which grow larger as you move up the income scale because these upper categories pay more taxes to begin with.

This distinction between an income gain that flows from a benefit program and one that comes from a tax cut is critical and gets to my essential point in this column. Isn't it time we recalled some basic economic concepts on which our country was founded? That is our society, success is celebrated, not scorned — and that one, but certainly not the only, barometer of success is material prosperity. Isn't it time we remembered that there is an essential difference between a welfare check and a paycheck? Allowing a worker to keep more of his paycheck, even if it means a cut in someone else's welfare check (and it has hardly been proven that this must be the case) is not "robbing" the poor and "giving" to the better off, because you can't rob something that is already yours and you can't give away something that isn't yours to give.

Shouldn't this same concept hold true even if the particular paycheck involved happens to be very big?

In America today the mainstream debate has ended over whether government should assist the destitute. A consensus emerged some time ago that the better off should indeed give part of their income to attempt to pull the less fortunate out of poverty. This is a noble goal. But it doesn't mean we should cross that line to the point where the wage earner's pay is considered the domain of the state to distribute the way it sees fit. It doesn't mean that a lower income American has an inherent right to demand shares of that pay simply because he has less of it than his neighbor.

Unfortunately, there has been all too much blurring of this distinction between lending the less fortunate a helping hand and giving our politicians a moral and legal claim over our labor.

That's a dangerous leap, and it is found in the blurred vocabulary of "redistribution" — even in the Wall Street Journal!

Shame on you, Lane Kirkland! I thought we left thinly veiled threats of "turmoil in the streets" to the leftover campus juveniles of the 1960s. Yet, apparently no rhetoric is too excessive for the AFL-CIO president in his effort to exploit the unemployment tragedy. Here is Kirkland's reaction to the recent news that the unemployment rate had reached 10.8 per cent:

"If all else fails and then people come to the conclusion that the only way they can get the people's attention is to create turmoil in the streets, well, then, I guess perhaps we have to go out and organize some turmoil in the streets, if that's what it takes to convince people."

I am sure that most working Americans and union members abhor this kind of talk. It's certainly not appropriate coming from a leading spokesman for a major segment of our population — particularly one whose organization has done more for its fair share to create much unemployment in the first place.

Student Loan Scofflawsh

There is no more room for domestic spending cuts, we are told by many concerned legislators of both political parties. All the waste, fraud and undeserving beneficiaries have been removed from programs such as federal student aid, they say.

Guess again. Secretary of Education Terrel Bell reported recently that some 820,000 Americans owe the rest of us over 1 billion in defaulted student loans. Nearly 50,000 of these individuals are now on federal payrolls in government jobs, prompting the secretary to begin a long overdue program of withholding portions of these scofflaws' wages.

Of course, some federal workers aren't the only deadbeats when it comes to student loans. A team of federal investigators reported recently that about 50,000 medical professionals, including an estimated 6,000 doctors, were among the delinquents. In one case, a medical school graduate who had no problems making the payments on his $24,000 car, nonetheless failed to meet his student loan obligations for the past four years.

Federal "RIFs" — The Private Work Force Should Be So Lucky

Americans have been asked to shed many tears in recent months over what we have been led to believe are wholesale firings at federal departments and agencies. What we seldom see are actual figures as to just how many government bureaucrats have been "RIF'd" — which is the Washington jargon for getting fired or laid off due to cutbacks.

The fact is that just one of every 260 federal employees has been "RIF'd" by the Reagan administration — and that's less than four-tenths of one per cent, a far cry from recent increases in the private sector unemployment. No one takes pleasure in any American losing his job, but with their overall unemployment rate today standing at just 4.8 per cent, government workers as a group are far better off than the work force as a whole.

Speaking of RIFs . . .

There's room for plenty more at the Department of Labor, according to a recent account in the Washington Times by a former department employee. Mindy Farber described a typical day in her Labor office:

"Our office's staff spent most of its time figuring out how little work could be done in an eight-hour day . . . Everyone would straggle in at least 15 minutes late in the morning and immediately head to the cafeteria for coffee. These coffee breaks would last as long as 45 minutes. The rest of the morning would be spent on the telephone — to friends, spouses, doctors, real estate agents and plumbers. Lunch would never last less than two hours, at which time the entire office would leave together, abandoning the telephone switchboard and its incoming jam of telephone calls.

"An office administrative assistant . . . hosted an informal club of staffers from 3 to 5 p.m. Men and women from all walks of life would gather in her room, turn on a radio and disco enthusiastically. 'Quiet down!' the receptionist would sometimes yell. The noise apparently interfered with her favorite soap operas, which she watched on a table television assembled for her by a chief attorney in the office."

Influenza And Hypothermia — Cold Hazards

Again this winter, as outdoor temperatures plummet, elderly Americans may be exposed to temperatures so low that they develop hypothermia, a condition in which the body's internal temperature drops to 95 degrees or lower. If not detected and treated promptly, hypothermia can be fatal. Because older people are particularly sensitive to the cold, even mildly cold temperatures of 60 to 65 degrees can be dangerous.

At highest risk of developing hypothermia are the relatively small number of aged persons who, for unknown reasons, can neither feel cold nor shiver and so cannot produce body heat when they need it.

Also vulnerable are those who have diseases that limit their activity or mental awareness, who have circulation problems or who are taking certain types of drugs, such as phenothiazines, that are used to treat anxiety, agitation and nausea, according to C. Everett Koop, M.D., surgeon general of the United States.

Another threat to the elderly at this time of the year is influenza, which usually strikes during cold weather and strikes hardest at persons 65 and older and at individuals of any age who have certain chronic medical conditions. Among them are diabetes; diseases of the heart, lungs and kidneys, severe anemia and illnesses (or medications) that lower the body's resistance to disease. Since 1968, influenza epidemics have accounted for an estimated 200,000 deaths in this country.

Older people can act to prevent hypothermia by dressing warmly, eating properly and keeping active. Because hypothermia often starts during sleep, they should wear warm nightclothes and use enough blankets to keep warm. Older people who are taking medicines should ask their doctors whether those medicines might affect their body temperature or their ability to feel cold.

It's a good idea for friends and relatives to look in on elderly persons frequently when the weather is cold. Signs of hypothermia are changes in appearance or behavior; slow, sometimes irregular heartbeat; slurred speech; shallow, very slow breathing; sluggishness and confusion. Anyone who detects signs of hypothermia in an elderly person should send for emergency medical help at once, then keep the victim warm by wrapping him or her in a blanket and perhaps providing small quantities of warm food and non-alcoholic drink, until help arrives.

Everyone with medical conditions likely to be complicated by influenza should be vaccinated annually before the cold-weather flue season begins. Since the vaccine requires about four weeks (after the shot) to take full effect, or to provide maximum protection, persons who have yet to be vaccinated should see their doctors right away.

Another step that people at high risk for flu can take to reduce their chances of becoming seriously ill is to stop smoking. That's good advice for anyone, in any season, but of immediate concern is a recent report, published in the "New England Journal of Medicine," that indicates a greater danger from influenza for cigarette smokers.

MN. Starwatch Tells Of Two Dwarf Stars

Two white dwarf stars, faint and cool, lie deep within the February sky, foretelling the end of our sun, which will also become a white dwarf in about five billion years. One of the dwarfs, a partner in a very close binary (double-star) system is still enjoying some violent action in its old age, swallowing gas from Sirius, its companion star.

Sirius B, the first white dwarf star ever discovered, is the companion of the brightest star in the sky — aside from the sun. To find Sirius, look below the right "foot" of Orion, the hunter, the giant rectangular constellation now dominating the southern sky.

Though pale — 100 times fainter than our sun — Sirius B is incredibly compact. Its star material has collapsed to several million times the density of the sun, according to University of Minnesota astronomer Tom Jones. Such a collapse occurs when a medium-sized star can no longer support its own weight. When the star's nuclear fuel runs out and it no longer can create outward pressure by converting hydrogen to helium, it slowly caves in and is reduced to a small, glowing white cinder.

This faint white dwarf was discovered in 1844 when analysis of Sirius's wobbly motion indicated it had an unseen companion. Sirius B was observed less than 20 years later. Two stars are only about as far apart as the sun and Uranus in our solar system — much closer than the usual four or five light-years between single stars.

Since the discovery of Sirius B, work by astronomers such as University of Minnesota Professior Emeritus Willem Luyten has shown that white dwarfs are rather common, accounting for perhaps 10 per cent of all stars in our vicinity.

Much less common are cataclysmic variable binaries, pairs made up of a white dwarf and a very close companion that share gas flares to the point of violence. The most famous of these is U Geminorum, invisible but just south of the now visible bright stars Castor and Pollux. Look for these stars of Gemini, the Twins, in the southern sky. Together the stars form the apex of a rough triangle with Orion and Sirius.

This white dwarf, U Geminorum, draws wisps of gas from its more diffuse companion, which is so close that the stars almost touch. As the star material is fed into the white dwarf's intense gravity field, it forms a bright, spiraling disk. From far away, the star is seen to flicker as it swallows flares of the gas. Splattering and uneven assimilation of the nuclear star material periodically cause nuclear explosions on the white dwarf's surface, causing it to brighten further. Such events are called dwarf novas or novas to distinguish them from the more spectacularly violent supernova explosions in which very large stars completely explode.

U Geminorum's companion is a red dwarf star, a type of fading star that radiates even less light then a white dwarf and is quite hard to find. Astronomers now think there may be quite a few of these compact red stars — perhaps enough to create the "missing mass" of the universe, the now puzzling absence of enough material to keep the universe from expanding forever.

Sun itself may have a red dwarf companion a light-year or so away from our known solar system. If it exists, this very small and very cool companion star might well be discovered by the recently launched infrared telescope.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH

Headed for the ski slopes this winter? Regardless of whether you are a seasonal buff or a beginner on the bunny run there are certain basic precautions, if observed, will help to avoid unnecessary injuries, advises the Minnesota Medical association.

The growing popularity of skiing has also brought with it an increase in the number of ski injuries. While most skiers will pursue this pleasureable sport without serious mishap, it has been estimated that at least three persons out of each one thousand who take to the slopes daily will sustain an injury. That figure may rise as high as 13 injuries per 1,000 participants on days when skiing conditions are less than ideal.

Physicians who study ski injuries or treat ski injury patients have found that most injuries involve inexperienced skiers who attempt to ski on runs too difficult for their ability. Loss of control is the single leading cause of accidents. Generally this means that the skier is going too fast to stop in an emergency. Poor physical condition, inexperience, faulty technique, fatigue and excessive speed are factors which commonly contribute to loss of control. It has also been found that many ski accidents occur at the end of a long morning or afternoon on the slopes. This is often a time when the skier has experienced a strenuous workout and is in less than prime condition.

Many ski resorts conduct an on-going campaign to promote ski safety. Participants are regularly reminded by ski instructors and the ski patrol to observe all elements of ski safety at all times. In addition, this includes well marked ski trails and the closing of trails when they have become too icy or otherwise too dangerous.

Good physical conditioning, well maintained equipment, and learning how to ski under control, can go a long way toward preventing most ski accidents.

The importance of preseason exercise to strengthen legs, particularly knees and ankles, cannot be over emphasized.

Carefully check ski equipment before hitting the trail. Make certain that skis include release bindings and safety straps.

If you are a beginner who doesn't know how to ski or if you want to improve your skills, learn to ski under the guidance of a qualified instructor. Always check the conditions of the slope before taking the lift up for the first time.

As a service to skiers, many radio and TV stations and newspapers regularly offer updated reports of changing ski conditions in the area. Telephone hotlines are also maintained by many ski resorts for the safety of skiers.

The next prescription your physician writes for you will likely be accompanied by a patient medication instruction sheet. Most physician members of the Minnesota Medical association are expected to adopt the patient medication instruction program developed by the American Medical Association (AMA).

A resolution urging the adoption of the AMA-PMI program by Minnesota physicians was recently adopted by the MMA's policy making Board of Trustees.

"We are enthusiastic about this program of helping our patients to follow their doctor's instructions," according to Severin H. Koop Jr., St. Cloud, president of the MMA.

"We anticipate that the printed instructions which we are now able to give our patients will reinforce our oral instructions and will enhance consumers' knowledge of the drugs they are taking," said Dr. Koop.

PMI sheets are now available for 20 of the most commonly prescribed drugs or drug classes. Each PMI sheet describes in clear, simple language the purpose of the drug, how it is to be taken and its possible side effects. Space is also provided for the physician to write in the dosages and any special instructions for this individual patient.

"As physicians, we feel that it's important for us to provide our patients with the appropriate PMI sheets at the time the prescription is written in the presence of the patient, rather than at the pharmacy where the prescription is filled," said the MMA president.

He further noted that the patient's recovery is hastened by the correct usage of the prescribed medication and the PMI serves as a take home reminder for repeated reference during the course of therapy.

Perhaps now is as good a time as any to begin exercising calorie conscious caution, advises the Minnesota Medical association (MMA).

Don't fall prey to quack promoters who promise to help you lose those extra pounds fast and at a high cost. Steer clear of weight losing schemes that promise to help you lose weight without any form of calorie counting, dieting or physical exercise.

Turn a deaf ear to the testimonials which play on the emotions and which offer miraculous results with little or no inconvenience to the dieter. Watch out for those enticing advertisements which claim to obtain weight loss results with the aid of pills, special belts or garments, vibrating machines or a variety of other quack devices.

Don't try to lose weight without consulting a physician who will prescribe a diet and physical exercise program, based on factors including physical and emotional conditions of the dieter, the amount of weight to be lost and a time schedule for achieving the desired weight loss. Willpower, backed up by careful medical supervision, is the basic ingredient necessary for achieving weight loss and maintaining it. Don't succumb to the pitch of the vitamin supplement salesperson who offers a wide variety of products to take the place of a well-balanced diet.

A well-balanced diet is vital to a health weight loss program. This diet should include daily selections from the basic four food groups which include the milk group, the meat group, vegetable-fruit group and the bread-cereal group.

The bottom line for achieving health weight loss — expend or burn up more calories than you take in. Eat daily from each of the basic groups but cut down the portions.

For the third straight time on East Grand Forks ice it'll be a Thief River Falls vs. Roseau Section 8 high school hockey tournement final Friday when the Prowlers and Rams meet at 7:30 p.m. for a berth in the 1983 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament next week at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks have been used as the host site for the tournament on an alternating basis since 1977, with the tournament being held here in 1978, 1980 and 1982. East Grand Forks has had it in 1977, 1979, 1981 and now in 1983. In 1977, Thief River Falls fell to Roseau 6-1 in the tournament semifinals. They met in the finals at East Grand Forks in 1979 and 1981, with the Rams winning 4-2 and 7-3, respectively.

Friday will mark the sixth time in the last seven years the two northwestern Minnesota hockey rivals have faced each other in post-season tournament play. In addition to those encounters at East Grand Forks, the Prowlers and Rams met here in 1980 when Roseau triumphed 5-3 in the semifinals and last year when Thief River Falls won a 2-1 quarterfinal decision.

This will be the 11th time Thief River Falls and Roseau have met in the regional-sectional finals since hockey first became a Minnesota State High School League-sanctioned sport in the 1944-45 season. Thief River Falls won titles with championship game wins over Roseau in 1945 and 1956. The Rams, on the other hand, beat the Prowlers in the finals in 1946, 1955, 1959, 1965, 1967, 1968, 1979 and 1981.

Only time in the last seven years the Prowlers and Rams have not met during the Section 8 tournament was in 1978 when Thief River Falls lost to Fergus Falls 6-2 in the opening round quarterfinals. The Rams beat the Otters 8-1 in the finals that year.

Tournament Broadcasts Eliminated

Thief River Falls and other northwestern Minnesota television viewers accustomed to watching the Minnesota state high school hockey and basketball tournaments via Sjoberg's Cable TV over the past six years will apparently be left in the dark this year.

The broadcasts were first received in this corner of the state when Sjoberg's added WTCN-TV, a Twin Cities independent station that specialized in sports coverage, to its programming. When broadcast rights and network switches occurred in the Twin Cities area, Sjoberg's made arrangements to receive the MSHSL state tournament games by a flip of a switch just prior to and right after the broadcasts. That switch was made in Wadena.

Same arrangement was ready to be made this year for the 1983 state hockey tournament next week in St. Paul, but Minnesota All-Channel, owner of the microwave run from Minneapolis to Grand Forks, said no. Officials here have been frantically trying to come up with a solution to air the games, but haven't been successful yet.

If the entire tournament is not aired, it's hoped the games involving the Section 8 winner would be picked up through KXJB in Fargo, the affiliate station of WCCO in Minneapolis-St. Paul, awarded the broadcast rights this year by the MSHSL.

Hockey tournament broadcast is apparently out even though there was no increase in a minimal cost involved in the switching of programing. Basketball broadcasts, however, out because of a different matter, an increase in copyright fees to some $30,000-to-$40,000.

Basketball Pairings Tonight

Coaches are scheduled to meet tonight (Wednesday) for North Half Region 8AA high school basketball tournament seeding at Mahnomen.

Team ratings, pairings and tournament sites will be determined at the meeting, with post-season play scheduled to get underway next week. Teams rated eighth and ninth will meet Monday at the site of the No. 8-seeded team for the right to enter the North Half Region 8AA quarterfinals the following night, Tues., March 8. Pairings that night will find that No. 8 team at the No. 1 seed; No. 7 at No. 2; No. 6 at No. 3; and No. 5 at No. 4.

Semifinals will be played Thurs., March 10, at two sites — home court of the higher-seeded quarterfinal winners — and the championship game will be played Sat., March 12, at the Concordia College Fieldhouse in Moorhead.

East Grand Forks, impressive in a 67-38 rout of Thief River Falls last Friday, will likely be the tournament's No. 1 seed. Moorhead and Bemidji, despite a pair of losses to the Prowlers, will probably be ranked 2-3 behind the Green Wave. The fourth home court berth is up for grabs, with Crookston a strong possibility. Rest of the field includes Fergus Falls, Park Rapids, Wadena, Thief River Falls and defending champion Detroit Lakes.

Prowlers, Rams Meet For 1983 Section 8 Hockey Title Friday

Thief River Falls and Roseau, a pair of look-alikes, will square off Friday in the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game at East Grand Forks. Face-off time is 7:30 p.m.

"It's going to be a wide-open hockey game," predicted Roseau coach Gary Hokanson, whose team eliminated defending champion East Grand Forks 3-2 in an exciting semifinal game Monday. "Thief River Falls has a couple more quality hockey players than East Grand Forks. I think we match up pretty well. They've got two strong lines and a good third line; we've got two strong lines and a good third line. I think it should be an even game."

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand echoed the same thoughts Tuesday after the Prowlers clobbered Detroit Lakes 9-2 in a semifinal mismatch.

"Obviously we're not surprised Roseau is in the finals — nobody in Section 8 should be," he said. "We feel we deserve to be in the finals, too. We felt during the course of the year we were one of the three best teams in Section 8. At tournament time you have to go out and prove it."

The two long-time hockey rivals split a pair of regular season decisions. Thief River Falls won by a 5-2 margin at home Jan. 15, with Roseau returning the favor by a 5-3 count in the rematch at Roseau Feb. 5, coming from behind with a pair of late third period goals to win. In the first game Roseau was without senior Chad Johnson, one of the top players in Section 8.

"Chad certainly adds another dimension," acknowledged Hokanson, who said Johnson combines with junior Paul Broten to give the Rams two quality centers, with sophomore Kirby Espe more than holding his own as a third line center. And that enables Roseau to match up with Thief River Falls centers Tim Bergland, Tom Kenville and Ryan Bakke. Senior co-captains, Bergland and Kenville are the Thief River Falls leaders, and Bakke, a junior, like Espe, is above average as a third line center.

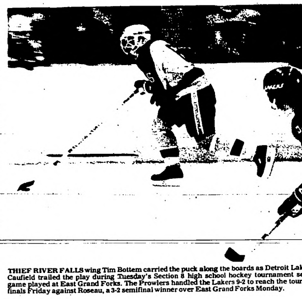
"I think we're pretty even," agreed Grand. "With Chad Johnson back in the line-up there are a lot of similarities between the two teams. It'll be a game of breaks."

Hokanson said goaltending decided the two regular season games. The Rams' Don Johnson, a first-year starter as a junior, did not play well here, he said, and indicated the same for the Prowlers' Kerry Wollin, a first-year starter as a senior, in the game at Roseau.

"Don was shaky. He was having a lot of trouble," admitted Hokanson, who explained that this is the first time in 13 years at Roseau as a head coach and an assistant that the Rams did not have an experienced senior to put in the nets. "He had to make adjustments. Now he's got the confidence."

Detroit Lakes coach Duane Earnest, after his team was blitzed by Thief River Falls in the semifinals, gave the edge to the Prowlers Friday. "I feel Thief River is the better team between them and Roseau. I wish them all the luck in the world. I think either one would represent Section 8 well."

The winner will get to represent Section 8 in the 1983 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament March 10-12 at the St. Paul Civic Center, playing the Section 4 champion in a first round 7:05 p.m. quarterfinal game next Thursday.



THIEF RIVER FALLS wing Tim Bottem carried the puck along the boards as Detroit Lakes' Bob Caufield trailed the play during Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game played at East Grand Forks. The Prowlers handled the Lakers 9-2 to reach the tournament finals Friday against Roseau, a 3-2 semifinal winner over East Grand Forks Monday.

Otters Defeat Prowlers 52-34 In Region 8AA Play

Thief River Falls let a close ball game slip away in the second half Monday as the Prowlers dropped a 52-34 decision at Fergus Falls in a North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament match-up.

The loss ended the Prowlers' 1982-83 season with a 3-14 won-loss mark. Six days earlier Thief River Falls had ended a 12-game losing streak with a 65-60 home court victory over Fergus Falls.

In North Half Region 8AA quarterfinals Tuesday, Bemidji eliminated Fergus Falls 50-28, Wadena ousted Park Rapids 46-28, Moorhead downed Detroit Lakes 61-55 and Crookston beat East Grand Forks 48-45 as all four home teams won to reach Thursday's semifinals when Wadena will be at Bemidji and Moorhead will be at Crookston.

Championship game is scheduled Saturday at a neutral site.

In South Half Region 8AA play, Melrose beat Alexandria 37-35 in Monday's preliminary round. In Tuesday's quarterfinals, St. Cloud Apollo outscored St. Cloud Tech 74-62, Albany stopped Brainerd 49-38, Cold Spring-Rocori defeated Sauk Rapids 53-46 and Little Falls sidelined Melrose 60-47.

After a 13-13 first quarter standoff, Fergus Falls went into halftime with a 21-20 edge Monday even though Thief River Falls controlled the play, according to coach Tom Schafer of the Prowlers. But the Otters took over after intermission, opening up a 36-26 third quarter spread, then doubled the cold-shooting Prowlers 16-8 over the final eight minutes.

"It was like two totally different ball games," explained Schafer. "We did anything we wanted to do in the first half; we ran circles around them. But in the second half we just couldn't do a thing."

Poor shooting kept the Prowlers from running away from the Otters in the first half, said Schafer. And it didn't get any better in the second half when the Otters went to a zone defense. Thief River Falls shot just 23 per cent from the field for the game (15-for-63), including a 7-for-35 fourth quarter. Making matters worse, they got just three rebounds over those final eight minutes.

"Shooting and rebounds. That was the story of the game," confirmed Schafer. "We played a good ball game all the way. We just couldn't put the ball in the hoop."

Freshman guard Linda Knutson scored a game-high 20 points for the Otters. Sophomore guard Michelle Olson and senior center Pia Tymberg had 12 points apiece for the Prowlers.

Fergus Falls shot 43 per cent from the field (22-for-51). The Otters were 8-for-12 at the free throw line, where the Prowlers were 4-for-12. Fergus Falls finished with a 38-35 rebound edge, with Thief River Falls topping the turnovers 17-13.

HAULED DOWN by Detroit Lakes defenseman Brett Friesen, Thief River Falls wing Mitch Semanko watched his shot bounce away after a save by goalie Chad Meyhoff in the first period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game at East Grand Forks. Semanko later scored as part of the Prowlers' 9-2 win over the Lakers.

TRF 9-2 Over Detroit Lakes

An offensive show featuring three-goal hat trick performances by Tim Bergland and Steve Wiskow sparked Thief River Falls to a 9-2 rout of Detroit Lakes Tuesday in the Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinals at East Grand Forks.

The Lakers, who had been riding the outstanding goaltending of junior Chad Meyhoff to consecutive upset wins over Brainerd 4-2 and Lake of the Woods 5-4 in reaching the semifinals, were hoping to do more of the same last night, but instead fell victim to an aggressive Thief River Falls attack that staked the Prowlers to a 4-0 first period lead and made it 7-0 in the second period before letting up.

"I'm impressed with the way they came out," said Detroit Lakes coach Duane Earnest. "They surprised us. I thought Thief River would come out more conservative, that they'd wait for us to make mistakes. That's the way they'd played before. But they two-man forchecked us; they came at us hard; they took the puck away from us."

Tim Bottem, Mitch Semanko and Ryan Bakke added single goals to a Thief River Falls attack that was much more intense than what the Prowlers showed in a 5-2 opening round quarterfinal win over Moorhead Saturday.

Tom Kenville, meanwhile, collected four assists, with defenseman Brian Johnston getting three while Bakke and Joe Blankenfeld each had two.

"We have to be delighted with the offense," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, who was most happy with the third line production of Bakke-Wiskow-Blankenfeld, a trio that netted four goals and eight points for the night. When your third line gets four goals, that's a pretty good omen that things are going well, he said.

Defensively the Prowlers weren't as sharp, but they weren't really hurt by the mistakes in their own end because they spent most of the time around Meyhoff, outshooting Detroit Lakes 42-22.

Grygla Girls Eliminated 45-44 In Four Overtimes

Grygla girls high school basketball team saw its 1982-83 season come to an end Monday with a 45-44 loss to Hallock in the District 32 tournament quarterfinals, but the Eagles held on for as long as they could — four overtimes — before bowing out.

"It was a pretty sad lockerroom," admitted Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. "It was pretty quiet in there; you could hear a pin drop."

The game was deadlocked 35-35 at the end of regulation time when Hallock's Lisa Johnson hit a tying basket with about 15 seconds remaining. First three overtime periods produced just two points apiece for each side each time out, leaving it 41-41 entering the final three minutes when Johnson was again the hero with a basket from a tough angle on the base line in the final seconds that erased a 44-43 Grygla lead.

That was the only Hallock field goal in overtime. The Bears were 10-for-16 shooting free throws in overtime to finish the night 17-for-29 at the line. The Eagles, meanwhile, were only 4-for-15. From the field Grygla was 20-for-61 (33 per cent) while Hallock was 14-for-49 (29 per cent).

"It wasn't that well-played," admitted Raduenz.

Kathy Foss of Grygla scored a game-high 21 points, with teammate Tammy Anderson scoring 13. Johnson had 17 for the Bears.

Grygla ended its season 12-7.

Tri-County 40

Ahead only 36-24 at the end of the third quarter, Marshall County Central out-scored Tri-County 52-40 over the final eight minutes Monday for a 52-40 District 32 tournament quarterfinal win at Roseau.

Michelle Johnson of Tri-County, who scored 19 points in keeping the underdog Rabbits close for three quarters, was given special defensive attention by Debbie Peterson of Marshall County Central in the fourth quarter, a box-and-one ploy that shut her out. It was still tied with 4½ minutes left before the Nordics' Brenda Dahl hit a jumper from the free throw line to ignite the winners.

Sue Olson of Marshall County Central led all scorers with 22 points. Peterson added 10.

Marshall County Central won it with a 50 per cent shooting performance (23-for-46). Tri-County shot 36 per cent (16-for-45). The Nordics shot 46 per cent from the free throw line (6-for-12) and the Rabbits shot 53 per cent (8-for-15). Tri-County out-rebounded Marshall County Central 30-22 and also topped the turnover figures 22-15.

"We shot well and rebounded poorly," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "Our field goal percentage was definitely what won the game for us."

Goodridge 53

Plummer took a 19-13 first quarter lead and turned it into a 54-24 halftime cushion Monday en route to a 70-53 first round District 31 tournament victory over visiting Goodridge.

But it was a costly victory for the Cardinals, who lost the services of sophomore Jody Pahlen with a sprained ankle in the second quarter. She left the game with nine points, marking the first time in 28 games she's failed to hit double figures. Bonnie Fisher led the winners with 26 points. Sheila Jager scored 14, while Robin Brantl scored 10 and had 13 rebounds. Diana Troska and Jennie Boutain scored 16 and 14 points, respectively, for the Huskies.

Plummer shot 41 per cent from the field (28-for-68) and 52 per cent at the free throw line (14-for-27). Goodridge shot 34 per cent from the field (23-for-67) and 29 per cent at the line (7-for-29). The Cardinals had a 49-27 rebound edge and the Huskies led in turnovers 27-23.

Paula Rantanen poured in 36 points, including a 21-point outburst in the fourth quarter to break things open Monday as Middle River defeated Lancaster in District 32 quarterfinal play.

Middle River led at the quarter stops 12-8, 26-16 and 34-26.

In addition to her points, Rantanen proceeded to foul out the entire Lancaster front line as they tried to stop her penetration in the middle.

Greenbush 41

Middle River compensated for a definite size disadvantage with an effective full court press Tuesday that enabled the Skippers to beat Greenbush 52-41 in the District 32 semifinals.

"We played pretty good man-to-man defense," reported Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "That was the difference in the game."

Middle River came up with 23 steals on the press, with Kari Skoglund getting seven of them, Paula Rantan six and Jody Christofferson five.

Rantanen was the game's leading scorer with 22 points and Skoglund added 16 for the winners, who had quarter leads of 18-7, 27-16 and 41-26. Karen Sovde and Tammy Gjovik had 19 and 16 points, respectively, for the Tigers.

Marshall County Central defense was credited with producing a 47-17 District 32 semifinal win over Hallock Tuesday.

The Nordics held the Bears to just five first half points in building a 21-5 halftime cushion. Hallock shot just 16 per cent from the field for the game (7-for-47).

"Defensively, as a team, it was the best we've played all year," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We really hustled on defense. I don't think we gave them an uncontested shot all night."

Sue Olson had 23 points for the Nordics, with Brenda Dahl adding 10.

It was not an overly productive night offensively for the Nordics, admitted Mjelde. They shot only 36 per cent from the field (20-for-56). They were 7-for-13 at the line, with Hallock going 3-for-7. The Nordics had a 35-27 rebound edge and the Bears topped the turnover figures 32-22.

Alvarado 63

Plummer basketball season ended in the District 31 quarterfinals Tuesday with a 63-47 loss to host Alvarado.

Starting the game with high-scoring Jody Pahlen on the bench because of an ankle injury suffered the night before, Plummer managed to stay within 14-10 at the end of the first quarter. Pahlen was inserted into the line-up at the start of the second quarter, but lasted less than a minute before leaving, and that had a big psychological effect on the Cardinals, who were outscored 17-2 and trailed 31-12 at halftime.

"That was a let-down," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. With Pahlen's departure went her 20-point scoring average.

Bonnie Fisher closed out her high school basketball career for the Cardinals with a 33-point game, giving the 5-6 senior 925 points. "It was a tough way for her to go out," said Koivisto. "She was pretty sad. She's been an excellent player for us."

Plummer shot just 27 per cent from the field for the game (16-for-58) while Alvarado shot 50 per cent (28-for-56). The Cardinals shot 43 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-25) where the Indians shot 44 per cent (7-for-16). Alvarado had a 37-34 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 28-26.

Plummer's season ended at 13-7.

Lincoln Swimmers Enter Section 4 Meet At Bemidji

Twelve Thief River Falls entries will compete Friday and Saturday in the 1983 Section 4 high school swimming and diving championships at Bemidji State University.

Swimming prelims start Friday at 6 p.m. Swimming semifinals and diving prelims will be held Saturday beginning at 9 a.m., with the meet finals scheduled for 1 p.m.

Top four divers, plus the top two swimmers in each race, will advance to the state high school swimming and diving championships March 11-12 at the University of Minnesota Cooke Hall Pool in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls' Section 4 qualifiers include seniors Rod Helm and Oscar Garza; juniors Curt Rude, Dave Ose, Jeff Rosetta, Roger Rivera and Jay Achenbach; sophomores Todd Wing and Paul Wefald; freshmen Jim Amundson and Eric Ose; plus eighth grader Rick Rosetta.

The Prowlers' line-up will include: 200 freestyle — Rude, Amundson; 200 I.M. — Dave Ose, Garza; 50 freestyle — Eric Ose, Helm; diving — Wing, Jeff Rosetta, Rick Rosetta; 100 butterfly — Rick Rosetta, Amundson; 100 freestyle — Dave Ose, Helm; 500 freestyle — Rude; 100 backstroke — Wing, Rivera; 100 breaststroke — Achenbach, Wefald, Garza; and the 400 freestyle relay — Wing, Amundson, Rude and Eric Ose.

Best state meet bets for the Prowlers rest with Wing and Jeff Rosetta in the diving, along with the 400-yard freestyle relay combination of Wing, Amundson, Rude and Eric Ose.

First-year Thief River Falls head coach Jay Forney has high hopes for Wing and Jeff Rosetta in the diving competition. "We expect them to finish 1-2 in the section, and we expect them to finish in the top 12 at state," he says matter-of-factly. "They're that good. Those guys have really worked hard, and it shows."

Meanwhile, the 400-yard freestyle relay unit, seeded into the Section 4 meet with a 1:54 clocking, turned in a neat 1:51 effort last Friday in a season-ending dual meet here against Moorhead. They didn't get it into the books because of a disqualification in the event, but that time ranks among the best in the section.

Rest of the youthful Prowlers will apparently have to be content with making individual improvement this weekend.

"It's going to be real tough as far as the swimmers go," explained Forney, who watched the Prowlers finish 4-8 in dual meet competition this winter. "We're a very young team," he continued, "but we've shown steady improvement this season. The times are dropped throughout the year. There's been some real improvement."

by John Michael Anderson

Two fine indoor ice facilities gave Thief River Falls the rare opportunity to host two hockey tournaments over the weekend.

Second annual Ronald McDonald Pee-Wee A Invitational was held in the old arena, with Seven Oaks of Winnipeg defeating Crookston 2-1 for championship honors. Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team took third place honors with a 5-3 victory over arch-rival Bemidji, taking a 3-0 lead after one period on a pair of goals by Kent Hamre and a single tally by Errin Kolden. Bemidji forced a 3-3 tie before Hamre scored the winner at 5:29 of the second period. Thief River Falls had won its quarterfinal game over Fargo South 13-0 before losing in the semifinals to district champion 5-4 in overtime. Fergus Falls shut out Fargo South 10-0 for consolation honors.

Bemidji, coached by Lincoln high school graduate John Wangberg, captured championship honors in the Ninth District VFW Bantam A tournament held in the sports arena with a 4-2 victory over Fergus Falls. Thief River Falls VFW Bantam A team reached the semifinals by defeating Roseau 3-2 on goals by Allen Erickson and Scott Novak late in the third period. Thief River Falls then lost 9-5 to Bemidji and 9-4 to East Grand Forks in the third place game. Moorhead defeated Detroit Lakes 7-2 for consolation honors.

National Wildlife Federation News Release

Reach for a Kleenex facial tissue, and you'll read a wildlife message.

Kimberly-Clark Corporation, makers of Kleenex tissues, has teamed up with the National Wildlife Federation to present a new series of public service messages featuring six birds and animals native to North America.

Prepared by the FWS, the series comprises illustrations and descriptions ot the white-tailed deer, mallard duck, red squirrel, robin, bald eagle and bobcat.

Stated on each of the tissue packages is the theme: "As each of us discovers the excitement of nature around us, we gain a better appreciation of its great beauty, variety and value. Kimberly-Clark joins with the National Wildlife Federation in urging you to share in the responsibility for protecting it."

The series appears on the bottom panel of the packages which the company has devoted to a number of different public service messages in recent years. Packages with the wildlife vignettes are expected to start appearing soon on retail shelves in supermarkets and drug stores. The program will continue for an indefinite period.

Paul A. Jones, senior vice president of Kimberly-Clark and a member of the FWS corporate conservation council, said: "We are very pleased to cooperate with the National Wildlife Federation in bringing this informational program into countless homes and offices — wherever Kleenex tissue is used. We believe it will be an interesting and enjoyable series for everyone, but especially for young people."

Dr. Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice President of the National Wildlife Federation, said: "We welcome this chance to share our knowledge of native wildlife with millions of Americans, thanks to the generous help of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation."

TRF 9-2 Over Detroit Lakes In Semifinals

beat big Detroit Lakes defenseman Butch Inderrieden to the puck, cut in front of Meyhoff and got off a shot at 6:21 of the first period that dribbled by Meyhoff.

Bergland got his second goal when he was set up beautifully in front on a power play at 8:43. Meyhoff was pulled to his left on the play and Bergland got the puck on the right side for a wide open target.

Semanko and Bakke opened it up by scoring 61 seconds apart late in the period to double the margin to 4-0. Semanko quickly converted a centering pass at 13:44 and Bakke benefitted from some sharp passing when he was set up in front at 14:45.

"When you dig a grave like that, it's hard to come back," admitted Earnest.

Thief River Falls broke it wide open with three goals in a 3:06 blitz during the second period as Wiskow tapped in a rebound at 5:32; Bergland completed his hat trick when he was set up in front on a power play at 7:46; and Wiskow scored a quick 52 seconds later to make it 7-0.

After goals by Mark Lorentzen late in the second period and by Chris Ahles (shorthanded) early in the third period had lifted Detroit Lakes' sinking spirits, Thief River Falls wrapped it up on power play goals by Bottem and Wiskow, who caromed a shot from the side of the net off Meyhoff's pads for his hat trick at 6:07.

There were 14 penalties in the game, eight of them coming during the third period that was played mostly with running time since the Prowlers owned at least a six-goal lead.

Thief River Falls will carry a 16-5-1 record into the finals. Detroit Lakes finished 9-15.

"We went as far as our talent could take us," explained Earnest. "They had too much depth. They wore us out."

EGF 2

Chad Johnson scored two goals and linemate Bruce Helgeson got the game winner at 8:55 of the third period Monday as Roseau edged host East Grand Forks in a low-scoring, but wide-open Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game.

"The puck could have gone either way in that one," acknowledged Roseau coach Gary Hokanson with a sigh of relief. "We were fortunate it went our way at the end and we won."

East Grand Forks, a surprise 7-4 first round winner over No. 1-seeded Fergus Falls last Friday to reach the semifinals, had dreams of another upset Monday when Phil Burke staked the Green Wave to an early 1-0 first period lead on a rebound goal at 2:42.

Roseau, a 5-1 first round winner over Bemidj, tied it on Johnson's first goal of the night off a nice passing play from Lyle Dahlgren from behind the East Grand Forks net at 9:20.

Johnson took the puck away from East Grand Forks' Craig Mack in the corner and beat goalie Joel Duray on a high shot at 12:39 to give the Rams a 2-1 edge at the first period intermission.

Ryan Christiansen scored on a power play rebound at 5:36 of the second period to tie it again, 2-1.

Helgeson got the game-winner when he came up with the puck along the boards and came in 2-on-0 with Johnson. He kept the puck himself and put his shot from the top of the face-off circle to the right of Duray just inside the right goal post.

Defending Section 8 champion East Grand Forks ended the year 10-11-3. Roseau moves into Friday's 7:30 p.m. championship game with a 17-6 record.

DNR NEWS

Donations to the nongame wildlife checkoff are being used for over 50 wildlife conservathon projects in Minnesota, including restoration of the endangered peregrine falcon, according to Carrol L. Henderson, nongame wildlife supervisor, Department of Natural Resources.

Peregrine falcon became a federally endangered species in the 1950's and 1960's because DDT caused thinning of their eggshells and subsequent failure of their eggs to hatch. Formerly they nested on the cliffs along the Mississippi river in southeastern Minnesota, on the North Shore of Lake Superior, and in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area.

This species has been used by falconers in the Middle East and Europe for thousands of years. It can pursue prey species like blue jays and shorebirds at speeds up to 180 miles per hour. The peregrine falcon is the fastest bird in the world.

Current efforts to restore this native species represent a cooperative effort by several organizations, donors to the Minnesota Chapter of The Nature Conservancy, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Bell Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota, the Raptor Research and Rehabilitation Program at the University of Minnesota, and the nongame wildlife checkoff program of the Department of Natural Resources. Last year $10,000 of nongame wildlife checkoff funds were used to help fund the peregrine falcon restoration project.

Five peregrine falcon chicks were brought to Minnesota from captive breeding facilities at the University of Saskatchewan in Canada. They were released at a protected area of suitable habitat southeast of Lake City. One chick was unfortunately eaten by a great horned owl, one was injured and will be released again in 1983, and the other three were successfully released.

Future plans call for up to 20 young falcons to be released annually until they again begin nesting in Minnesota.

Peregrine falcons have traditionally been considered one of the most dramatic, aerodynamically exciting birds in the world. Their reestablishment will be an accomplishment Minnesota's citizens can look forward to.

Nongame wildlife program has produced a beautiful 17x22 inch color poster of a peregrine falcon. The poster is available free from the Department of Natural Resources. Posters are available from the following regional nongame wildlife specialists: Katie Hursch at Bemidji (218-755-2976); Jack Mooty at Grand Rapids (218-327-1732); Pam Skoog at Brainerd (218-828-2228); and John Schladweiler at New Ulm (507-354-2196).

Tree Planting Program

Governor Perpich has announced "Put Down Your Roots in Minnesota", a campaign to plant trees in communities all over the state.

"I encourage every Minnesotan to plant a tree this year," said Governor Perpich. "Trees are important to Minnesota — today, and in the future. They provide habitat for wildlife, control soil erosion, reduce energy needs and provide fuel and other wood products. If we are to have a thriving wood products industry in 50 years, we have to plant trrees today."

Through the "Put Down Your Roots" campaign, volunteer organizations including the Federated Garden Clubs of Minnesota Inc., Isaak Walton League chapters, church groups, Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, and many others will be planting DNR seedlings on public land.

To receive the free tree planting packet, which explains how to organize a tree planting and fund raising campaign, and the order forms for seedlings available from the DNR, write to "Trees", Governor's Quality Environment Project, 101 Capitol Square Building, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Wildlife Week Is Slated Mar. 20-26

As an American citizen, you are a part owner of 740 million acres of this country's public lands — approximately one-third of the United States.

This year, national wildlife week will focus on the importance of these public lands. "This Is Your Land — Public Lands Belong to All of Us" is the theme for wildlife week, scheduled for March 20-26. It is the 46th such annual educational effort by the National Wildlife Federation.

Country singer Loretta Lynn is 1983's wildlife week chairperson. She has donated time to making radio and television public service announcements, singing Woody Guthrie's song, "This Land Is Your Land," and talking about the need for protecting the public estate.

Each year, hundreds of thousands of schoolchildren learn about wildlife week with information provided in specially prepared education kits, and millions more learn about it from broadcast announcements and media attention to the conservation theme.

By focusing on public lands, this year's wildlife week promotes an understanding of the importance of public lands to the nation's wildlife, and the enjoyment these lands provide for hunters, hikers, boaters, campers and outdoor enthusiasts.

The week is also a time to rekindle the American desire to learn about the history and land policies that established the public domain, and to gain an awareness of the complexity of balancing the competing needs on public lands.

"Today, America's growing population and demand for limited natural resources have greatly increased the need to manage our public lands wisely," said Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice-President of the National Wildlife Federation. "Everyone who is concerned about our public lands — from the forests to the parks and wildlife refuges — can help decide how our public resources can be utilized without sacrificing conservation principles."

Facts about public lands:

+ National Park Service was established in 1916 and now manages 74 million acres of land.

+ Public lands are rich in fossil fuels, timber and minerals.

+ Mount McKinley in Alaska is the highest mountain in North America, at 20,320 feet.

+ Death Valley is the Western Hemisphere's lowest land surface.

Free Guide shows your new 1983 Medicare benefits . . . and how you can supplement them to avoid loss!

If you're age 65 or over—fill out the Free Guide coupon below and mail it today. We'll rush you, by mail, without cost or obligation, a special 1983 guide to Medicare specifically written for senior citizens like yourself.

With this free, up-to-date 1983 Medicare guide, called "Health Insurance for Senior Citizens," you'll have all the important facts about your current Medicare benefits right at your fingertips.

1983 Medicare deductibles higher than ever!

With this Guide, you can see for yourself what the higher Medicare "initial deductibles" and "co-payments"—which you must pay for yourself—can mean to your budget.

For example, for a trip to the hospital, you must pay the initial Medicare hospital deductible—now at a record-high of $304.00—with money out of your own pocket. And that's a bill you'll have to pay every time you go into the hospital in a new Medicare "benefit period!"

You'll also find important Medicare terms that can be confusing—like "benefit period"—spelled out in "plain English" as well as the optional Medicare Part B medical benefits.

And, this Free Guide, "Health Insurance for Senior Citizens," also contains a handy chart that tells you at-a-glance what Medicare will—and won't pay for. It's a "must" these days for all senior citizens!

What you don't know about Medicare could cost you plenty.

The fact is, Medicare—even when it started back in 1966—was never meant to cover all your bills. And because of soaring hospital, surgical and other medical costs, your share of the bills is growing bigger and bigger every year.

So you can see that, what you don't know about Medicare now, could cost you plenty in the future. That's why it's so important to your security and peace of mind to send for this Free Guide today.

Valuable money-saving tips on how to avoid loss.

These days, you simply can't afford to depend on Medicare alone to pay your hospital and medical bills. You need good supplemental coverage, too. But with all the different offers you've no doubt seen for Medicare insurance supplements, how can you know which plan is right for you?

That's just one more way you'll find this informative guide so valuable! It gives you a simple, step-by-step "check-list" you can use to select the Medicare supplement that fits your protection needs and your budget.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3889.

SWCD Board At Grygla OKs Two Projects

At the monthly board meeting recently, supervisors of the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD voted to accept two more cost-share contracts for four more erosion control structures. This approval is to help an area with an erosion control hazard and the installations must meet the standards and specifications set by the soil conservation service, according to Ralph Rundell, district conservationist. Sometimes a different approach may be the solution — by draining the water a different direction or installing grassed waterways, Rundell said.

Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district still has over $1,000 in funds available for cost-share practices under the state program. Besides erosion control structures, cost-share assistance is also available for stripcropping, diversions, stormwater control systems, field windbreaks, critical area stabilization and animal waste control systems. Contact the district office in Grygla for more information.

IRS Offers Tax Credit For Elderly

Taxpayers 65 and older, and taxpayers under 65 who receive taxable retirement income from a public retirement system, may be able to claim a credit for the elderly.

The maximum credit is $375 for single taxpayers and $562.50 for married taxpayers filing a joint form 1040, the Internal revenue service (IRS) said. Because this is a credit, it is subtracted directly from the total tax but cannot be greater than the total tax.

IRS will compute the credit if the taxpayer follows the instructions in the tax package and files Schedule R&RP, "Credit for the Elderly," with the Form 1040. The credit cannot be claimed on Form 1040A or on Form 1040EZ.

More information on the credit for the elderly is available in the free IRS Publication 524, "Credit for the Elderly." It can be ordered by using the order blank in the tax package.

Handicapped Entitled To Deduct Expense

If you are handicapped, or you have a handicapped dependent, you may have more special medical expenses than most people. Although medical expenses are deductible on your federal income tax return, the IRS tax code does not define "handicapped," says the Minnesota Society of CPAs, which means confusion and possibly lost benefits to the handicapped.

Only tax break specifically designated for the handicapped is the $1,000 exemption for blindness. In 1980, more than 185,000 taxpayers claimed that exemption. Because this exemption reflects only one segment of the total handicapped population — which may be as high as 36 million — it's important to be aware of all potential tax savings.

Some expenses fall into more than one deduction category, such as "business" or "medical." For instance, a blind person who must hire a "reader" to help do his job could claim that expense as a business deduction. Same applies to a handicapped professional who pays the expenses of a companion to accompany him on a business trip to help him deal with problems of traveling, lodging, meals or medical treatment. There are other expenses that could qualify, so it would be wise to obtain professional help in examining them.

If you must pay someone to care for your handicapped dependent so you can work, a portion of the costs qualify for the dependent care tax credit, and the balance can be included with your medical deductions.

Most other special expenses for the handicapped qualify as medical deductions, but the entire expense is not necessarily deductible. Cost of a special telephone or a "captioned" television set for a deaf person is deductible only to the extent that it exceeds the cost of an ordinary instrument. That principle also applies to Braille books or a specially built car. (Devices installed on an ordinary car to assist the handicapped are entirely deductible.)

Some capital improvements can be taken as partial deductions. If a doctor requires you or your handicapped dependent to have a pool at home for hydrotherapy, you could be eligible for tax benefits. If the pool costs $5,000, but adds $3,000 to your property value, you can deduct $2,000 — the difference between the cost and the increased value. Maintaining the pool is entirely deductible.

Other capital expenses that may qualify for deductions include air conditioning, elevators, barrier removal, special additions or garages needed to accommodate the handicapped person. If you are a tenant and you pay for such improvements in your apartment, you may be able to deduct the full cost.

Cost of buying and caring for a guide dog is deductible — and so is the salary of a person you engage as a guide if this is necessary for a handicapped person to get to work or school.

Special education expenses for handicapped people may also be deductible as medical expenses; the cost of a note taker for a blind or deaf student, for instance, or the cost of training in lip-reading. General rule here is that all educational costs are deductible as medical expenses if they prepare the handicapped person for a normal life and are pertinent to medical care.

Traveling costs to receive medical treatment or therapy are deductible. If you must accompany your handicapped dependent or you hire someone else to do so, those expenses are also deductible. If a handicapped person is required by his doctor to drive a car, as part of the therapy, then operating costs are deductible at nine cents a mile.

Special foods or beverages ordered by a doctor may also be deductible if taken only as part of the treatment. This is not a valid deduction if the food is part of your general nutritional needs. Doctor's statement is necessary to back this up, but don't hesitate to claim any deduction for which you are qualified.

Most of us cannot deduct health club fees and expenses, but a handicapped person can if the doctor prescribes the activity, such as special exercise or massage for a particular handicap.

There are many more deductible expenses connected with helping the handicapped maintain a stable life style, so check with your tax advisor. You owe it to yourself to save all you can.

IT'S A FACT!

A new mortgage plan is available to homeowners and buyers that has lower effective interest rates—sometimes even in single digits. The plan—called the "Fannie Mae" Mortgage Solution—is available on any one- to four-family home on which the existing mortgage is owned by Fannie Mae, the nickname of the Federal National Mortgage Association, which is the largest single source of mortgage money in the country. Under the plan, existing FNMA loans can be "traded in" by a home owner or buyer for a new Fannie Mae loan.

The new loan can be for up to 95 percent of the appraised current market value of the home. A brochure that tells all about the Fannie Mae Mortgage Solution is available free by writing to: Federal National Mortgage Association, Mortgage Solution, 3900 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016.

Autism Studies At 'U'M Test Drug Effects

Promising drug therapy for the treatment of autism has been approved for use in an experimental study by the department of psychiatry at the University of Minnesota.

Twelve to 15 children, ages 3 to 18, will participate in the study during the next two years, according to Dr. George Realmuto, assistant professor of psychiatry.

Minnesota is one of six medical centers in the United States testing the effects of fenfluramine in autistic children in a food and drug administration study. Drug is more commonly known as a prescription medication for the obese.

Preliminary results from researchers at UCLA, released in the New England Journal of Medicine in July, showed that fenfluramine can improve intelligence levels in autistic children. Scientists cautioned that much more study is needed before the drug is made available for autistic individuals.

Autism is a baffling mental illness that occurs in about five out of every 10,000 babies. Autistic children seem to live in a dreamworld, generally avoiding contact with other people and often remaining totally silent.

About 40 per cent of autistic children have an oversupply of the brain chemical serotonin. In their study of three autistic boys, UCLA researchers reported that fenfluramine reduced serotonin levels and "this reduction was accompanied by improvements in behavior and cognitive function."

Realmuto, director of the inpatient child psychiatric unit at University of Minnesota hospitals, has observed rapid improvement of autistic children taking the drug. He cautions that the medication does have side effects that need careful observation, adding that the multi-center study is designed to answer questions about the long-term effects of fenfluramine.

In the Minnesota study, children will receive fenfluramine daily for seven months. Parents will be asked to keep a daily diary recording any changes in behavior and feelings of their children. Children will visit the university once a month for IQ testing and observation by psychiatrists and therapists. During this evaluation, patients will be videotaped to detect minor changes in behavior.

"We plan to accumulate a lot of data on language, cognitive function and social interaction," Realmuto said.

Realmuto cautioned that fenfluramine has not been approved for use in autistic people outside carefully controlled research projects such as the one at the university.

For more information on the program, contact Realmuto at (612) 373-8871.

Minn. History Seminar Is Given At UMC

For history buffs in particular, but for everyone in general, a new course has been added to the spring quarter offerings of continuing education at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC). Courses begin the week of March 7, according to Dr. Richard Christenson, continuing education coordinator.

"Seminar: Settlement of Minnesota," taught by Dr. Stephen Sylvester, assistant professor of social sciences, will look at the discovery, exploration, and settlement of Minnesota through the bonanza farm era which ended about 1915.

"Each session will concentrate on a particular area, including the development of agriculture, social problems, Indian problem, food, shelter, fuel and politics," Sylvester said.

Course is designed as primarily a discussion course. Reading materials will be on reserve in Kiehle library or available at cost at the class session.

Settlement of Minnesota will be taught from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays, beginning March 9, for five weeks in Dowell hall 128. Fee is $28 for one credit.

Grain Market Seminar Held At UMC Feb. 21

Over 100 were in Kiehl Auditorium on the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus February 21 for a seminar titled "Looking at the 80's — A View of the Grain Markets". Interest and concern over the farming outlook and new government programs were reflected in the questions asked by the audience attending this winter show event.

The seminar was sponsored by the Minneapolis grain exchange in cooperation with Minnesota wheat growers. Speakers included area extension agent Bill Penning, Thief River Falls; Bob Miller, general manager of St. Hilaire Coop Elevator; Keith Bjerke, Northwood, ND; Donald Nelson, staff economist for the Minneapolis grain exchange; and Merrill Donoho, director of regional grain operations for General Mills.

The first collective bargaining agreement in the U.S. was obtained in 1795 by Philadelphia printers, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

In 1937, General Motors Corp. agreed to recognize the United Automobile Works (CIO) as the bargaining agent for its members, to drop injunction proceedings against strikers, to not discriminate against union members, and to establish grievance procedures, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

My Own Two Feet

I didn't need God! Used to boast about how I could stand on my own two feet.

Then came the broken leg. With lots of time to think and little to do I began to discover another dimension of our existence. We aren't simply "on our own." Some divine purpose links our life to the Creator. Seeking that purpose and striving to fulfill it — that's what life is really about.

I started going to church on crutches.

The leg is fine now, except for that ache when it's going to rain. My larger view of life continues to enrich each day.

And I'm finding it easier to attend worship — on my own two feet!

Yam casseroles are delicious at every season of the year. Although we used to think of yams only at Thanksgiving and other winter holiday meals, this versatile vegetable is now making appearances on menus the year round. And people are discovering that yam side dishes are a great flavor companion to ham and other roasted meats.

Now, when you're planning your Easter and other spring holiday dinners, is a good time to try Orange Mallow Yam Bake. This new recipe was developed by the Home Economists in the Kraft Kitchens especially to feature the natural flavors we seem to crave with the advent of spring.

Fresh orange slices contribute a citrus contrast to the canned yams. And toasted miniature marshmallows top off the casserole with just the right amount of sweetness and an attractive finish.

Besides being delicious, Orange Mallow Yam Bake is so easy (it takes only minutes to make it oven-ready), you'll want to fix it often.

Orange Mallow Yam Bake

- 2 17-oz. cans yams, drained
- 2 oranges, peeled, sliced, cut in half
- ¼ cup brown sugar, packed
- 1½ cups Kraft miniature marshmallows

Arrange yams and orange slices in a 1-1/2 quart shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake at 350°, 20 to 25 minutes. Sprinkle with marshmallows. Broil until lightly browned. 6 to 8 servings.

Teach Your Children Well

Following editorial is from the Fergus Falls Daily Journal:

Are your children learning as much in school as they should? Take this test to see if they are getting off to the right start:

How many times a month do your children see you reading a book, magazine, newspaper or trade publication?

How many channels of television do you receive in your home? Count all channels of all television sets. Compare this to your first answer.

The last time your child asked a question you couldn't answer, did you (a) Admit it and say, "Let's find out"; (b) Say, "Don't bother me, I'm busy"; or (c) Say, "Ask your teacher"?

Which of the following have you taken your children to see in the last 12 months? (a) A museum; (b) a library; (c) a zoo; (d) a play or concert; (e) a historic site or demonstration.

Has your child ever heard you say (a) "History is boring." (b) "I never worked hard in school, and I turned out OK"; or (c) "I never use half the junk I learned in school"?

When your child has misbehaved, do you send him to his room to do his homework?

Since this is not a scientifically designed test, there is no official interpretation of the scores. The questions obviously reflect our opinion that parents are responsible for fostering a child's interest in knowledge and learning. "Children learn what they live" is one of the truest maxims of education.

This isn't just our opinion, either. The Minnesota Reading Association points out that only about half of a child's progress in reading is the result of school learning. The rest happens — or doesn't happen — outside the classroom.

Quality education in school is, of course, important. The point is that schools, even at their best, can't be expected to do the job alone. Parents and teachers need to be partners in education. The MRA suggests that parents "provide positive role models," which is phychological jargon for "show your children that you enjoy reading." Helping children select the right books for their reading level, planning reading activities at home, making regular trips to the library with children, and encouraging children to read about subjects they're interested in (hobbies, animals, sports,) are other tips.

Fergus Falls and many other school districts statewide have sent home special February calendars with suggested activities that can help the whole family become involved in reading. The MRA prepared the materials as part of "I Love to Read Month." Suggested activities range from bedtime reading to finding ten new words to playing "Charades" using book titles.

Helping children discover the job of reading and learning may well be the most important gift parents can give. It's certainly one that lasts a lifetime.

Don't Play Politics

Following editorial is from the national newspaper "USA Today":

There is an 11th Commandment that members of Congress ought to plaster on their walls, carve on their desks, or stamp indelibly on their foreheads: Don't play politics with Social Security.

Two Democrats — House Majority Leader James C. Wright of Texas and Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia — sinned against this commandment last week when they threatened to undermine the bipartisan compromise to save the Social Security system.

Wright and Byrd said they would wreck the compromise unless President Reagan delayed or gave up the scheduled third year of his tax cut. Why make the old suffer, they asked, while the wealthy are profiting?

As a political rhetoric, the question makes sense. As government policy, it is a disaster. As unwise as the tax cut may be, without reform Social Security will die.

One American in seven depends on Social Security payments. Trifle with that, and you trifle with people's lives — the bread on their tables, the clothes on their backs, their faith in the future.

People are passionate about changes in the system. That was the first hurdle facing the President's bipartisan commission. The second was aggreeing on the magnitude of the problem: the need for $150 billion to $200 billion between now and 1990, and for a $1.5 trillion reserve by 2010, when the baby-boom generation starts to retire.

The last hurdle was finding a compromise that could satisfy Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, old and young, rich and poor. The result may not be the best solution, but it is the best of all possible solutions:

+ The payroll tax increase of three-tenths of 1 per cent, scheduled for 1985, would be moved up to 1984.

+ Benefits would be taxed for single people with incomes above $20,000 a year ($25,000 for married couples).

+ Coverage would be mandatory for all new federal workers; local and state workers could no longer drop out.

+ The annual July cost-of-living adjustment for beneficiaries would be delayed until January.

The payroll tax hike is the most controversial part of the plan; 55 per cent of Americans oppose it. The delay in benefits is the most objectionable. Though many people with incomes over $30,000 receive Social Security, many more depend on every penny. More than a quarter of all single women over 65 subsist on less than $4,000 per year.

But given the politics, given the passion, any agreement at all is something of a miracle. Wright and Byrd, after sending up their trail balloon, cut and ran when it came under fire. Anyone else led into temptation should learn the 11th Commandment, and pray for the wisdom to keep it.

Greed and Gluts

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

OPEC, the house that greed built, seems to have a serious crack in its foundation. And that's a lack of unanimity and cohesion resulting from national interests rising above the over-all interests of the cartel.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Counties (OPEC) has managed to drive up, artificially, the price of oil to the U.S. and other industrial countries. It did that by taking over the pricing of oil from market forces to a monopoly cartel.

But its greed in raising oil prices has helped to create the condition from which it is now suffering. As oil prices increased there was intensified conservation, smaller automobiles were built and more efficient ways of using petroleum products were found.

Conservation, coupled with a world-wide recession, has created an oil glut. There is more of it than is needed and OPEC has competition which it did not have in earlier years. Britain, Norway and Mexico have emerged as large oil producers. And, of course, they do not belong to OPEC.

Because of the oil glut OPEC members started undercutting each other on price when national interests superseded loyalty to the cartel. So last March they held a meeting designed to hold price to $34 per barrel and reduce the overproduction. Quotas were assigned to each country.

They then went home and kept on over-producing and undercutting each other on price and giving secret discounts. That resulted in the meeting held in Geneva. Again they seemed to agree to production quotas and price maintenance.

But then greed took hold again. Iran and Libya wanted to produce more than their quotas. The Geneva meeting broke up and they went home. Sheikh Amani of Saudi Arabia said that the meeting was a complete failure.

So what can be expected of them now? It will probably be dog eat dog as each country tries to maintain its sales at the cost of others. So much for unity. And lurking in the background are the non-OPEC members who can produce as they like. Mexico has already said that it intends to increase its exports this year.

The plight of the OPEC cartel has, strangely, brought about some worry in the upper echelons of international finance. Some bankers feel that cartel members will not be able to pay their debts, or the interest thereon, because of reduction in their income.

Isn't that too bad! The burden of the OPEC increases was not carried by the oil companies, nor the industries which use oil. The final burden was paid by the people of the industrial world nations, the ultimate consumers.

Greed has resulted in more greed and perhaps an ultimate downfall.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Not having a good command of the English language may sometimes be an asset. We'll bet the letter written by a lawyer from India to a person who owed his client money got results. The letter read, "Dear Sir: Unless you pay the rupees that you owe within seven days we shall take such steps that will cause you the utmost damned astonishment."

Whooping Cranes Are Thriving

The whoopers are back! In December, the rare whooping cranes completed their annual 2,500-mile commute from summer nesting in Canada to their winter resort at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas coast.

The world's largest flock of whoopers—the most protected bird in North America—shares the 54,000-acre sanctuary with other endangered species, more than 300 varieties of birds and mammals and petroleum prospectors who have been drilling for oil and natural gas in the area since petroleum was discovered there in 1939.

Conoco Inc., which held leases on the site even before it was established as a refuge in 1937, has produced 5.7 million barrels of oil and 204 billion cubic feet of natural gas there since beginning production in 1947, without harming the environment or endangering the wildlife.

From October to April when the cranes are wintering, Conoco works closely with the Fish and Wildlife Service—which administers the refuge—to ensure maximum protection for the birds. When necessary, the company shuts down drilling operations near their homesites.

Since Conoco began production on the refuge, the whooping crane population has increased from 31 to 73, at last count.

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Our economic mess is providing high unemployment, ever growing state and federal deficits, with an increasing inability for American products to compete overseas.

In studying the problem over the next few weeks, we will break it into bite-size pieces, today concentrating on the impact of interest rates.

Homebuilding is a wonderful industry, because when it booms, not only tradesmen benefit, but everyone from the forest industries to basic metals, furniture and appliances benefits. Homebuilding has been extremely depressed for years. Recently, as mortgage interest rates have dropped from 17 per cent to 12 per cent, more building permits are being issued and new homes are beginning to sprout up all over.

Using a $125,000 home as an example, with an 80 per cent, $100,000 30-year mortgage, and excluding insurance and real estate tax payments made monthly, the principal and interest payments at (1) $600 per month at six per cent, with total 30-year interest of $115,839; (2) $878 per month at 10 per cent, with total interest of $215,929; (3) $1,029 per month at 12 per cent, with total interest of $270,307, and (4) $1,345 per month at 16 per cent, with total interest of $384,087.

If your financial institution limits your monthly payment for a home to 30 per cent of your income (and that limit must include insurance and taxes), you would need an income of $27,700 at six per cent, $43,100 at 10 per cent, $49,200 at 12 per cent and $61,800 at 16 per cent. A look at what American families earn will demonstrate that most families could not qualify for a loan even at six per cent. That's why the effective market for new homes disappears as interest rates skyrocket, even though interest and real estate taxes are currently deductible.

The auto industry is, to a large extent, dependent on interest rates, too. Using a $7,000 car, with 10 per cent down: (1) at 7½ per cent the monthly payment is $152, and total loan interest over four years is $1,012; (2) at 11.9 per cent, the monthly payment is $166 with loan interest $1,649; and (3) at 16 per cent the monthly payment is $179 with loan interest $2,270.

Two recent efforts to increase sales with low interest loans both stimulated big sales and proved that lower interest rates do help increase auto sales.

Our national debt is affected, too. Each one per cent increase or decrease in the interest rates potentially affects our national debt by up to $10 billion.

Interest rates are significant to a healthy American economy. High interest rates discourage sales and reduce demand for goods and service, while increasing federal deficits. Low interest rates can encourage sales and increase demand for goods and services, while reducing the federal deficit.

If you want to create a depression, putting a lot of our people out of work and increasing our nation's problems, one sure way to accomplish that objective is with high interest rates. This isn't just a technical discussion for bankers and those involved in finance. Higher interest rates mean fewer employed people and lots of problems for business and consumers.

Last July, the prime interest rate was 15½ per cent. Today the prime interest rate is about 11 per cent, down 29 per cent. Banks were paying in 1982 an effective 15+ per cent with daily compounding of interest on savings certificates, and that's now down to nine per cent, down 40 per cent. Yet you still find consumer loans, commercial loans to small business and farmers, and many other loans at rates that haven't come down much at all. Those enjoying the benefit of the rate reductions include the federal government, foreign nations and larger businesses. The majority of us don't even know that interest rates have really dropped.

The nation's banks are trying to get the "little guy" who can least afford it to help make up for those bad foreign and failed-business loans and excessive overhead, while those who can most afford it are getting the "breaks". Most Americans don't know that banks can create multiple dollars for each dollar deposited, so that a bank's true cost of money is a lot less than you would suspect, a subject for a future column.

So to achieve a real recovery, as one step in the process, we must get interest rates down to the single digit level and keep them there.

More on how to resolve our economic mess next week.

That's Straight Talk!

GATZKE . . .

They're secure because they know All-Risk Insurance not only protects their farm income against total losses from natural disasters, it works to minimize your losses as well.

And that's good risk management. Because when you're protected against major losses, your basic net worth is more secure. And, when borrowing money, that's a more important consideration today than ever before.

All-Risk premiums are 100% tax deductible, too. And by marketing several insurance programs, PCA can also provide the flexibility farmers require.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE PIE

Chocolate mousse is an exceedingly popular dessert on restaurant menus. But it's served less often at home, probably because most recipes sound complex, take more than an hour to prepare, and dirty a half-dozen pans and bowls in the process.

Not this recipe. It's "easy as pie." In fact, it is a pie!

Chocolate Mousse Pie requires only three ingredients, only one bowl, and only three minutes to make. Canned chocolate pudding and frozen whipped topping form a fluffy chocolate mousse filling for freezing in a ready-made chocolate crumb crust (sold in its own foil pan).

Easy as pie? Certainly. And that can be the cook's secret. No one who tastes this luscious "ice cream pie" will guess how simple it is to prepare. The flavor and delicacy are comparable to those complicated French recipes.

Some of the extra time you save by fixing this easy dessert can be used to 'fuss' with chocolate curls for garnish, if you have the creative inclination. Here are two recommended ways to 'curl' chocolate.

The most straightforward method is to shave thin strips from a thick milk chocolate bar, using a vegetable peeler. Slowly pull the peeler toward you and watch the curls 'magically' form.

Another approach is to melt about one-fourth cup chocolate chips or solid semi-sweet chocolate (or a combination of the two). Use very low heat or a microwave oven. Spread a very thin 'icing' of melted chocolate onto a rim-less metal cookie sheet. Chocolate should be about one-sixteenth inch thin. Set pan in refrigerator or freezer for a few minutes to chill chocolate to the right state: just firm but not brittle. Mark inch-wide strips, then hold a flexible, narrow spatula at a 40-degree angle to roll up curls. Any failures can be re-melted and the process repeated.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE PIE

1 can (17.5 oz.) Thank You Brand Chocolate or Chocolate Fudge Pudding
1 carton (9 oz.) frozen dairy-blend whipped topping, thawed
1 ready-made chocolate crumb pie crust

With electric mixer or wire whip, gently combine pudding and whipped topping. Fill pie shell, swirling mousse into a pretty pattern on top. Freeze until firm before serving. (Clear plastic crust liner can be inverted for a protective dome to cover pie during freezing).

Pie can be served solidly frozen, but for less icy texture—soften pie for a few minutes at room temperature or for one hour in refrigerator. If desired, garnish pie with additional whipped topping and chocolate curls.

Underprivileged children . . . a Kiwanis concern

An enthusiastic youngster manuevers a wheelchair across the "balance bridge" under the smiling gaze of Kiwanis International president John T. Roberts at a playground in Baton Rouge, Louisiana for orthopedically handicapped children the club built last year. Over 8,000 Kiwanis clubs raised more than $26.2 million for community services projects last year.

"It is my sincere belief that the philosophy of Kiwanis will play a major role in the survival of mankind. The fellowship Kiwanians share provides a common goal, a bond that is strengthened each time we complete a service project because we get so much pleasure and satisfaction from helping others," Kiwanis International president John T. Roberts observes.

President Ronald Reagan recently urged more voluntarism at a time when government alone cannot solve all social problems.

Mr. Reagan stated he was "asking you . . . to encourage greater contributions of voluntary effort and personal involvement to form a partnership between the private and public sectors."

Edwin Meese III, presidential counselor, cited during a volunteer reception, "Kiwanis International has been a leader in the voluntarism movement for a long time. MACI Head Emphasizes Contact Of Legislators President Winston Borden of the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry (MACI) met with Thief River Falls business people at a Friday morning breakfast to remind them of the importance of making their legislators aware of their problems and needs.

"We will do our best to make legislators aware of what we believe is necessary for a proper business climate in Minnesota," Borden said, "but we can't over-emphasize the importance of individual contact by the folks back home." The meeting was attended by about 40 local business people at the Best Western inn.

Borden touched on a number of areas of concern in the MACI legislative policy position. And he also cited the necessity for Minnesota business to grow and develop from within. He commended the community of Thief River Falls and individuals within the management structure of Northern Outerwear and Arctco, Inc., noting they are recent examples of business growing from within the community.

Regarding workers' compensation, Borden said the emphasis should be on a return to simplicity and to basics, on prompt payment of benefits when they are due, expeditious resolution of disputes and return of the injured employee to work as soon as possible. He said that workers' compensation costs in Minnesota should be competitive with those in neighboring states.

"Workers' compensation benefits should cover reasonable medical and health care costs, and a percentage of wages actually lost by reason of employment disability," Borden said. "Wage loss should be compensated only to the extent

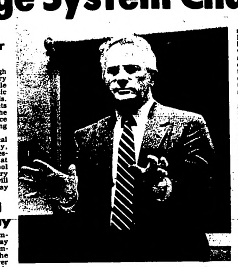
Dr. Helland Speaks At Northland . . .

Chancellor Anticipates College System Changes



CHANCELLOR Philip Helland of the Minnesota community college system spoke to a gathering of Northland community college faculty members, administrators, advisory board members and other interested area citizens Friday morning in the lecture hall at Northland. He gave his views on impending legislation and reviewed the background of the community college program.

While expressing the personal feeling that Thief River Falls is in a secure position because it has both a vocational-technical institute and a community college, chancellor Philip Helland of the Minnesota community college system also is certain that changes in the system are sure to come.

Chancellor Helland, who has guided the community college system since its inception and will retire this summer after 19 years of service, spoke Friday morning at the lecture hall at Northland community college here. In attendance were college administration, faculty, advisory committee members and other interested area citizens.

"I'm just as sure as I'm standing here that something in the way of change is going to happen," Dr. Helland said. "When the governor says there will be a change, when Rep. Sieben says there will be a change, when Sen. Moe says there will be a change — and their party is in power — then I have to believe the chances of change are pretty good."

The chancellor reviewed a number of potential changes which have been suggested and some of which have been introduced to the legislature in bill form. Two of the latter include bills to cut the number of institutions in all post-secondary areas and to combine the AVTI system with the community college system.

"I personally don't feel that either of those bills will pass because there is too much competition," the chancellor said. "But a bill which would combine AVTIs and community colleges in nine communities in the state which have both might have a chance of passing."

The chancellor prefaced his comments about pending

Franklin Pupils Prepare For LHS

by Julie Easton
Times Reporter

Transiton from middle school to high school can be traumatic, particularly if the student doesn't know what to expect.

With this in mind, Franklin middle school counselor Jim Fremstad is coordinating a program to prepare eighth grade students for high school and acquaint them with various career opportunities.

Process began February 28 when Kudar interest inventories were administered to all students in grade eight. The inventories are designed to help students develop an awareness of their interests and coordinate possible careers with those interests.

Students were then encouraged to intensively study one occupation they find appealing. Library materials and help from Fremstad, librarian Jane Oberg and English instructors Margaret Hogan and Sharon Stauss aided in this portion of the plan.

Through research the students discovered the salary, working conditions, educational requirements and job requirements in one career area.

Second portion of the unit concentrated on the aspects of high school education. Students were introduced to graduation requirements, course work for grade nine and educational requirements for vocational, post-secondary and collegiate education.

Emphasis was placed on the advantages of completing high school, maintaining a high grade point average and attending post-secondary institutions.

Lincoln high school teachers gave short presentations in the fields of agriculture, industrial arts, home economics and German to familiarize students with elective opportunities at Lincoln.

As the final phase of the program, the eighth graders will develop a tentative four-year plan and register for Lincoln high school classes on March 8. Lincoln personnel will assist in registration which takes place at the middle school.

CITING THE ADVANTAGES of enrolling in home economics courses, Lincoln high school instructor Janet Shaw speaks to eighth grade students at Franklin middle school. Introducing elective course offerings at the high school was one phase of a program the students went through in preparation for their freshman year. In addition, the students were familiarized with high school graduation requirements, courses for grade nine and educational requirements for vocational, post-secondary and collegiate education.

Bills On Education Get Consideration

Special To The Times
by Cathy Carsberg
Northern Star

Declining enrollment has left school buildings empty, economic troubles make state money tight, and legislators and the governor are straining for answers to education's problems.

Three proposals at the State Capitol offer solutions to make Minnesota's educational system more efficient but at the same time maintain quality, which is important to Minnesotans.

The proposals ask for:

+ Reducing the number of school superintendents to 50;

+ Monetary incentives for school districts to voluntarily pair; and

+ An in-depth legislative study of the state educational system.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has started hearing the various proposals as a member of the Senate education committee. He sees the study commission proposal looking at all facets of education funding and school organization as likely to pass.

On the other hand, the plan to set up 50 administrative districts isn't likely to make it, according to Stumpf. "We need a better, overall plan," he said.

However, Stumpf didn't count that out as part of a later solution, noting it appears to be a good concept used by the higher education system.

Pairing is a good idea, Stumpf said, and he believes the Perpich plan calling for a $50 per pupil unit incentive "is headed in the right direction."

Stumpf is quick to point to successful pairing and sharing efforts in his district. "It has strengthened the programs of smaller school districts. Pairing is the most reasonable approach on the horizon for the next few years," Stumpf concluded.

"If you act too fast, you can make a mistake," said Rep. Wallace Sparby of Thief River Falls. He would like to see a study commission set up. "I

County Judge Comments On State Divorce Law

Pennington county judge Larry Jorgenson made good on his offer to be supportive of an area organization which works positively toward changes in the law when he spoke to the Northwest Family Rights association Thursday evening in the Thief River Falls city auditorium basement meeting room.

In an earlier interview on actions by the court in divorce cases, Judge Jorgenson had said he would not object to formation of a men's rights group if that group acted responsibly to seek changes in the law. The group adopted the family rights title at its organizational meeting in February. Judge Jorgenson accepted an invitation to speak and answer general questions not related to specific cases at the March meeting.

A summary of Judge Jorgenson's comments will be carried in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Representatives to the Regional Nursing home pageant were selected and birthdays were observed at a joint celebration held at the Valley home, according to information reported by Ella Overum, the Home's news reporter.

Chosen to represent the Home at the pageant were Frank Haider and Ethel Monroe, who were elected by the residents. They were crowned by last year's royalty, Carl Ryan and Odessie Vraa.

Birthday honorees and the date of their birthdays were Petrina Geving, February 9; Katie Houfek, February 12; Anna Nelson, February 17; and Ethel Monroe, February 28.

The joint celebration began with the residents singing "You are my Sunshine," accompanied by Mrs. Lester Brekke, as the king and queen entered. A solo by Mrs. Marie Anderson followed. Other vocal selections were "Whispering Hope," by Verna Rood, Mildred Brekke and Dorothy Johnson, and "In the Sweet By and By," by the choir. Maynard Morrissey provided humor. American Legion Auxiliary Studies Reye's Syndrome

Reye's Syndrome, a medical mystery disease that afflicts children, generally after a viral infection, such as influenza, chicken pox or an upper respiratory infection, is being studied this year by the units of the American Legion auxiliary, according to Mrs. Constance Driscoll, president of the local unit.

The cause of Reye's Syndrome is yet unknown. Scientists do know that it is not contagious, although clusters of cases have occurred in areas. Since the disease often follows viral infections, it appears with greatest frequency during January, February and March, when influenza is most common. However, cases have been reported in every month of the year. An epidemic of flu or chicken pox is commonly followed by an increase in the number of cases. It afflicts children from infancy through the teenage years with the largest number of reported cases in the 5-10-year-old age group. It strikes children of both sexes and all races. The incidence is higher in black children less than one year of age. No child is immune.

The symptoms of Reye's Syndrome appear in two stages. In the first stage there is persistent of continuous vomiting, together with signs of brain dysfunctioning, such as listlessness, loss of pep and energy, and growing drowsiness. In stage two, there are personality changes, such as irritability and aggressive behavior; disorientation (confusion and irrational behavior); and delirium and convulsions. Fever is not usually present. Symptoms in infants do not follow a typical pattern. For example, vomiting does not always occur.

The disease causes abnormal accumulations of fat to develop in the liver and other organs of the body, and a severe increase of pressure in the brain. Unless diagnosed and treated successfully, death is common, often within a few days. When diagnosed and treated in its earliest stages, there is an excellent chance of recovery.

When the disease is suspected, two liver function tests should be done immediately. If those tests show abnormalities, further tests will be given for definite diagnosis. Children with Reye's Syndrome require services of an intensive care unit, and physicians and nurses experienced in the treatment of the disease. Survival is related to the severity of the swelling of the brain. Some children recover completely while others may sustain brain damage, extending from slight to severe brain dysfunction. Early diagnosis of Reye's Sybdrome is essential of treatment is to be successful.

Mrs. Driscoll stated that the purpose of the study is to make parents aware of the symptoms in order that medical aid may be sought at once. The study is being headed by the American Legion Americanism and Children and Youth divisions.

Information regarding the disease was provided by the National Reye's Syndrome foundation. The foundation was formed in 1974 to provide funds for research into the cause, treatment, cure and prevention of Reye's Syndrome; and to inform both the public and the medical fields that early detection and medical treatment is essential.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Most childhood playtime bumps and bruises are minor and are generally considered a normal part of growing.

Minnesota medical association (MMA) advises that head injuries can be potentially serious and parents are urged to be aware of symptoms which may indicate the need for immediate evaluation and treatment by a physician.

Parents are urged to examine the child when a head injury has occurred to determine whether there is: impaired consciousness, persistent vomiting, or lethargy which lasts for more than one-half hour.

Frequently children will act drowsy following a head injury. This is particularly true if the injury has occurred later in the day or if the child has cried excessively. Vomiting can be expected once or twice because of the excitement esperienced from the injury. The youthful patient should be allowed to sleep after the injury but should be aroused at one or two hour intervals.

If the patient vomits more than twice or continues to experience drowsiness, lack of energy, sluggishness or apathy, a concussion may be suspected.

Bleeding under the skin may be suspected when the injury produces instant swelling over the forehead. A black and blue mark lasting five to seven days will generally follow. The classic black eye may also be present as the result of blood drifting under the skin. Treatment should include the application of ice to the swelling.

When the head injury to a small child results in soft, spongy swelling over the skull and lasts more than twelve hours it may be necessary for the physician to check for a skull fracture. It is wise to have the head injured child examined by a physician when swelling persists even if other symptoms are absent.

Zehlian Group Name Explained

(Women's organizations have contributed to our community in many ways, and National Women's History Week, March 6-12, is an opportunity to share one of their stories. Mrs. Harold Rasmussen, historian of Zehlians, a General Federated Women's club, has compiled the following information.)

So many have asked what "Zehlian" means. Recently Mrs. L. Milton Larson of Fargo, a former member, told us that when the club was organized in the early 1940's, the charter members wished to honor a living artist because their purpose was to encourage and promote arts in Thief River Falls. Della Zeh, a painter of water-color pictures, was the only publicly recognized artist in town.

Mrs. Zeh was then confined to her home due to ill health, and when she was told the new club had named itself "Zehlians" in her honor, she was especially pleased. She said that she had been so depressed, being in ill health, alone and confined to a wheel chair, that she had been praying to die. "Just think," she said, "if I had, I never would have known about this honor." Some of the members who knew her best did special things for her in the name of the club.

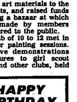
The Zehs had come to Thief River Falls in the 1890's when the lumbering industry was flourishing and the town was very primitive. Lumberjacks were the bulk of the residents. All the more remarkable then was Della Zeh's commitment to the arts. She gave the Zehlians a watercolor, and the Clarence Isaacsons own another.

Seeing the need of reaching young people with the joy of art, the Zehlians began a project in the public schools in the 1940's. This was before the schools employed a full-time art instructor. Zehlian art award offered junior and senior high school students of the county cash prizes for the best creations. The club furnished art materials to the contestants, and raised funds by holding a bazaar at which articles made by members were offered to the public.

The club of 10 to 12 met in homes for painting sessions. They gave demonstrations and lectures to girl scout groups and other clubs, held an exhibit of more than 100 paintings, and decorated the nurses' home. For their efforts they were awarded the "Penny Art Award" by the Minnesota federation for having the best art promotion in their community, and in 1947 were honored as the outstanding club of the month by the national federation.

Zehlians continue to promote art in Thief River Falls by bringing local artists to demonstrate their craft at club meetings, and by providing volunteers and support for "Art Adventure in the Elementary Schools." In addition, they provide service by assisting at the clinics for handicapped; annually sponsoring a high school student at the Hugh O'Brien conference in Minneapolis, and contributing to various community services.

Current projects include collecting art work of junior and senior high students to be entered in the district GFWC conference exhibit, and co-sponsoring a photography exhibit, "Women in Action," coming to the Northern state bank in April.



HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Talent Contest Won By Middle River Group

"Last Resort" a local band from Middle River, was the big winner in a country music talent contest held at the Meadowbrook Ballroom in Middle River Sunday night. They topped a field of 15 entries, which came from as far away as Nashville, TN., to take the top prize of $550 and a trophy, plus a chance to compete at the state fair in August.

That State contest carries a top prize of $1,000, use of a new Dodge van for a year, and a shot at the national contest in Nashville. National contest has a top prize of $50,000 cash, a booking agreement, national recording contract, and title for the van. Local sponsor for the contest was radio station KKAQ.

Members of the "Last Resort" band include Donovan Ruud, Steve Larson, Mike Anderson, Ronnie Helm, Sheldon Buck and Joel Kezar.

Second place in the contest was won by Gary Emerson, Crookston, with third place going to the Johnson Band from Nashville, TN. They each won a trophy and a $50 cash prize. Honorable mention awards went to Terry Ruud, Gatzke; Sheryce Gustafson, Moorhead; and "The Good Ol' Boys" (Gary Rux, Myron Dargus, and Greg Dally), Thief River Falls.

Approximately 850 people attended the event.

Word has been received that last year's winners of the local contest, The Back Behind The Barn Boys, from the Gatzke area, who went on to win the state contest and competed in Nashville, are competing this year in North Dakota. They were selected as one of four finalists in competition at the Dallas North Lounge in Grand Forks on Monday night, and will be competing against 20 other finalists there on March 14. Tonight will be the last night of open competition there, and musicians interested in entering the contest should contact KYCK radio, phone 281-6820. Grand prize will be $1,000 and a chance to compete in the North Dakota state contest.

Expects Change In Community College System

legislation by reviewing the background of the community college system, originally created by the legislature. He said that the system had a very good relationship with the legislature in the early years. Enrollment estimates were conservative when support base was established and the system grew beyond enrollment projections.

While projections continued to indicate enrollment declines, the system continued to attract more students. Last increase in base for funding was established in 1977 at 19,000 students while the current year's enrollment is 24,880 — an increase of two per cent over a year ago.

"Our major problem is a lack of resources, not a declining enrollment," Dr. Helland said.

When the legislature asked the higher education systems to present plans for adjustment to enrollment declines and budget reduction, most systems failed to present defined strategies. The community college system, however, did respond with its proposal for consolidations and other reductions.

"I feel we came out very well with our response on that," Chancellor Helland said. "We pointed out what changes were being made — including the consolidation of campuses on the Iron Range into one unit — and what other things were already being considered. We have had many compliments and very little criticism with that, while other systems have had lots of criticism and very few compliments."

Dr. Helland said that the campus merger was easiest on the Iron Range because campuses were close together and the transition was made when several chief administrative positions were open. While it is possible for an effective president to be a good administrator over several campuses, Dr. Helland said such a program would require top administrative help at each campus.

"My fear is that if we reduce administrative staff, as has been suggested in some areas, we will not have the administrative leadership that we need in our system. I would be nervous about the kind of change without additional help," he said.

Several suggestions have been considered for consolidations within the community college system itself. One would put Austin, Winona and Worthinton in one unit with Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls and Brainerd in another. A second plan would add Willmar to the northern group, pair Austin with Rochester and "worry about Worthington," the chancellor said.

"We have said candidly we don't believe reorganization of our system is best by itself," Dr. Helland added. "We believe it is better to have an inter-system reorganization, and there are many ways in which this might be done."

Suggestions in this area have included combining AVTIs in Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks into a unit with Northland community college and the University of Minnesota branch at Crookston. This could be accomplished under a joint powers arrangement with existing systems and boards or through creation of a new board.

"My personal feeling is that Thief River Falls is in a secure position because it has both an AVTI and a community college," he said. "I believe you are secure from the standpoint of the services you will be able to offer the area, although there may well be some changes in the system by which those services are provided."

He cautioned those attending the meeting not to be too nervous about state level discussions of reorganization. "What's important to you is what happens in Thief River Falls," he said. "What's important to the legisature is what happens statewide. There are any number of patterns which can emerge that will keep your higher education services here."

The chancellor said the easiest way to reduce the number of institutions of higher education is to combine those that look like one anyway. "Our main concern is keeping the system open," he concluded.

Legislators Consider Bills On Education

like the idea of studying it and coming back with a recommendation in 1985," he said.

That is needed because "it is both complex enough and important enough" to merit study, Sparby said.

Although he notes that declining enrollments and financial considerations make it important to look at the state school organization, Sparby feels the Perpich incentive proposal "is moving too fast." He would like to hear more feedback from the people working in the school system.

A strong proposal introduced in the House and Senate calls for a cutback in school district personnel at the management level. Rep. Lona Minne of Hibbing, who is the bill's House sponsor, said the state school system is "top heavy," referring to the number of superintendents. The state is "always cutting programs for students." This bill would cut the number of superintendents from the current 436 to 50.

Under the bill, school district boundaries would stay intact, but superintendents would oversee more than one school district.

Minne has heard criticism of the bill already. Some people believe the proposal will lead to large unmanageable administrative districts for superintendents.

The bill porposes that each superintendent would manage a district of about 11,000 students, excluding districts with more than 11,000 students, such as Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth.

A Minnesota Education association (MEA) spokesman, Gene Mammenga, said that the group looks "favorably on the idea of reducing administrative overhead." However, there might be some places where the bill would be difficult to implement, Mammenga said.

Gov. Perpich's proposal encouraging school districts to pair would guarantee $50 per student to districts that cooperate, as long as they fulfill certain requirements.

The requirements paired districts would have to complete to get the money include: (1) Providing three-year math and science programs; (2) providing two-year language programs; and (3) making improvements in vocational technical programs.

Minnesota already has seven examples of paired school districts in the state, and with that experience playing a part, the MEA has mixed reactions to the governor's proposal, Mammenga said. In some cases, pairing districts saves teachers' jobs because the teacher can teach in both districts, but in other cases teachers lose jobs because both districts have the same programs, Mammenga explained.

According to Gary Farland of the education department, details of the bill are still not final, but paired school districts' local property taxes would increase by a fraction of one mill. State money would make up the dollar difference between what the levy increase brings and the guaranteed amount, Farland explained.

So taxpayers of paired districts would pay part of the $50 per student state incentive.

A third proposal that has been introduced in the House and Senate calls for a special commission studying problems in the educational system and making recommendations by Jan. 1, 1985.

Supported by the MEA, the study commission would take a comprehensive approach to changing the 'Minnesota Miracle' school finance system, which may include reorganization of the state school system.

LHS To Show Videotape On Medical Career

Videotape titled "A Career in Medicine," produced by the University of North Dakota school of medicine, will be shown at 2 p.m. on March 22 at the Lincoln senior high school in Thief River Falls.

About 25 students in grades 9 through 12 are expected to view the program, according to Whitey Olson, school counselor, who arranged for the program to be shown.

Showing the tape and answering students' questions about the medical profession will be Dr. William Goodall, associate dean for clinical affairs of the UND school of medicine in Grand Forks.

The 22-minute program was produced by the UND medical school for parent groups and schools throughout rural North Dakota in an effort to interest rural students in the medical field.

Program contains information on academic preparation for medical school, admission policies, financial aid, the life of a medical student, women in medicine, and rural medical practice. UND medical students and faculty-physicians describe their experiences during and after medical school.

Program is made available to the school at no charge.

Stumpf Backs Timber Permit Extensions

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf has introduced legislation which would allow the extension of timber permits for up to one additional year, a move Stumpf said, "is designed to protect loggers who have already been hit hard by the national economic recession."

"As a result of the recession, a number of loggers hold state timber permits which market conditions have prohibited them from logging. Conditions in northern Minnesota are even worse than they were two years ago. Some of these permits will expire this year, and the affected loggers will end up forfeiting their advance stumpage payments if their permits expire prior to being cut."

Stumpf added that under the law, permits must be paid in full and refunds are allowable only in cases where the timber logged doesn't match up to the appraisal.

In order to protect their operations, the legislation allows for a year-long extension of those timber permits, giving loggers time to harvest and remove the timber. Stumpf concluded by saying, "The one-year extension will give loggers the opportunity to capitalize on improving markets. DNR has indicated they are in support of this legislation."

Senate committee action is expected shortly.

Early Filing Means Quicker Tax Refund

Twenty-five thousand state income tax refunds have been mailed, according to state income tax Director Chauncey Peterson. Many more refunds will be mailed in the next few weeks as the volume of incoming returns increases, and the returns that have been received complete their processing cycle. So far, 90,000 Minnesotans have filed on the new simplified short Form M-1A. Department is encouraged to see that taxpayers are putting the new easier form to use. Department has received 505,000 returns, which is slightly up from last year, says Peterson.

Peterson also wants you to be aware of an error in the instruction booklet. Because of budget restrictions, which happened after the booklet went to the printer, locations for walk-in assistance are given in the booklet. These offices were closed in the latest round of budget cutbacks, and this service is not provided by the state.

In discussing this with the district offices throughout the state, Peterson says that people seeking assistance are accepting this action very well, and have tended to make use of the many volunteer sites throughout the state. These sites are now open, and locations can be obtained by calling 297-3724 in St. Paul; 297-3725 in Minneapolis; and, if you live outstate, call toll free 1-800-652-9094.

that it actually occurs, and should never be compensated 100 per cent. Workers' compensation benefits should be paid only to the extent that the disability is actually caused by that employment."

Citing statistics showing the large number of seasonal employees who earn a substantial living at high salaries for only a portion of the year, then collect unemployment compensation payments in the off-season, Borden said MACI is adamantly opposed to that situation.

"We would specifically provide for denial of benefits to applicants whose employment is seasonal, based upon objective standards," he said. He also believes benefit recipients should accept employment offers which are within their capabilities or be subject to loss of benefits.

To qualify for unemployment compensation, he said, an employee should be required to have worked at least 26 weeks, during all or each of which he or she must have earned an amount equal to 30 hours at the current state minimum wage.

Borden said the state should explore a program of unemployment compensation tax credits to companies employing people who are drawing benefits, and he favors prohibition of sending unemployment compensation checks out of the state.

Following his presentation, Borden answered several questions from those in attendance. His visit to Thief River Falls was one of 18 scheduled in the state during March and April. Borden was in Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls Friday after appearing in Moorhead, East Grand Forks and Crookston on Thursday.

Humphrey spoke on the legislative priorities of his new administration for the 1983 session.

Mary Koglin Services Held In Washington

Dear Readers,
One widow diligently paid off the entire automobile loan in monthly payments, not realizing that the contract included credit-life insurance. If she had notified the right people of her husband's death, the loan would automatically have been paid in full. Home mortgage life insurance will likewise leave the home free and clear if the husband dies.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Cancer Patient, Families Need Emotional Help

Hearing the news that a child has cancer must be one of the most devastating things a parent could experience.

One father said he felt as if he's been shot when he heard that his boy had a malignant brain tumor.

A mother recalled the "pure devastation" she felt when she learned that her son had leukemia. "Why me?" she asked herself. "How are we going to handle this?"

Medical complexity of cancer treatment can be overwhelming for a child with cancer and the parents, but their emotional reactions to the serious illness demand attention, too.

Children's cancer program at a St. Paul hospital helps patients and their families to cope with the emotional as well as the medical stresses of cancer.

For a child, cancer adds unusual stress to growing up. Frequent visits to the doctor, hospitalization and side effects of treatment disrupt school and family life. For example, treatment may cause a child to lose hair, which can be traumatic.

Strain on parents can be tremendous. Some parents said their child's disease practically consumed their lives. Life changed the moment they heard the diagnosis of cancer. Suddenly, the simplicity of health was replaced by uncertainty.

Parents faced new worries: What's ahead for my child? Are other family members getting enough of my attention? How much will all of this treatment cost?

John Priest, M.D., specialist in childhood cancer, considers the parents' emotional needs along with the child's. "Parents are just as much a patient in an emotional sense as the child is," he explained.

"Children and parents ride an emotional roller coaster during a child's bout with cancer," said Diane McCormick, a nurse who specializes in working with cancer patients and their families.

There are sunny times that parents hope will never end when a child's treatment succeeds and disease symptoms disappear. There are crisis periods when a child has complications from treatments or has a relapse.

To help children and families through the ups and downs of illness, each family at the hospital has a team of health care professionals who work with them throughout the child's illness. Families come to rely on these specialized nurses, physicians, social workers and other staff members for emotional support, as well as for information about the child's cancer and ways to adapt daily life to cope with the illness.

Families are encouraged to attend hospital-sponsored support groups, low-key discussion sessions where they can talk about what they're experiencing with others in a similar situation.

There are separate support groups for young patients, teenagers, parents and brothers and sisters. One group is for families who have lost a child.

Some participants said they found understanding from people in the groups and that they wouldn't have found elsewhere. "No one understands like someone in the same situation," one father said.

Several parents said that discussions at group meetings often stimulated a conversation later about something they hadn't talked about before.

Groups can help participants to feel that they're not the only ones facing a serious illness or death, said Shirley Pierce, a parent support specialist for the children's cancer program.

That can be especially important for teenage cancer patients, who may feel very isolated and different from their friends.

One teenage boy who is now healthy participated in a group for several years while he was receiving cancer treatments.

"The group was his salvation emotionally," his mother said. "It gave him an opportunity to talk about what he was feeling in a different way then he could with me."

But whatever the stage of a child's illness, it's very important for the child and family to maintain hope. What they hope for varies, and may range from a normal life to one good week for the child, depending on the situation, said McCormick.

"Hope gives them a reason to go on and puts meaning in all of the treatment and medical procedures," she said. "Hope puts brightness into it all, like a little light in a dark tunnel. They need that."

State Jobless Rate Rises To 10.4 Per Cent

Minnesota's unemployment rate in January was 10.4 per cent, which compares to 8.7 per cent in December and 7.4 per cent in January 1982, commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security reported recently.

Comparable national unemployment rate for January was 11.4 per cent.

Compared to January a year ago, the size of the Minnesota civilian labor force increased by .3 of one per cent; the number of employed persons decreased by 2.8 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers increased by 39.8 per cent.

Minnesota's labor force in January was 2,100,700 persons, down 28,300 from December and up 7,200 from January of last year.

Number of persons employed in January was 1,882,800, down 60,500 from December and down 54,800 from January a year ago. Number of unemployed persons in Minnesota in January was 217,900 up 32,200 from December and up 62,000 from January a year ago.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $372.88 in January for working an average of 39.5 hours at $9.44 per hour. In January 1982 production workers were paid average weekly earnings of $342.65 for working an average of 38.5 hours at $8.90 per hour.

The unemployment rate pertains to the entire labor force and is not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefit payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

Agri-Growth Forum Mar. 23 In St. Paul

Minnesota Agri-Growth council will sponsor a special, one-day legislative and international issues forum during the afternoon of Wednesday, March 23, at the Radisson Plaza hotel in downtown St. Paul. This special forum on agricultural issues will bring together leading experts from government, agribusiness, and education to offer insight into current legislative and international issues.

The program will include discussions and presentations on current state legislative issues such as grain bonding and storage and the central filing of mortgage liens on grain and livestock. The international flavor of the issues forum will be added by a presentation on the current Soviet economy by a world renowned expert in the field of Kremlin-watching. The prospects of additional agri-processing in Minnesota will make up the final presentation of the afternoon.

The first presentation panel, starting at 1:15 p.m., will be entitled: "Bonding, Storage and Bankruptcy." Panelists will include: Burnis Wilhelm, assistant vice president and general manager of producer marketing region for Cargill, Inc., moderator; Roy O. Pinske, executive vice president of financing and country services for Benson-Quinn; Warren Gerdes, general manager, Farmers Co-op elevator of Buffalo Lake; and Rep. Tom Shea Owatonna, chief author of pending legislation on the Minnesota grain buyers act.

Scheduled to begin at 2:15 p.m. will be the second panel presentation of the forum, entitled: "Mortgaged Grain and Livestock in the Marketplace". Participants on this part of the program will be James L. Evans, national director of agribusiness, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company, moderator; Thomas E. Cashman, executive vice president, Northwest Agri-Dealers association; Gail I. Tritle, president and General manager, Central Livestock association, Inc.; and, Frank Ziegler, vice president, First Bank Minneapolis.

The focus of this special issues forum will shift from domestic affairs to international ag concerns starting at 3:15 p.m. with a 45-minute presentation and question and answer session entitled: "The Current Soviet Economy and Future Export Needs". This portion of the program will feature the highly regarded authority on Russia, Professor Carl-Eugene Wadekin.

Wadekin is professor of international comparative agrarian policies at the center of continental agricultural research, located at the University of Giessen in Giessen, Germany. He is regarded as one of the foremost world authorities on Soviet agricultural happenings.

The final portion of the afternoon program will be a special report on the governor's commission on agri-processing. Featured on this part of the program will be William C. Dietrich. Dietrich, formerly a vice president of the Pillsbury company, is Gov. Perpich's special trade representative for agriculture.

Immediately following the completion of the afternoon program at 5 p.m. the agri-growth council and all of those attending the issues forum will host a special reception honoring members of the Minnesota state legislature.

This forum of agricultural issues will be open to both Agri-Growth members and non-members at a one-time registration cost of $22.50 for the daylong conference.

Complete details and registration information on the legislative and international issues forum can be obtained by contacting the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, Suite 325, 2850 Metro Drive, Bloomington, MN 55420, or by calling the Agri-Growth offices at 612-854-1665.

The Minnesota Agri-Growth Council is the non-profit, umbrella organization representing agriculture in Minnesota from the producers field through the processor to the consumer's table.

LO'L Suffers '82 Loss From Operations

Addressing the cooperative's 62nd annual meeting in Minneapolis on February 23, Land O'Lakes president Ralph Hofstad said that difficult market situations brought on by the depressed national economy and the agricultural economy in particular were major contributors to the cooperative's loss from operations in 1982.

While sales were up $304 million to an all time high of nearly $3.8 billion, margins showed a loss of $19.2 million. "Dairy production, dairy marketing, industrial sales and feed all enjoyed success and positive margins," Hofstad said, "whereas beef, agronomy, petroleum and soy processing were especially hard hit with losses.

"Supply is excessive and demand is weak," Hofstad said. "Processing plants are idle or operating at reduced and inefficient levels. And excessive duplication of many production and marketing services are adding further to the costs that must be borne by the farmer and his cooperative."

Noting that the government's new PIK (payment in kind) program and proposed dairy program are geared to reduce production on the farm and to reduce burdensome inventories, Hofstad said, "This environment of excessive production and staggering inventories also contributed to our negative operating results in 1982 and must be considered as we plan our programs and alternatives for 1983 and 1984."

The disappointing showing and projected slow recovery of the economy has prompted an across-the-board austerity program at Land O'Lakes and a realignment of financial and operational priorities.

"As we move forward in 1983 we'll be extremely prudent and selective in the use of capital and labor but we will move ahead," Hofstad said. High priority operational areas for the coming year are feed; dairy production; foods, with emphasis on spreads and cheese; industrial sales; research and development; and legislative activity.

New financial guidelines recently established by the board of directors call for a 50 per cent ratio of long-term debt to equity within five years. "Energies must be directed toward creating a stronger equity base while generating a positive cash flow from each operating division and manufacturing-processing plant," Hofstad concluded.

Defense Dep't. Actively Seeks Dog Recruits

Long lines at air force recruiting offices can't satisfy the department of defense (DOD) need for certain recruits — dogs.

DOD dog center officials at Lackland air force base in Texas said the defense department has a big demand for qualified German shepherds or a variation of that breed to train for patrol, bomb and drug detection duties.

Dogs are trained at the dog center for all military services as well as other federal agencies. Officials said the defense department will pay up to $250 for each dog. Officials said to be eligible, dogs must be between one and four years of age, weigh at least 50 pounds, be at least 21 inches tall from the ground to the shoulder, and be in good physical condition.

Persons with a dog they wish to sell or donate may call the center collect at (512) 671-4291 for an evaluation appointment.

Predicts Quick Passage For Bill On Foods

Quick Senate passage for a bill that seeks to distribute surplus government food to America's needy was predicted by U.S. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz.

"The domestic commodity distribution and food assistance act," sponsored by Senator Bob Dole of Kansas and cosponsored by Sen. Boschwitz, had its first hearing as part of the nutrition subcommittee of the senate agriculture committee.

The bill seeks to take surplus government commodities and distribute them to the needy through eligible state and local agencies.

Boschwitz said the bill addresses two serious problems — surplus food and hunger — "in one thoughtful and humanitarian stroke.

"First, we have a troubling number of people who need assistance in getting proper nutrition," Boschwitz said. "It should be beyond comprehension that we have people in this country who are legitimately hungry, but we do, and this bill addresses that in a meaningful way.

"Second, it does something quickly and definitively to lessen our growing surplus of government commodities," he added. "As long as those are around our farmers will have increasing difficulty getting back on their feet financially.

"There has been a lot of talk lately about using some of that surplus to entice foreign countries to buy our goods. But that should not be done before we take care of our own people back home," Boschwitz said.

In this bill, the Commodity Credit corporation, a division of the department of agriculture, would pay for the initial distribution and for processing the commodities into a usable form.

The USDA has estimated the total value of food commodities owned by the CCC to be $3.9 billion as of December 31, 1982; dairy products account for 73 per cent of the total; corn for 21 per cent; with the balance in rice, soybeans, honey and small amounts of other grains. All of these surplus commodities would be made available under the program. In addition there is about $526 million of wheat in the international emergency food reserve.

The USDA estimates surplus commodities to be distributed in the first year of the bill to have a value of $1,043 million. From that total, dairy products account for $944 million, or 90½ per cent. As a percentage of current stocks, 20 per cent of the cheese, 17 per cent of the butter, and about 2½ per cent of the non-fat dry milk would be distributed.

Administrative cost of the bill is limited to five per cent of the value of commodities distributed, or $52 million in the first year. There would be additional unspecified costs for distribution and processing. In addition, the $14 million in reduced storage charges would be used for further processing and delivery to particularly needy groups and individuals.

Forever Living Firm Changes Management

Change in management of Forever Living Products in the area which includes North Dakota, northern South Dakota and northwestern Minnesota has resulted in consolidation of warehousing for products distributed by the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Foss of rural Grygla now maintain the company warehouse for northwestern Minnesota and hold certification meetings in their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Boisture of Moorhead have assumed management of the area to succeed Mr. and Mrs. Neal Draper who have been transferred to the west coast after serving the area nearly four years. The company, which distributes aloe products, is expected to double its business volume in the coming year.

Federal Crop Insurance Has PIK Connection

"Northwest Minnesota farmers who participate in the payment-in-kind (PIK) program are eligible for increased insurance guarantees on insured wheat, corn and grain sorghum, at no extra cost," says Ray Eggleston, district director for District 02 of the Federal Crop Insurance corporation (FCIC) in Thief River Falls.

To encourage the widest participation possible in the PIK program, FCIC will increase insurance guarantees on the eligible crops by the following proportions: A six per cent increase for acreage reductions of 10 to 19 per cent; an eight per cent increase for reductions of 20-29 per cent; and a 10 per cent increase in acreage reduced by 30 per cent. "Percentage reductions are calculated for acreage reductions above the regular farm program set aside," Eggleston says.

Farmers may participate in the PIK acreage reduction on one farm and not another. "Any increase in coverage," says Eggleston "will be in effect for the farm selected for PIK participation, without affecting the guarantee or premium on the other insured farm(s)."

Farmers should contact the local agent authorized to sell and service FCIC policies for further information. A list of authorized agents is available at the county ASCS office.

'U' M To Study State Economy, Grad. School

Contributions the University of Minnesota can make to the economic recovery of the state and the quality of graduate education and research at the university will be two of the major themes in the university's planning process for the next two years.

Task forces were named last week to address the two themes. David Lilly, dean of the school of management, is heading the task force on higher education and the economy of the state. Robert Holt, dean of the graduate school, will chair the task force on the quality of graduate education and research.

Three other planning themes will be the student experience, the international character of the university and the impact of new computer technology. Task forces on these themes will be named later.

Selection of themes for planning is intended to help the university narrow the focus of its planning effort, said Nils Hasselmo, vice president for administration and planning.

But as important as the themes are, Hasselmo said, the heart of the planning process will be the continuation of planning in the colleges and other units of the university. The second planning cycle will build on the first, he said. The first cycle began in 1979, but results were not made public until early 1982.

The first planning cycle was "extraordinarily useful," President C. Peter Magrath said. "I doubt that there is a university in the country that has done more in its planning effort than we have done."

Funding cuts of $54 million in the past two years have damaged the university, Magrath said, but the damage would have been far more severe if it had not been for the intensive planning effort.

Results of the second planning cycle will begin to emerge when reports are made to the university board of regents beginning in May.

BSU Students From Area To Student Teach

Three Bemidji state university (BSU) students from Thief River Falls, James Rooker, Diane Lusignan and Mendy Huttleston, will be student teaching spring quarter through the BSU department of professional education.

Rooker will teach fifth grade classes at Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls, Lusignan will teach fourth grade classes at Northrop elementary school in Thief River Falls, and Huttleston will teach third grade classes at Northern elementary school in Bemidji.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from the school district as well as a supervisor from the university.

While serving in the school system, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

Student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession.

Agriculture Day

Despite the downturn in farm profitability, the importance of farmers in the United States can not be overemphasized. Recognition of the value of these producers of our food and fiber is one of the purposes of Agriculture Day, slated for March 21.

The farm equipment association of Minnesota and South Dakota points out the following information:

Agricultural exports in the 1982 trade year were worth about $40 billion — eight times their value of 20 years ago and, despite a worldwide recession, still the most positive factor in the U.S. trade. Every time farm exports' value increases by $1 billion, about 31,600 jobs are created — most of them off farms and ranches. That's one reason a properous agricultural economy is so important to the whole economy.

It takes more than wheat to make bread, more than a hog to make bacon and more than a cotton boll to make denim jeans. In fact, the system that brings us our food, fiber, flowers and other agricultural products embraces more than one in every five jobs in America — from producers' suppliers to retail clerks. That's one reason why we say, "The food chain is a human chain."

Why do we call U.S. agriculture, our food chain, "a human chain"? Because it includes those who manufacture and sell production supplies or provide production-related services; the people working on farms and ranches or in greenhouses; those working for elevators, meatpackers and other first buyers after harvest; processors; makers of finished foods and goods; transporters; warehousers and local distributors, vendors, and owners and employees of stores and restaurants.

According to U.S. Department of Agriculture calculations, each person working on U.S. farms and ranches produces enough food and fiber for 76 persons, one-third of whom live in other nations. Not only is the quality of the food and fiber the highest, but this level of productivity is also a standard-setter for both world agriculture and U.S. industries.

Please join us March 21 in observing Agriculture Day!

Steel's Grim Choice: Face Reality or Die

Following editorial is from USA Today:

Last week, 10,000 steelworkers found out that 1983 will be a bleak new year. Their employer, Bethlehem Steel Corp., eliminated their jobs and cut production 15 per cent — mostly at the company's aging plant in Lackawanna, N.Y. Another 8,000 people in that city whose jobs depend on steel can also expect pink slips.

It was one more blow to America's invalid steel industry. Nearly half its 450,000 workers are unemployed, and 70 per cent of its factory capacity is idle. Once, it produced 60 per cent of the world's steel; now it produces 16 per cent.

Sick unto death, say some economists. Steel, like other "smokestack" manufacturing industries, belongs to an early stage in the country's industrialzation process. To keep it alive artificially on government life-support systems is useless. It can't compete, they say. Let it die.

Not so, says the industry. If only workers will accept less and government will help more, steel can thrive again.

The truth, as usual, lies somewhere in between. Helping the industry to limp along as usual will solve nothing. But helping it to become more efficient and competitive could save thousands of jobs. Here's how:

The steel industry must modernize. Most plants are antiquated, and their production methods are costly and time-consuming. Yet without profits, companies have no money to modernize. Government can help break this vicious cycle by offering incentives to invest in new methods.

Labor costs must come down. The average steelworker is paid more than $14 an hour — $25 an hour including benefits. That's 95 per cent higher than other manufacturing workers, and it has priced U.S. steel out of world markets.

But government, instead of encouraging efficiency, gave in last year to the steel industry's cries for protection from foreign competitors and imposed new quotas.

And steelworkers, despite soaring unemployment, voted down two contracts last fall that would have cut wages and benefits and saved jobs.

Who pays the bill for this tunnel vision? Everyone does — in higher steel prices, higher unemployment costs, higher welfare bills.

Broader vision, however, means realism: Many unemployed steelworkers will never come back to work. Cars use less steel now; world steel capacity far outstrips demand. Many towns that relied on steel will never be the same. Many states will suffer.

But that doesn't mean giving up the industry for dead. When the recession ends and new orders for cars and construction begin, steel's prospects gradually will improve. Until then, management, workers and the government must get the invalid on its feet, and keep the vultures away.

How Much Can We Stand?

Following editorial is from the Ortonville Independent:

The Fargo-Moorhead problem as described recently in a Mpls. Sunday Tribune article, ought to be required reading for all members of the Minnesota legislature. So suggests a recent editorial in the Redwood Gazette. . . with which we wholeheartedly agree.

A working man and wife with two kids, earning $45,000 a year between them, pay $2,700 in Minnesota income tax, $820 in North Dakota.

A $100,000 home in Minnesota is taxed $1,924; in North Dakota $1,450.

A fast-food restaurant in Moorhead pays $16,600 in property taxes; in Fargo across the river, $6,688.

A Fargo trucking firm pays $410 per driver for workman's compensation; in Moorhead, $1,923.

Is it any wonder that the Moorheaders are fleeing the Quality of Life in Minnesota?

The director of Fargo's industrial development corporation summed it up: "What Minnesota is doing to its business is nothing short of slaughter."

That comment ought to be bronzed in a paperweight and placed on each Minnesota legislator's desk.

Applications For Academy Hopefuls Open

Although the school year may be a year and one-half away, it's not too early to begin thinking about applying for a nomination to one of the United States service academies.

Senator Rudy Boschwitz today opened applications for men and women between the ages of 17 and 22 who wish to enter the United States air force, merchant marine, military or naval academies in the school year of 1984.

In the past years, young people selected for nominations to a service academy have had extraordinary academic records and a broad range of interests, pursuits, extra-curricular activities and athletic achievements.

"Last year we received nearly 500 applications and out of those 40 were nominated," Boschwitz said. "It is easy to see that the competition is tough, however, those nominated for a position are well qualified. All nominees have potential to win appointments to the academies."

To be considered as a candidate an applicant must be a citizen of the United States, a legal resident of the state of Minnesota, unmarried and have no children.

If you wish to apply, include with your application three things:

+ First, you will need to take either the scholastic aptitude test or American college testing, preferably both.

+ Second, three letters of recommendation and a transcript of grades through the end of the high school junior year are needed.

+ And third, include a written essay, no longer than one page in length, on "Why I want to attend a service academy."

It is important that applications be sent in by November 15 of this year in order to assure adequate time to assess each candidate's qualifications. "In addition, if a nomination is offered, be sure of a commitment to attend an academy and serve as an officer in the United States armed forces," Boschwitz said.

"I encourage high school principals and guidance counselors to ensure that seniors are aware that the educational opportunities offered by the academies are among the best in the country, and to make sure that all the necessary information is available to those interested students.

"The facilities at the academies in all areas of academic life are unsurpassed. But initiative, competitiveness, interest in a military career, a strong sense of self-worth, confidence and a sense of humor are qualities one should have to overcome pressure to achieve, the lack of personal freedom, and the minor duties which may be unpleasant or boring.

"If you are seeking a nomination, I urge you to write to both Senator Dave Durenberger and myself, as well as your Congressman. My address is: 210 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101."

According to information received from the admissions office of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute, Richard Sunsdahl has been accepted for admission in the farm equipment mechanics program beginning August 22.

He will be a 1983 graduate of Goodridge high school and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sunsdahl of Goodridge.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I have been receiving a great deal of mail from your area concerning the 10 per cent withholding tax on interest from people's savings and investments.

The banks and savings institutions have been largely responsible for this landslide of mail, as they have been encouraging savers to write to my office. Unfortunately, many of these forms do not include return addresses.

For those of your readers who have not received a personal reply from me, I would like to explain the current situation.

Last August, the 10 per cent withholding tax was included in the $99 billion tax increase plan offered by President Reagan and the Democratic leaders of the House of Representatives.

I opposed this bill because a number of its provisions would hurt my constituents from the Seventh District. The withholding tax was one of those provisions.

Immediately after the bill passed, I co-sponsored legislation to repeal the withholding provision. However, Congress did not get around to dealing with that bill before it adjourned in December.

The first bill I introduced in the new Congress was H.R. [illegible], to repeal the misguided 10 per cent withholding tax. My bill and similar legislation now have the support of 318 House members.

Action on this bill must be taken before the end of April if we are to prevent small banks from investing in computer programs and extra paperwork for the withholding tax, which is scheduled to begin in July.

At this time, I would like to assure all your readers that I am doing everything in my power to stop this program. It is unfair to senior citizens, small business, banks on Main street, small investors, and the majority of our citizens.

I will keep you and your readers informed as progress continues on this key issue.

Sincerely,
-s- Arlan Stangeland

1.3 Million Tourists Use MN Centers

Nearly 1.3 million tourists representing 60 foreign countries and all 50 states used the seven travel information centers operated by the Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) during 1982.

Total number of tourists increased five per cent from 1981, state transportation commissioner Richard P. Braun said, at the Albert Lea, Anchor Lake (near Eveleth), Beaver Creek, Dresbach, Fisher's landing (near Crookston), Moorhead and Duluth Thompson hill travel information centers. They made 240,000 requests for information and received 750,000 brochures about Minnesota's tourist attractions.

Telephone travel information requests received by the centers jumped 27 per cent to total 19,000.

Advertising display kiosks with guides to area restaurants, motels, resorts, campgrounds, and historic sites were added last year at the Albert Lea, Anchor Lake and Beaver Creek centers. Thompson hill also contains a kiosk. The privately operated kiosks enable businesses to advertise in the travel centers and provide MnDOT with a share of the advertising revenue.

Tourists from throughout the United States and several foreign countries rely on the centers for information about community festivals, art and craft shows, sporting events, recreational areas and historic sites which attract millions of visitors to Minnesota each year, Braun said.

Travelers just driving through the state often become tourists after stopping at a travel center, said Aaron Husmann, director of the Dresbach travel information center in southeastern Minnesota.

"We encourage people to stay and visit, not just drive through," he said. "We tell them about the Red River valley, the lakes regions and the hardwood forests in our area. Often they will turn onto Highway 61 to tour the Mississippi river valley rather than head straight east or west on I-90."

Husmann recalled several instances when travelers leaving Minnesota told of touring the state for several days after they had stopped at the Beaver Creek or Moorhead centers in western Minnesota. He mentioned a California couple who toured Pipestone, Grand Rapids, Duluth and the Twin Cities for several days after an informative stop at the Beaver Creek Center before resuming their journey eastward.

"Tourists leaving Minnesota usually have good things to say about our state and frequently mention their plans to return," he said.

Farm Credit Alternatives Are Reviewed

Minnesota Project researcher Martha Greenwald concludes that farmers don't need extensive new financing programs to provide credit to farmers.

In a report prepared by Greenwald, executive director of the Minnesota Project, she said the report is intended to "look at how state and local governments, as well as the business community, might intervene on behalf of farmers caught in the credit crunch."

The current system of farm finance, Greenwald noted, encouraged many farmers to borrow heavily during the more prosperous 1970's. Farmers who borrowed late in the inflationary spiral are now saddled with heavy debt burdens and declining land values.

For this reason, the report does not advocate new programs to provide more credit to farmers. In fact, it recognizes that these programs have been part of the problem. Public and private lending institutions share the responsibility for farmers who have become "addicted to credit."

Greenwald suggested that state policy-makers look for solutions outside of the credit arena. For example, the state might be able to learn from the experience of North Dakota, which has developed a tax incentive program that allows income tax deduction for landowners who sell or lease their land to beginning farmers.

Legislators might also want to consider reducing the capital gains tax on farmland buyers who hold onto their land for a minimum period of time, thus deterring speculation, she said.

State and local units of government might also explore new ways to market agricultural products. For example, a previous study prepared by the Minnesota Project and the St. Paul Growers association concluded that general public education is needed to encourage Minnesotans to buy locally grown produce.

Minnesota might join other midwestern agricultural states in making grain agreements with foreign purchasers, thus improving market stability. Or the state might investigate ways to help farmers take advantage of opportunities to diversify the types of crops grown and take advantage of emerging or more specialized markets.

Public-private partnerships might also be forged between agri-business corporations and farmers. "These corporations might investigate the possibilities for adopting Minnesota preference purchase policies," observed Greenwald. "They might also consider whether they can help finance the construction of agricultural processing facilities in the state which will meet their needs."

The study concludes that the state should consider preparing a state agricultural policy, or agricultural stability plan, which might assess the most productive role for the state in improving the financial health of the state's farms.

The Minnesota Project is a private, nonprofit center for community development and public policy research. The farm credit policy paper was funded by grants from the governor's council on rural development, Land O' Lakes, Inc., Cenex and the Minnesota Project.

Previously, the Minnesota Project has issued related reports on the structure of the family farm; ways to encourage local markets for local growers of agricultural produce; and tools for the strategic investment of state pension funds. Copies of these reports can be ordered from the Minnesota Project, 618 East 22nd St., Minneapolis, MN 55404.

Trees Offered New Members Of Foundation

National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten trees to people who become Foundation members during March, as part of the Foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

Colorado blue spruce, red maple, American redbud, black walnut, Norway spruce, red oak, white flowering dogwood, European mountain ash, flowering crab apple, and butternut trees will be given to members joining during March. Six-to-twelve inch trees will be shipped this spring, postage paid, with enclosed planting instructions.

These trees were selected because they provide a wide range of benefits: flowers, fruit and nuts, as well as shade and beauty, according to the foundation.

National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting. To become a member and receive the trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, NE. 68410, by March 31.

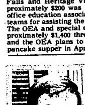
SPECIAL OLYMPICS program for Thief River Falls participants received a boost recently from an Old-Timers hockey game played at the old arena in downtown Thief River Falls. Participating in the game were the Soo Line team of Thief River Falls and Heritage Village Old-Timers from Winnipeg. Approximately $200 was raised through the game. Local AVTI office education association expressed appreciation to the two teams for assisting the group in raising funds for the program. The OEA and special education students have now raised approximately $1,400 through the hockey game and bowl-a-thon and the OEA plans to raise the remainder needed through a pancake supper in April.



REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

We're getting busier at the legislature as the session goes on. I thought I'd write this week about a number of items you might be interested in.

A bill was passed by the governmental operations committee, on which I serve, to essentially do away with a number of executive branch advisory groups. This would result in at least a $50,000 per year saving to the state in per diems and other costs.

If the commissioner of any state agency feels the need for an advisory group on some particular regulation or program, he or she may still appoint a task force, but members of it will not be paid a per diem.

Councils which act as ombudsmen for the handicapped or minority groups will not be affected by this bill.

I authored the resolution asking the U.S. secretary of agriculture to include barley as an eligible commodity in the payment in kind (PIK) program unanimously passed last week by the House agriculture committee.

I firmly support including barley as part of the PIK program designed to reduce the supply of domestic agricultural products. Barley is a major feed grain in Minnesota. We annually produce more than 50 million bushels at a value in excess of $100 million. To have barley qualify for PIK would mean a reduction in stocks of this domestic feed grain and an improvement in grain prices.

The legislative advisory commission last week approved funding to the tune of $289,000 to help get the governor's international trade efforts in gear. The funds will be used to set up a four-person office to promote Minnesota products worldwide.

Eventually the office will become part of the commerce department, according to Eldon Brustuen, who is on loan from Honeywell and is Gov. Perpich's director of international trade.

A bill designed to decrease the number of under-age drinkers who attend keg parties was explained at the first meeting of the House beverage subcommittee. The bill requires all off-sale liquor dealers to record a beer keg sale with the name and address of the purchaser and the identification number of the keg.

Police complain that when they raid a keg party that is serving minors, the sponsor who bought the kegs and collected admission fees is usually gone. With identification numbers on kegs, the place of purchase can be determined. From the liquor store records, the person who bought the keg can be identified.

The bill requires all beer kegs with a capacity of eight gallons or more to have a distinctive engraving or permanently attached serial number. Dealers would record the sale and keep the information on file for 60 days.

Registration of beer kegs is currently being practiced on the local level in Montevideo and some surrounding communities, and testimony in the subcommittee meeting showed that it was easily implemented.

If you would like to give me your thoughts on any of these issues or others before the House, don't hesitate to contact me at Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or phone (612) 296-9918.

Counties Ass'n. Meets Mar. 24 At Crookston

Association of Minnesota Counties, District three, will meet from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, March 24, at Northland Lodge, Crookston. District three includes the counties of Kittson, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

Agenda includes AMC policy committee assignments. Each county should have a delegate serving on one of the three committees, which include human services, general government and physical development. Committees will then hold individual meetings to select chairmen, discuss issues being dealt with at the state level, and local issues and concerns.

Following noon lunch, the district director's report will be given followed by brief reports from each of the district committees and other business.

Says Revenue Sharing Plan Needs Changes

It's time to ask Congress for major changes in the general revenue sharing program as part of an overall federal reform initiative, Senator Dave Durenberger told some 1,500 members of the National Association of Counties meeting in Washington.

Chairman of the intergovernmental relations subcommittee, he said he will introduce a bill to expand and improve revenue sharing. He would restore state governments to the program, increase local government funding, make the funding distribution more equitable, and finance revenue sharing with a permanently dedicated portion of the federal income tax.

Durenberger said a simple reauthorization of the current general revenue sharing program is the minimally acceptable alternative, but he urged the county officials to push for his improvements.

Durenberger's proposal would increase revenue sharing funds for local governments and make the allocation formula for those funds more equitable. However, he said, no local government would receive any less funding than it would under the existing program.

In addition, state governments would begin receiving revenue sharing payments for the first time since 1980. Their portion would be financed by two per cent of federal individual income tax revenues; the deductibility of state and local taxes from federal income tax would be limited to help raise federal recepits. The allocation formula for the funds would take into account a state's own revenue-raising capacity.

Senator Gives Assurance On PIK Taxation

Farmers concerned about possible tax problems over payment-in-kind (PIK) commodities can rest assured, according to Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

PIK is a new government program designed to alleviate growing government stockpiles of commodities by paying farmers with those commodities for producing less. At issue is whether or not farmers are liable for taxes on commodities when received or when sold.

Agriculture Secretary John Block told Boschwitz and his colleagues on the Senate budget committee that the USDA has formulated a contingency plan to rectify any potential problems with the Internal Revenue service if Congress fails to pass a law promptly.

"The present IRS code states that taxes must be paid upon receipt of the commodities," Boschwitz said. "Clearly, this undermines the purpose of the program. There is not much incentive for the farmer to participate in the program if he is faced with a big tax bill before he is able to sell off the commodities."

Boschwitz said he is confident the IRS will work toward changing the law. He has cosponsored a bill that would modify the IRS code to accomodate PIK. A similar bill has been offered in the House of Representatives.

Block was optimistic in testimony that the bill would be passed prior to March 11, the last day farmers can sign up for the PIK program. But if that doesn't happen, he said, the USDA would allow the farmer to choose which year — 1983 or 1984 — he wants to receive and be taxed on his PIK grain. The farmer merely would have to sign an agreement at his local ASCS office.

"This is a timely and responsible action by secretary Block," Boschwitz said. "Many farmers have been understandably reluctant to sign up for PIK until this tax issue is resolved. Now they can participate with the assurance that they won't be hit with an unfair tax burden."

Offers Bill To Keep Business In The Family

A bill to keep family-owned businesses and small newspapers "in the family" after the death of the principal owner has been introduced in the U.S. senate by Senator Dave Durenberger.

Durenberger said his bill is the necessary follow-up legislation to estate tax reform he helped pass two years ago. "For some family-owned businesses, estate taxes still remain a substantial burden, forcing the sale of businesses to pay the government after the death of the major stockholder," Durenberger said.

Durenberger's bill, the family business preservation act, allows families to set aside part of their after-tax earnings for the eventual purpose of redeeming stock at the death of the major stockholder. Under current law, many family businesses are prevented from accumulating the funds needed to redeem stock, and pay estate taxes. Most family owned businesses don't have the liquidity to pay the estate taxes any other way than to sell the business to a large corporation or chain.

"This bill along with the estate tax reform passed in 1981 is aimed at saving family businesses. A tax system that isn't keeping up with changes in the economy is forcing the sale of a lot of good small businesses after the death of the principal owner just to pay off the government," Durenberger said.

"Small community newspapers are especially hard-hit because they are high-value, low-earning companies. The market value of a newspaper is usually much higher than the asset value, making estate taxes excessive.

"Small businesses are more important today than ever. The economy requires that we do everything we can to help keep them a healthy, vital and growing part of American productivity. The family business preservation act will do that," Durenberger said.

University HHH Institute Gets $74,800 Grant

University of Minnesota Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs recently received a $74,800 grant for its reflective leadership program from the New York-based Exxon Education Foundation.

Program director Robert W. Terry said the money will be used to develop a series of reading materials that will be used by seminar participants in future years. Subjects to be included will range from the criminal justice system to world security and the social impacts of science and technology.

Leadership program was established under the direction of Humphrey institute director Harlan Cleveland in 1981 to help mid-career professionals prepare for greater leadership roles. Last year the program received a $560,000 gift from the McKnight Foundation to support its academic efforts for three-and-one-half years.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District I

Pace of activity at the Legislature picked up last week as we pored over Governor Perpich's proposed biennial budget and discussed several important bills.

The Senate finance committee's subcommittees held hearings on agency budgets and other proposals in the governor's fiscal plan. On Tuesday, the finance subcommittee on education considered the proposed budget for community colleges.

One of the governor's proposals which is being scrutinized closely would raise state recreation fees. The governor has recommended higher rates for boat licenses, state park admission permits and camping fees in state parks.

In another budgetary matter, the Senate voted 34-33 last week to raise expense payments for both outstate and metropolitan-area legislators. I voted against the increase. I cannot justify increasing our benefits at a time when so many Minnesotans are out of work and struggling to make ends meet.

The Senate also gave final approval last week to a pheasant stamp program. The legislation requires hunters to pay $5 for a stamp allowing them to possess pheasants. The projected $600,000 in revenues generated by this program will be used to restore over three million acres of wildlife habitat lost since 1975.

The superfund bill that would clean up hazardous waste dumps in Minnesota passed a major hurdle when it won approval from the Senate agriculture and natural resources committee. The bill would create a special fund that would be matched with federal money to clean up illegal hazardous waste disposal sites. I did offer an amendment which was accepted to eliminate petroleum (i.e., oil, gas, diesel) from being included as hazardous waste. The bill also would give the Attorney General the authority to sue to recover the clean-up costs from the responsible parties. The superfund bill will be considered by three other committees before it reaches the Senate floor.

Another bill that would protect new car buyers is moving quickly through the legislative process. The so-called "lemon car" bill would require manufacturers to replace a new car or refund the purchase price if they were unable to repair the car after several attempts.

The Senate transportation committee gave its approval last week to a bill requiring all motor vehicle drivers and front seat passengers to wear seat belts. Violators would be liable to pay a $25 fine. Parents of children who had died or been seriously injured in traffic accidents spoke in favor of the bill.

Supporters and opponents of the proposed equal rights amendment got a chance to testify last week before the Senate veterans and general legislation committee. The ERA would add a statement to the state constitution declaring that "quality of rights under the law shall not be abridged or denied by the State of Minnesota or any of its political subdivisions on account of sex." If approved by both houses of the legislature, the amendment would be placed on the ballot in the 1984 general election.

In other action, a bill that would help protect the health of Minnesota bees won approval from a Senate subcommittee this week. The bill would strengthen the authority of the state agriculture department to control infectious diseases in Minnesota hives and prevent the shipment of diseased bees into the state.

Please contact me with your comments and questions about any issues of concern to you. My office address is 306 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155, and my telephone number is (612) 296-8660.

State-Wide Tornado Drill Set March 23

State of Minnesota will test the state's preparedness for tornadoes with a drill on Wednesday, March 23, according to emergency services director Tom Motherway of the Minnesota department of public safety (DPS). At 1:40 p.m. sirens around the state will be sounded.

Intended to allow local governments and other groups to test their emergency plans, the drill comes during tornado awareness week which will be proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich for March 20-26.

DPS division of emergency services will be coordinating the drill which will involve more than 600 school districts, counties, cities, hospitals and other organizations, including the American Red Cross, which are concerned with planning for potential weather-related disasters.

Cooperating with the tornado drill will be the Minneapolis national weather service (NWS) forecast office and other federal and state agencies including the Minnesota department of education and major industries.

NWS will be activating the emergency broadcast system with a test message at 1:40 p.m. central standard time. All broadcasters are requested to air initial, test messages on radio and television stations in the state.

To review definitions connected with the exercise, a "tornado watch" means that weather conditions are conducive to the development of tornadoes. A "tornado warning" means that a tornado has actually been sighted.

Senate Page Applications Are Invited

Applications for the position of senate page at the United States Capitol in Washington, D.C., are being taken by Sen. Rudy Boschwitz. He will be making two appointments for the summer and fall of 1983.

"The senate page program is a wonderful opportunity for young people to study first-hand the system by which we are governed," Boschwitz said. "I encourage young Minnesotans to give serious thought to applying for one of the appointments."

Applicants for senate page must have completed the eighth grade and be between the ages of 14 and 17. Daily attendance at the Capitol page school is required. Pages spend the remainder of the day serving as messengers for the senators.

Boschwitz said that he will appoint one Page for the summer months and a second to serve from Labor day until the Christmas recess. The deadline for completed applications is April 20, 1983.

Information about the program and application forms may be obtained by writing to Senator Rudy Boschwitz, 210 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert Street, St. Paul, MN 55101, or by calling (800) 652-9771, toll free.

Tests Help In Diagnosis Of Arthritis

It is relatively easy to diagnose a broken arm but it's not at all easy often to diagnose arthritis correctly, according to the arthritis foundation. There are over 100 kinds of arthritis, and the treatment for one may be quite different from the treatment for another.

Physicians are helped in making diagnoses of arthritis by a number of different tests, an arthritis foundation spokesman explained. But tests do not take the place of physical examinations and sound medical knowledge of arthritis. All three go together.

Among tests frequently used by examining physicians are blood tests, joint fluid tests and tissue biopsies.

Arthritis foundation has a special message on diagnostic tests that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A leaflet briefly describing some common tests is available free to callers.

Asks Travelers To Apply Early For Passports

People thinking of traveling abroad should apply for passports and visas as early as possible, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger, because it may take some time to get the application processed.

"I'd suggest travelers apply at least two months ahead," Durenberger said. "Passports for people over 18 remain valid for 10 years, so there's no harm in planning ahead."

The senator said his office recently has received an unusual number of requests from constituents to hurry their passports along. "We try to help in every way possible," Durenberger said, "but the passport office has an immense work load right now, and there's only so much that can be done to speed up the process."

Edward Hart, regional director of the passport services office in Seattle, where Minnesota applications are processed, said applications are sorted by departure date and every effort is made to deliver the passport before a scheduled trip.

However, Hart added, because of the large backlog of requests it is a good idea to plan ahead. He said January requests were up 43 per cent compared to last year, probably because of low air fares and the strength of the dollar overseas.

"We're doing everything we possibly can to meet the demand," Hart said. He said his staff has been working weekends and overtime since the beginning of the year. Recently an evening shift of 32 people was added just to process requests.

With a few exceptions, all U.S. citizens need passports to depart from and enter the country. Applicants must supply a birth certificate or other proof of citizenship, identification and two small photographs of themselves. Ten-year passports, for citizens over 18, cost $35. Citizens under 18 receive five-year passports at a cost of $20.

Recycling Oil Helps Prevent Pollution

The Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA) estimates that Minnesotans dump approximately one million gallons of used oil into trash cans or on the ground each year. In Minnesota it is against the law to dump oil. Not only is that wasting a recoverable energy resource, but it is harmful to the environment.

The proper place for used oil is in a used oil recycling tank. Minnesota law requires all retailers who sell motor oil to either provide a tank for used oil disposal or post a notice indicating where such a tank can be found.

Used oil contains many contaminants, some of which are hazardous to human health. Thrown into the garbage or dumped on the ground, the oil can eventually find its way to Minnesota's lakes and rivers. Some may reach groundwater levels from which drinking water is drawn. And it takes only a small amount of oil to foul the taste of thousands of gallons of water.

A gallon of recycled used motor oil can provide 2½ quarts of lubricating oil — the same amount as is produced from 42 gallons of crude oil.

When you do your regular car maintenance this spring, you can do your part for conservation. First, drain the used oil into a sturdy container with a tight-fitting cap, such as a used windshield fluid or antifreeze jug. Using a funnel helps.

Then take the oil to the nearest oil recycling site. That may be where you bought the oil, at a service station or in a shopping center or government center. Look for a sign indicating the site wherever oil is sold or call the MPCA office nearest you. It is also a good idea to call someone at the site before you go and find out when they'll be open and exactly where to find the used oil tank.

After that, you can take pride that you have not polluted Minnesota's soil and water. The old oil will be picked up and re-refined for use as a fuel or lubricant, saving some of the world's limited energy resources.

For more information about used oil recycling, call the MPCA central office in Roseville at (612) 296-7373 or the regional office nearest you: Brainerd, (218) 828-2492; Detroit Lakes (218) 847-1519; Duluth, (218) 723-4660; Marshall, (507) 537-7146; and Rochester, (507) 285-7343.

For the third straight year Thief River Falls has drawn Moorhead as a first round opponent in the North Half Region 8AA high school basketball tournament quarterfinals.

But unlike 1981 when the Spuds rolled to an easy 91-53 win at Bemidji State University, or 1982 when Moorhead breezed to a 67-37 victory at home, Tuesday's match-up should feature a much more even ball game.

Both sides enter the game with 7-11 records. It's been a down year for the Spuds, normally a Region 8AA power, but they still finished 6-1 against North Half Region 8AA competition to gain a No. 2 seed in the tournament behind East Grand Forks, a unamimous pick by the coaches for the No. 1 spot.

Only Moorhead loss against North Half Region 8AA foes this winter came against Bemidji, a team that Thief River Falls beat twice.

"I think we can stay with Moorhead this year," coach Tom Hunt of the Prowlers told the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club at its weekly luncheon meeting Thursday. "In the past years we've been out-classed by Moorhead, but this year I honestly think we can stay with them."

It can be done, but obviously not without a struggle. Thief River Falls has not beaten Moorhead since the Prowlers closed the 1964-65 regular season schedule with a 68-63 home court victory over the Spuds. They've met seven times since then, with the Spuds winning each time, by an average of 24 points.

Thief River Falls, after back-to-back wins over Park Rapids 55-50 and Bemidji 52-44 in mid-February, was within one game of .500 (7-8) and looked to be coming on strong. But the Prowlers lost their final three starts to Middle River 59-55, East Grand Forks 67-38 and Warren 39-26 Thursday to finish 7-11. They'll have to reverse that trend if they want to play more than one post-season game. A victory over Moorhead would enable Thief River Falls to inherit the Spuds' No. 2 tournament seed and they would be at home for a Thursday semifinal game vs. either Fergus Falls or Bemidji.

Dickey Named To Hall of Fame

David Dickey, the one-time Northland community college basketball star, has been inducted into the Minnesota Community College Conference State Hall of Fame, it was announced by Northland coach Chet Engelman.

Dickey, a 5-11 guard from Canton, Ohio who was a member of the Grand Forks Air Force Base basketball team when he was recruited by Engelman, was the NJCAA All-American for the Northmen in 1974 and 1975. He was named the Outstanding Player Award winner for the five-state area Region 13 all-star team in 1975, and of course, was a two-time all-state pick as he led Northland to 20-5 and 24-1 finishes those years.

He had to wait a mandatory six years before being eligible for the Hall of Fame honors.

"He's certainly deserving," acknowledged Engelman, who has been coaching the Northmen since the 1970-71 season. "He'll always be one of my all-time favorites, both as a player and a person."

When talking about Dickey, a person could start dreaming of an all-time Northland basketball team. Three of the five starting spots would be automatic — Terry Harris (1979-80; 80-81); Matt Fontes (1981-82; 82-83); and Dickey (1973-74; 74-75). They are the top three scorers in Northland basketball history, the only Northmen to surpass the 1,000-point figure. Dickey is also the school career assist leader with 513 in 50 games.

A lot of other players would be top contenders for the other two starting spots. Tony Burke (1970-71; 71-72) would certainly be a worthwhile candidate. The 6-4, 225-pound Bemidji high school graduate owns not only the Northland career rebound record with 716 in 47 games, but also has the state record to his credit with that figure. He was Northland's very first all-state player in 1972.

That last spot is up for grabs, with an edge here to guard Nick Neibauer (1968-69; 69-70), a Mentor high school gradute who held the Northland career scoring record of 843 points before Harris, Fontes and Dickey came along.

That will leave a lot of basketball talent on the bench, players like Mike Neibauer, Bill Gusa, Bill Whitney, Vince Parker, Burnie Stephens, Mike Carriere, Ralph Fitts, Dave Davenport, Tom Johnson, Preston Curtis and Keith Cheek.

Rams Top Prowlers 1-0 In Section 8 Title Game

Sometimes tradition is hard to change. Paul Broten scored a power play goal 44 seconds into the second period Friday and proved to be all the offense in a game otherwise dominated by defense as Roseau edged Thief River Falls 1-0 in the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament finals at the jam-packed East Grand Forks Civic Recreation Center.

It was the 39th annual Region 8-Section 8 tournament and the results carried on a Roseau tradition. The Rams have been in the finals 28 times, and they've won 23 of them, That's 23-for-28 over a 39-year span. That's tradition. Thief River Falls, meanwhile, has reached the finals 17 times, winning six of them. But the Prowlers were 6-for-10 at one point, and have a current 0-for-7 streak going — each loss at the hands of Roseau.

Those figures aren't lost in Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, who has watched three of his seven teams reach the finals, only to lose to the Rams and be denied a championship for the first time since 1960.

"Maybe we're getting like the Vikings," he said in reference to Minnesota's NFL record four Super Bowl losses.

This time, though, the loss was a bit tougher to take. Roseau won 4-2 over Thief River Falls in the 1979 finals and triumphed 7-3 in the 1981 title game — both played at East Grand Forks — with superior teams. This one was considered a toss-up at game time and it proved to be a terrific hockey game, played in front of a tournament-record 3,974 fans. It was the first 1-0 championship game in the history of the tournament.

"The other two times Roseau maybe had the manpower edge," said Grand in talking about those 1979 and 1981 title game meetings. "This year was a better opportunity for us. I feel the clubs are incredibly close. That's why this one was so disappointing."

After a scoreless, close-checking first period, Broten produced the game's only goal when he took a pass from Larry Goos, who was behind the Thief River Falls net, and put a quick, low shot past Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin from about 20 feet. It was a power play goal stemming from a tripping call on the Prowlers' Rick Spong at 14:07 of the first period. There were just three penalties called all night, two on the Prowlers — both in the first period.

"We felt we played a reasonably good game," said Grand. "Roseau had one more power play opportunity than we did and I guess that was the difference."

Grand and Roseau coach Gary Hokanson both said they were surprised at the low score.

"I'm a little bit surprised it was that low scoring," admitted Grand. "It's the first game of the season we've been shut out and obviously it couldn't have come at a worse time. We're disappointed we didn't generate more good offensive opportunities, but Roseau certainly deserves some of the credit for that."

Thief River Falls did have two excellent scoring opportunities slip away when Steve Wiskow and Tim Bergland missed open nets two minutes apart near the midway point of the second period. They both shot wide, with Wiskow missing at 5:25 and Bergland missing at 7:38.

"The one that hurt the most is the one that Bergle had, and I still have no idea where the puck went, and neither does he," said Grand.

"I felt it was an excellent game from the drop of the puck to the very end; a full 45 minutes," offered Hokanson, who said he had expected more offense. "I felt we could score on them, and I also felt they could score on us because that's the way our two games went this year and both have great scorers."

But the only one to get a goal was Broten — his first in three Section 8 games this year. "I think he deserved it," said Hokanson. "Paulie's been playing well all year, but he felt bad because he hadn't scored in the last two games. He thought he had lost his touch."

Roseau will take an 18-6 record to the 1983 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament at the St. Paul Civic Center, where the Rams will play Henry Sibley Thursday in a 7:05 p.m. opening round quarterfinal game. Henry Sibley doubled St. Paul Johnson 6-3 in Friday's Section 4 finals. Thief River Falls finished the year 16-6-1.

Warren Tops TRF 39-26 In Defensive Struggle

There wasn't a whole lot of scoring done Thursday when Thief River Falls closed out its 1982-83 high school basketball season against Warren in the Lincoln gym, but it wasn't for a lack of effort. Both sides put out that 100 per cent effort coaches are always looking for, but 95 per cent of it was spent on defense as the Ponies defeated the Prowlers in a low-scoring 39-26 affair.

It was the second frustrating offensive night of the year for the Prowlers against the Ponies. Three months earlier Warren embarrassed Thief River Falls 42-18 in a Dec. 4 game at Warren. This time it wasn't an embarrassment, but it was a disappointing way to end a 7-11 regular season for the Prowlers. The Ponies finished 16-2.

Strong defense and patient offense was used on both sides as Warren emerged with a 15-11 first half lead. Thief River Falls led 8-6 at the end of the first quarter when a Kirk Jensen pass found Jeff Hamerlinck alone underneath the basket for an easy lay-up with 32 seconds left.

Hamerlinck also opened the second quarter with a free throw as the Prowlers opened up their biggest lead of the game, 9-6. But after a basket underneath by strong sophomore forward Mike Turgeon cut the gap to 9-8, the Ponies took the lead for keeps when first center Mark Carlson, then Turgeon slipped inside for baskets after back-to-back Thief River Falls turnovers, making it 12-9 with 4:10 left in the first half. Sitting on a 14-11 lead, Warren played defense on offense the final 1½ minutes as the Ponies ran down the clock until Darren Evavold drew a foul and made one of two free throw tries with four seconds left.

Thief River Falls stayed close, with Randy Naeseth scoring from the middle for a 17-15 game with 5:31 remaining in the third quarter, until Warren came up with a 6-1 scoring edge over the next 2:38. That might not seem like an offensive outburst in most games, but in this one where points were hard to come by, it was a bonanza for the Ponies, who had themselves a 23-16 spread with 2:53 showing. An unpopular charging call against Thief River Falls' Mark Gere brought a chorus of boos and a technical foul with 2:02 left. Sophomore Pete Myszkowski hit one of the free throws for a 24-18 edge as the quarter ended. Senior guard Steve Kruta hit a basket from the corner to open the final eight minutes and pulling the Prowlers to within 24-20. But Warren scored the next seven points to put it away with a 31-20 gap midway through the quarter. Biggest spread was 39-24 with 1:21 to go.

Thief River Falls shot 38 per cent from the field for the game, hitting only 11 of a minimal 29 field goal attempts. The Ponies closed down the middle with their zone, and the Prowlers were reluctant to shoot from the outside. Warren, meanwhile, shot 39 per cent on a 16-for-41 showing. The Ponies were 7-for-15 at the free throw line where the Prowlers were 4-for-9. Warren had a 19-18 rebound edge and Thief River Falls topped the turnover figures 18-7.

THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Steve Wiskow (12) was checked off the puck and Roseau defenseman Tom Pederson (15) picked it up during the first period of Friday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game at East Grand Forks. The Rams beat the Prowlers 1-0.

TRYING TO CONTROL a bouncing puck, Thief River Falls forward Tim Bottem skated by a Roseau player Friday during the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game at East Grand Forks. The Rams got by the Prowlers 1-0 for the title and a trip to the state hockey tournament.

TRF Divers Finish 1-2 In Section 4 Swim Meet

Thief River Falls' Todd Wing and Jeff Rosetta finished 1-2 Saturday in the finals of the diving competition at the 1983 Section 4 swimming and diving championships at Bemidji State University.

Wing, a sophomore, led from start to finish in collecting 351.20 points. Rosetta, a junior, rallied from a seventh place standing through Friday's preliminaries to a second place finish Saturday with 304.60 points.

Rosetta still sat in third place going into his last dive and needed all 7's from the judges to overtake Pete Etterman of Brainerd for third place, and he hit his dive well to accomplish just that.

"Todd dove excellent all through the whole meet. He had 7-to-8½ on his last dive," reported Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "Jeff had a bad preliminary. But he hung in there, worked hard and really showed what he was made of in his last three dives."

Bemidji wound up with the Section 4 team title with 242 points, followed by Fergus Falls with 204, Brainerd 168, Alexandria 157, Moorhead 104, Staples 80, Thief River Falls 64, Park Rapids 51, Fosston 45, Detroit Lakes 43 and Little Falls 25.

Top six divers and top two swimmers in each event earned spots in the 1983 state swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls co-captain Dave Ose, a junior, placed in the finals of two swimming events, turning in a Lincoln school record 2:08.72 for a third place finish in the 200-yard individual medley and recording a personal-best 51.62 for a fifth in the 100-yard freestyle. He bettered Mark Storhaug's 1976 school record 2:10.3 in the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:09.04 in the prelims, then came back and topped that in the finals.

Nearly every Thief River Falls swimmer turned in their best times of the year at the meet, making Forney more than satisfied with the Prowlers' efforts. "It was a very respectable showing," he said.

DNR NEWS

Renew Boat License

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is urging boat owners to hurry up and renew their licenses if they have expired, instead of waiting until just before the fishing opener.

License officials said only about one half of the expired licenses have been renewed to date and they fear a last minute rush will mean delays for owners in receiving the licenses before the fishing season.

They say owners who renew them now will receive them in plenty of time for the fishing opener.

Need Park Hosts

Minnesota state parks are again looking for volunteers to serve as "Campground Hosts" during the camping season. State park officials said this program has been used very successfully during the past two seasons.

"Hosts" are responsible, friendly people looking for a chance to meet and assist fellow campers while providing minor services at the campground. They are expected to stay at least a minimum of four weeks or longer in any one park. Exact schedules and duties will be mutually agreed to by the host and respective park manager.

Hosts are generally expected to be available during early evening hours, weekends and holidays. In addition to a free campsite, hosts gain an intimate knowledge of the area in which they serve and have the opportunity to meet people from all walks of life.

Officials said that perhaps the most important benefit that hosts receive is a sense of satisfaction knowing they have helped make other visitors' experience at Minnesota state parks more enjoyable.

Persons interested in being hosts this coming summer are asked to contact the park manager for more information at the particular park where they would like to serve. They can also write Don Jueneman, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks and Recreation, Box 39, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 (612) 296-2609.

Spearing Rules

Department of Natural Resources reminded sportsmen that it is illegal to have possession of a fish spear near any waters of the state between Feb. 16 and April 30.

Purpose of the regulation is to prevent the unlawful spearing of game fish during the spring spawning season. During the spring the fish move into shallow water and into streams where they are vulnerable to spearing activity.

After April 30, resident Minnesota fishermen may spear rough fish — as defined on pages 14-15 of the 1983 fishing regulations. Enforcement officials called attention to the fact that there is a limit on the number of suckers, redhorse and bullheads, as spelled out in the regulations. They also pointed out spearing may only be done during daylight hours.

Rough fish spearers who are 16 years of age or older are required to have a fishing license.

Caribou Endangered

Only herd of woodland caribou still found in the United States outside of Alaska will be added to the endangered species list under an emergency rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has announced.

The less than 20 animals in the small herd are found in Idaho's Selkirk Mountains. The woodland caribou has different habitat requirements than the "barren ground" caribou.

At one time the woodland subspecies was found in several northern states, including Minnesota, but subsistence hunting by settlers and changes in habitat eliminated the animal south of the Canadian border.

Woodland caribou still exist in southern Ontario within 60 miles of the Minnesota border, however. During the winter of 1980-81, one and possibly two, caribou were observed several times in the vicinity of Hovland on the North Shore. But no sightings of the animals have been made since spring 1981.

Fish and Wildlife Service said that under the endangered species program the agency will be able to take steps to protect and manage the herd and, hopefully, bring about a recovery in the population.

Under the Endangered Species Act, caribou pouchers will be subject to penalties amounting up to $20,000.

Middle River Girls Win 41-40 In O.T.

Skippers Edge Nordics In District 32 Title Contest

Middle River emerged with its first District 32 girls high school basketball tournament championship trophy Thursday with an emotional 41-40 overtime victory over rival Marshall County Central.

The outcome will send the Skippers into the Region 8A tournament at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) Friday where they'll face District 29 champion Cass Lake in the tournament opener at 7 p.m.

"We're pretty happy with it," said Middle River coach Tom Neibauer about the championship. "The kids worked real hard for it. They deserved it."

Neibauer and Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde both called it a great defensive game. "It was a real well-played game. The type of game you want for the district championship," said a disappointed Mjelde. "I don't want to take anything away from Middle River. They have some very talented athletes. I wish them all the luck in the world. I hope they go over to UMC and win it all."

It was a 4-4 draw through the first quarter, with Middle River gaining a 17-12 edge at halftime. The Skippers had a 28-26 lead going into the fourth quarter when things really got tense.

Jody Christofferson broke a 35-35 tie by hitting both ends of a bonus free throw opportunity under pressure with 14 seconds left, but Sue Olson of Marshall County Central forced overtime when she slipped inside for a game-tying basket with just four seconds remaining in regulation time. Middle River almost won it when Kari Skoglund hit the front of the rim as she crossed midcourt at the buzzer.

Instead, Middle River waited until overtime when Paula Rantanen scored on a rebound off a missed free throw, then got the game-winning basket off a jump ball with 19 seconds to go.

Rantanen scored 16 points and Diane Black had 11 for the Skippers. Brenda Dahl and sophomore Jody Nelson, who came off the bench to keep the Nordics close, finished with 10 each for Marshall County Central.

Key factor in the outcome was Middle River's defensive effort on Marshall County Central's Sue Olson, who was held scoreless for over 3½ quarters and finished with only seven points, well off the 19.1 average for the member of the 1,000-point club.

"That was the key to stopping them," confirmed Neibauer. "We zoned them and took the passing lanes away so they couldn't get the ball to Sue. It was a good defensive ball game."

"A very defensive ball game," amended Mjelde, who said the Nordics' inability to score from the oustide was the big factor. Had they hit a few of those, it would have opened things up inside for Olson, he explained.

Still, Marshall County Central did out-score Middle River from the field. The Nordics were 17-for-51 shooting from the field (33 per cent) while the Skippers went 13-for-40 (32 per cent). But while the Skippers didn't shoot free throws very well, they did shoot enough of them to win, going 15-for-30 at the line where the Nordics were 6-for-10.

Three Marshall County Central players fouled out of the game — Olson, Dahl and Shelly Anderson. "We can't win with people like that on the bench," said Mjelde. "The game was decided at the free throw line. We just committed too many fouls."

Middle River had a 32-27 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures 22-13. The Skippers will take a 20-1 record to the Region 8A tournament, losing only to Marshall County Central, 38-28, this winter. The Nordics finished 18-3, losing a regular season 46-36 decision to Middle River.

The Administrative Pairing Grant (CQE) was discussed. The report detailed meetings held, and progress of the project to day. (See report No. 7.2 attached to the official Board Minutes.)

A review of three area banks and their services to the district was presented. It was recommended that if assurances can be granted for increase in investment deposit, the district should declare the American State Bank of Grygla, as the official depository. This action would not occur until the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1, 1983. (See report No. 7.3 attached to the official Board Minutes.)

He also requested that any consideration for sharing administrative services be conducted between school boards, and that only once a decision to share had been worked out, that he made a party to the discussion. (See report No. 11.1 attached to the official Board Minutes.)

In Our Time
LAST YEAR CONSUMERS BOUGHT $2 BILLION OF BATHROOM TISSUES...
AND MANUFACTURERS PAID OUT $30 MILLION TO ADVERTISE IT.
BUT, SHOPPERS AT THE TURN OF THE CENTURY WOULD HAVE BEEN SHOCKED TO SEE BATHROOM TISSUES ON STORE SHELVES... MUCH LESS SEE IT OPENLY ADVERTISED.
BATHROOM TISSUES HERE
IT WAS A MEDICAL NECESSITY THEN, AN "UNMENTIONABLE" UNDER THE COUNTER ITEM... BUT, "SOCIAL HANGUPS" HAD TO FALL, AND IN 1890 THE SCOTT BROTHERS OF PHILADELPHIA, FOUNDERS OF TODAY'S $2.3 BILLION SCOTT PAPER COMPANY, PLACED THE FIRST BATHROOM TISSUE ADVERTISEMENT IN A MAGAZINE.
THE NATION'S OLDEST BRAND OF BATHROOM TISSUES IS SCOTT'S WALDORF INTRODUCED 80 YEARS AGO.
LASTING THROUGH 3 WARS, A DEPRESSION AND THE RISE AND FALL OF NUMEROUS OTHER BRANDS, IT IS STILL PROMINENT ON MARKET SHELVES TODAY!

Newfolden Grad Heads College Computer Unit

Les Bakke, assistant director of records and research at Moorhead state university, has been named director of the university's new computer services division in a move to meet the growing demands on campus for computer technology.

Bakke, a 1963 graduate of Newfolden high school, received an undergraduate degree in computer science and a graduate degree in counseling from Moorhead state and has been working at the university for the past 10 years. He and his wife Marilyn, an accounting teacher at Interstate Business college, live in Moorhead.

Thirty new Apple microcomputers have arrived at the university as part of the administrative realignment.

The academic department, computer sciences, has managed the university's computer services for the past decade — processing and keeping records for administration, personnel, students and alumni along with requirements for word processing and academic research. Since then, however, the number of computer science majors has jumped from 15 to over 400 with a like increase in demand for computer services.

Bakke will supervise a senior systems analyst, four professional programmer analysts, a computer operator and two data entry operators under the new division located at the computer science department. He'll continue holding the positions as campus veterans service and data privacy officer.

Atlantis Brings Broadway To TRF

by Julie Easton
Times Reporter

Amid shouts of "My make up is frozen," and "Where's J.T.; somebody find J.T.!" the stage was somehow erected for last Monday night's performance of "Best of Broadway."

Atlantis Productions, an Atlanta, GA based touring company, delighted a large audience in the Lincoln high school auditorium with songs from popular Broadway musicals.

Before the audience sees the glamour or the glitter, the company spends over an hour setting up the stage, another hour running through a quick rehearsal and about 45 minutes dressing and making up.

Everybody helps. They aren't dressed in designer outfits, but overalls, jeans, tennis shoes and sweatshirts. There is a lot of laughing, singing and tap dancing.

Despite being three hours behind schedule because of bad weather, several actors made themselves available for a Times interview.

Denise Dunklin, who is on her second tour with the company, sings and dances in the show and also presses the costumes before any curtain opens.

She is from Atlanta, GA. Like all the company members, her laugh is quick and infectious. These performers strike one as being people who would make great friends.

Denise said most of the places the group plays are sponsored by a concert association or university club in the theatre or music department. Atlantis has existed for five years.

Commenting about "Best of Broadway" Denise said, "This show is especially concertish. I mean the music is classical in nature and it has comedy. It's that kind of polished, professional show."

Professionals are an absolute necessity for a group like Atlantis because after the cast is chosen, only two to three weeks are used for rehearsal.

Heidi Hoks Is New Assistant At NW Library

Mrs. Hoks is a 1973 honors graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and has an A.A. degree from Northland community college here, a B.S. education degree in speech hand theatre from University of North Dakota, and an M.A. in library science from the University of Minnesota-Minneapolis. Her duties as assistant director include supervision of staff, children's collection development and programming.

Mrs. Hoks is married to James Hoks, co-owner of Hall's Floral. She was born and raised in Thief River Falls and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Bornholdt of rural Thief River Falls. While at Northland she was selected for outstanding student and "Who's Who" awards.

After finishing her schooling, she worked as a school librarian, theatre director and speech coach for four years at Elbow Lake and had also worked as a library consultant to neighboring schools in her free time. She has also been employed during the summer as a director for the LaMoure Summer Musical theatre.

Since returning to Thief River Falls in August of 1982, Mrs. Hoks has worked part-time at Discovery Place and Hall's Floral and has worked as a substitute teacher in area schools as well as being an active member of the "Kids on the Block" organization, president of the Thief River Falls community arts council and a director for one of the Chameleon Theatre's Christmas plays.

Knox Closing Hearing Draws 75 To Lincoln

Public hearing on the proposed closing of Knox elementary school attracted approximately 75 people to the Lincoln high school cafeteria on Tuesday evening. Other than Supt. Robert Block and business manager Harry Nelson, only four people presented testimony at the hearing.

The superintendent and business manager presented information accumulated by the district in regard to projected expenditures, reduced enrollments, budget cut proposals and expected cash flow difficulties for the school district in the coming school year. Nelson pointed out that the district's fund balance has dwindled from $1,040,372 four years ago to an expected deficit of $133,873 in 1983-84 if budget cutting is not accomplished.

Summarizing his presentation, Supt. Block said that the closing of Knox school would still allow the district to handle its students, that the closing would have the least impact on pupils, that it would provide for a more efficient operation of the school district and appeared to be the best possible answer to the district's financial difficulties.

First of four people to present testimony at the hearing, Mike Lundgren said he empathized with the board in its efforts to control costs and provide programs, but suggested that the public should have more direct involvement in decision-making. If a public referendum is required to build a new school, he said, perhaps a referendum should be held to see if the voters want to abandon an existing one. He also suggested a check-off referendum where voters could choose which items should be cut on a priority basis.

Gary Page pointed out that the closing of the building would be a permanent action that would render it unfit for future use. Elimination of heating cost would be a major saving by closing the school, but failure to heat the building would destroy it in two winters, he said.

Page also said that lay-off of personnel would reduce the community's tax base and, citing the increasing importance of education, suggested that the people of the nation commit themselves to training students in advanced technology or teach them to speak Japanese or German so they can find employment.

Scott Bentson expressed a preference for people and programs over structures, saying that if closing the building would permit the district to keep teachers, programs and acceptable class sizes, he is for the closing.

Cheryl Northrup asked several questions about relocation of students and transportation which were responded to by Supt. Block.

Aging Council Meets Monday

Pennington county council on aging will meet at 1:30 p.m. Monday, March 14, in the basement meeting room of city auditorium.

Court View Given On Divorce Laws

Viewpoint of the court on property division, custody of children and visitation rights, and support payments in divorce cases was presented Thursday evening to the Northern Family Rights association by Judge Larry Jorgenson of Pennington county court.

"If the purpose of this organization is to improve the decisions of the court," Judge Jorgenson said, "to assist us in making decisions on custody and other matters, I support it. And I mean that. We're dealing with people's lives."

The judge pointed out that judges in the courtroom are dealing only in the evidence that is presented. "It's not unusual not to get all the evidence you should have in making a proper decision," he said. "Your organization can help to get more information to the public."

Jorgenson said his intention was to speak in general terms, recognizing that individual circumstances and cases would often vary from the norm.

Regarding division of property, Judge Jorgenson noted that both marital and non-marital property are to be considered. Marital property is that which was acquired by a couple during the term of a marriage. Non-marital property is that whch was owned prior to the marriage or received as a specific gift by one of the marriage partners. Marital property is generally divided equally in a divorce — exclusive of the house, the judge said.

If there is not enough marital property jointly owned, he added, non-marital property can be divided up to a 50-50 split. By law the judge is required to take into consideration such items as length of the marriage, any prior marriage of the parties, age, health, station, occupation, amount and sources of income, vocational skills, employability, estates, needs, liabilities and opportunity for any future acquisition of capital assets.

Explosion And Fire Destroys VanCamp Home

Explosion and fire at the Richard Van Camp home nine miles north of Thief River Falls about 4:45 p.m. Monday demolished the cement block house and resulted in hospitalization of VanCamp with burns.

Mr. and Mrs. VanCamp have been employees of Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls since 1961 and have lived in the house which was destroyed for the past 15 years.

According to Mrs. VanCamp, two of their children returned from school and smelled gas in the house. They called their mother at work and she told them to turn down the thermostat, open the back door and leave the house.

When she and Richard arrived home, they opened the basement windows for about 45 minutes and the gas smell disappeared. The house is equipped with both gas and wood burning furnaces. Mr. and Mrs. VanCamp went into the basement after the airing-out period but told the children to remain outside.

Mrs. VanCamp said her husband checked the inside of the wood burning stove and could smell no gas there, then flicked a cigarette lighter several times without any reaction. They he attempted to light the wood burning furnace.

"When we opened the basement windows we must have forced the gas into the upper part of the house," Mrs.

THE FORSBERG GRAVITY SEPERATOR NO9

AN EARLY MODEL of the seed cleaning equipment manufactured by Forsberg's, Inc., of Thief River Falls came back to the local plant Tuesday. Les Hutton Jr. of Manvel, ND (at left in the photo above with Irv Forsberg), purchased the Model 9 machine at a farm estate auction between Hatton and Portland, ND, Saturday. Serial number 294 on the unit indicated it was probably built in 1941. Hutton brought the 42-year-old separator to the Forsberg plant to learn how to operate it for cleaning edible beans on his farm operation. The machine still has original paint and the only change appeared to be in location of an electric motor. While the machine has a capacity to clean about 35 100-pound bags per hour, the Model 250V in the background (photo at left) has a capacity of 250 bags per hour. Hutton said he paid $300 for the separator at the auction. New price in 1941 was $550. Nearly 11,000 machines have been produced at the Forsberg plant since No. 294 was built.

Atlantis Treats TRF To "Best Of Broadway"

Of course, as every company member is quick to add, eight to ten hours a day are spent singing and dancing when the group is in rehearsal. This company also puts on a show entitled "Best of Hollywood" so the rehearsal time for each was only about ten days.

Denise studied music at Emery university, but she said some other cast members majored in theatre and one even has a business degree. She landed the job with Atlantis after an audition.

Although Denise studied music, she is also required to dance. "Dancing was part of the audition. You have to be able to move well," she commented.

Denise also related that a dancer must be able to adapt to many situations and staging problems. "One time we played in a Catholic church with a giant pulpit right in the middle. What do you do with it? I mean you can't really dance on it!"

John Purcell, narrator, said that a community the size of Thief River Falls is his favorite place to perform.

"It's a job that I enjoy. Bringing art to the smaller communities is rewarding. The audiences are so appreciative," he stated.

John also commented that he enjoys the "Best of Broadway" show because it has appeal for many audiences. "We start with the 1900 to 1950 period for the older members and then move to the 1950 to 1980 period for the younger members. Everybody can relate."

John's favorite part of any show is making the audience laugh. "I'm a comedian. I enjoy comic songs and the comedy," he related. His solo "Mrs. Worthington" and his coconut outfit in "South Pacific" proved this.

With a degree in theatre and music from Indiana university and some study at the Eastman School of Music, John has been in several professional performances. Last summer, he played John Dean in the musical "Watergate."

Over 100 companies choose cast members from the Southeastern theatre conference auditions and that is how John became a part of Atlantis.

For an aspiring actor or actress, John can only recommend hard work. "Your chances are totally dependent on how hard you work. The overnight success stories when some agent sees you and says, 'I want him!' just don't happen very often."

The personal life of John, who is a native of Rochester, NY, shows that there is both good and bad. He revealed that his lifestyle is not conducive to marriage or even a solid personal relationship. It just isn't possible with constant tour traveling and moving from city to city where the acting jobs are.

Yet, there is a definite sense of oneness within the traveling group. Laughter abounds and a lot of teasing keeps everyone in a good mood before the show.

With four actors, four actresses, two technicians, one musician and a production manager touring thousands of miles together, the humor is a necessity.

"When you travel together you have to be ready to joke. You have to purposely make yourself not have personality conflicts," John said.

John also crushed a few stereotypes about performers. "Everybody thinks if you are in theatre you party all night—not true!" Instad, John said the cast takes down the set, cleans up and settles in a hotel room to watch an old movie. Exhaustion after a show eliminates an abundance of social activities.

What lies in the future for Denise and John? Well, Denise will "look for another job" when the three-month tour with Atlantis is over. So far, she considers herself lucky because she has been able to find steady professional work in an overcrowded field. If nothing turns up, she is more than willing to waitress.

John said, "I would like to be a good actor. Just personally be the best actor and person possible."

Despite the long hours spent rehearsing and performing, Denise and John agree that the excitement makes it worth the work. That tension and excitement was expressed by John: "If you don't get nervous before a show something is wrong."

For the Atlantis group the schedule shows two more months of touring in a car, station wagon and truck. Brainerd was the stop Tuesday with Huron, SD, slated for the middle of this week.

TRF Women Organized First Local Library

Women's history week afforded an opportunity for the Thief River Falls chapter of the American association of university women to note how the first library was organized by women.

At the turn of the century, Thief River Falls, like many villages, boasted a collection of books for public use. There were no rules, and the assortment was maintained through the generosity of its patrons. When one had no further use for a book, the volume was presented to the "library." In time the collection became of such size that it needed a permanent home.

A few public-spirited women decided to organize a group to manage the collected books. Actual formation of the first library board took place April 13, 1901, with Mrs. James Meehan as president; she oversaw the building of a one-story library annex on the north side of the old city fire hall in the spring of 1902.

Fund-raising drive netted $500 to purchase the first books. Mrs. C.L. Dobner succeeded Mrs. Meehan as president. Teas, dances, and suppers were held to raise funds for the growing library. The library proved to be a needed addition to the community. In 1906 four men were added to the board, and a physician was elected president.

Thief River Falls had been incorporated in 1893; only eight years later the library was established by this group who had the desire to create values and institutions where none had existed. The community has continued to support and use the library, which is now networked with five counties that form the Northwest regional library.

Library continues to operate through the dedicated service of many women on the staff and board of trustees.

Women's history week is an opportunity to recognize all women who have shaped our collective past. The standard of living in our communities has been influenced by the work of women. The library, Ripley center for battered women, nursery schools, and Girl Scouts in Thief River Falls are a few examples.

History books give much to our understanding of how our nation was shaped. Women had their influence here too. It was the work of women which led to March 8 being declared as international women's day. It was this which also influenced the legislature for national women's week.

The house is generally the main asset of a married couple, the judge said, and the house will usually follow the children. Responsibility for payment of the mortgage also goes with the house.

One of the marriage partners can be forced out of the house only by an order from the court, issued after the filing of an affidavit that continued residence constitutes the threat of physical or emotional harm to the spouse or children.

"The wording of that statute is an absolute abomination!" Judge Jorgenson stated emphatically. "It's terrible! Just what is emotional harm? Usually there is arguing in the home — people generally don't seek a divorce if they get along. If an affidavit is filed with the court charging the threat of emotional harm, an order to have the spouse removed from the home is usually signed.

"There have been cases where a person has been evicted from the home with no advance warning. That's a cruel and hard shock and I know it, but that's the law in Minnesota."

Judge Jorgenson discussed the first hearing in a divorce filing, where the court establishes temporary custody, possession of property, support and visitation. He said it is intended to provide some stability in a deteriorating situation and set up a holding pattern while material for a final hearing is prepared. During the period following the first hearing the couple is restrained from selling marital property and from "... harrassing, vilifying, mistreating, molesting or disturbing the peace".

Custody of children is not a case of win or lose, the judge cautioned. "I hear this all the time: 'I got the kids, I won'," he said. "Custody is not a gift, it is a privilege. It is granted for what the court considers to be the best interest of the children — not the mother, not the father, but the children."

Judge Jorgenson also took a poke at the state divorce or dissolution statutes. "As far as wanting a divorce or not wanting a divorce, there is no such thing in Minnesota," he said. "All the law requires is that one partner contends that a marriage is irretrievably broken. If one party wants out, they're out," he said.

He reminded those in attendance at the meeting that the present divorce statute was written by legislator Phyllis Kahn and another legislator and became law in 1974. "They prided themselves," he said, "that neither had talked to judges, to attorneys, to representatives of any divorce rights groups. . . and that's all I'm going to say about that."

What does a judge do to determine which parent gets custody of children in a divorce? "Lay awake nights, look at the ceiling, get short-tempered with your own family. Of all the things you do in court, determining custody is the toughest," the judge said.

He said that he orders studies by social services department personnel but prefers it when the social worker makes no recommendation as to who should have custody. All he wants from the social worker is a description of how each parent will care for the child for the rest of it's life as a minor.

"We consider the wishes of the parents and the reasonable preference of the child," Judge Jorgenson said. "I personally believe that one of the cruelest things to do to a child is to ask him or her to choose one parent over the other. They usually love both parents. They don't want the family to break up. They don't want either parent mad at them, and generally they will respond in the way they think they are supposed to respond."

Judge Jorgenson ventured the opinion that he believes one of the biggest reasons why the divorce situation has gotten out of hand has been the availability of public assistance. Ready access to AFDC payments provides a means by which a person can show a plan for support of children if given custody.

The judge said he has found in his experience that women in divorce proceedings generally have developed a plan for caring for the children. Men usually do not have a plan. Noting that all court decisions must be based on the evidence provided as part of the record, the judge urged all people seeking custody to have a prepared plan for care of the children.

He also noted that conduct of the parent awarded custody has no bearing on that award if the conduct can't be shown to adversely affect the children. "If the person leaves children unattended in the home, comes home boozed up, is negligent in providing for the child's welfare, that information must be documented and presented to the court in a petition before any action can be taken," the judge said. "The same applies to denial of visitation rights.

"Women tend to act while men tend to react," the judge added. "If men refuse to make support payments, women file a petition and bring them into court. If men are denied visitation rights granted under the order, they also must file a petition requesting that the woman be cited for contempt of court by failing to abide by the order. Grounds for those charges should also be documented. You have rights under the law but they can't be upheld if you don't use them."

The judge cautioned against withholding support payments because of visitation denial. The two areas are separate and neither has any bearing on the other, he said. He also said the courts prefer to provide for reasonable visitation rather than rigidly structured visitation. The non-custodial parent and the child both have rights to parent-child relationships, he said.

Joint custody is unfair to the child and is usually impossible where there is no common ground between the principals in a divorce case. "I'm not saying that it is necessarily a bad idea," the judge said, "but I am saying that in most cases it just won't work."

Regarding support payment, Judge Jorgenson said Minnesota law provides that the custodial parent and children are entitled to the same standard of living they would have enjoyed if the dissolution had not taken place. "Now how in the hell can you do that?" the judge asked. "There's never enough money to go around. Two households can't be maintained as cheaply as one. It's impossible."

The judge said there are guidelines for relating support payment to income, and that a certain amount of reliance is placed on the guidelines.

Judge Jorgenson also spent some time answering questions from the audience in regard to the laws, their interpretation and suggestions for change.

ONE OF SEVERAL BOYS entered in the favorite foods show Saturday at the Falls Mall in Thief River Falls, Gordon Hall of New Solum 4-H club listened as judge Glenna Hanson asked a question about his muffin entry. About 40 county 4-H club members enrolled in the foods project participated in the annual event.

Discounts Given To Otter Tail Users In '82

Unlike most years, in 1982 Minnesota customers of Otter Tail power company received discounts totaling almost $300,000 due to the energy adjustment clause, an obscure element of rate regulation.

Energy adjustment clause is often criticized by consumerist groups, and this year's legislature will again be asked to abolish it.

Investor-owned utilities — including Otter Tail Power, according to chairman and chief executive Robert M. Bigwood — will fight to keep it.

Energy adjustment clause is not a difficult concept, according to Bigwood. When the cost of fuel or purchased power rises above a point set by the Minnesota public utilities commission, the utility is permitted to pass an increase on to its customers without a formal rate case.

That is what consumerists object to.

Conversely, Bigwood points out, if the cost of fuel or purchased power drops below that point, the utility is obligated to give a discount to customers.

That is what happened in 1982. Neighboring utilities offered short-term surplus power for sale at prices below Otter Tail's cost of production. With the cost of energy adjustment as an incentive, Otter Tail took advantage of as many opportunities as possible, backing down its own plants to maximize the savings.

"We'd like to think that our customers encourage our efforts," Bigwood said. He went on to explain that, among all utility costs, fuel and purchased power are unique.

"First, they can't be avoided. Utility doesn't have the option of not paying for fuel or purchased power when its customers need electricity. If we didn't pay those costs as they are incurred, the electricity would stop flowing; and we don't have the option of letting that happen," he said.

"Those costs also change virtually every month," he went on, "so the energy adjustment charge or discount changes every month. Additionally, fuel and purchased power costs are incurred in direct proportion in every kilowatt-hour consumed. It is not necessary to conduct rate case hearings to determine exactly who is responsible for those costs," Bigwood continued.

"But the most important reason for retaining the energy adjustment clause is that it is so eminently fair," Bigwood emphasized. "It is fair to the customer and fair to Otter Tail; and our customers want, above all else, to be treated fairly," he said. Regulators have historically let utilities pass through those cost increases to customers because of that inherent fairness, Bigwood said.

"If we were forced to file a formal rate case every time our fuel or purchased power costs fluctuated, we'd lose a powerful incentive to provide reliable service at the lowest possible cost. Added rate cases would serve no useful purpose, and higher rates would likely result," Bigwood said.

The $300,000 discount that Minnesota customers of Otter Tail received in 1982 is the largest sum ever returned under the energy adjustment clause.

Most years the cost of fuel and purchased power follows inflation and rises, however. Year earlier, for example, Otter Tail collected $160,000 under the energy adjustment formula.

Mon. Concert Of Broadway Songs Reviewed

by LaVonne Masters

Community concert goers were treated to the "Best of Broadway" on Monday evening at Lincoln high school. The program was produced by Atlantis Productions under the tour direction of Allied Concert services.

The program included the works of a variety of composers — George and Ira Gershwin, Noel Coward, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Lerner and Loewe, Cole Porter, Irving Berlin, Frank Loesser, Meredith Wilson, Kandler and Ebb, Webber and Rice and Martin Charnin and represented a long list of shows including "Oklahoma," "Brigadoon," "Kiss Me Kate," "South Pacific," "Guys and Dolls," "Kismet," "The Music Man," "Man of LaMancha," "Evita," "Annie" and "Cats."

The cast was comprised of four men and four women singers who worked together very well. The blend of their voices was exquisite and especially well projected. The soloists performed expertly; two of the better solos were "Mrs. Worthington" and "Ball Hai."

The cast is to be commended for it's versatility in song and dance. The brief interludes of narration in the performance did much to provide perspective for the more than two-hour program.

Costuming was refreshing and the choreography was generally appropriate. In "The Music Man" episode the choreography seemed more natural than staged and a real asset to audience involvement. But, the laurel wreath goes to Laurie Ghessling, the piano accompanist, who was superb and largely responsible for the ebullient tempo of the entire performance. She played with sensitivity, technique and boundless energy.

SWCD Essay Contest Rules Are Listed

All students in grades seven through 12 who live in the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district are eligible to enter the 1983 conservation essay contest.

The contest is sponsored by the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts in cooperation with its auxiliary and Land O' Lakes agricultural services. Topic for the 1983 conservation essay contest is "Trees are for?"

Junior division is for grades seven to nine and the senior division is for grades 10 to 12. Junior division entries should be 400 to 500 words in length and senior division entries 600 to 800 words in length. Each essay should have a cover page listing contestant's name, age, grade, school and the name of the local soil and water conservation district.

District essay contest entries must be completed and turned in the soil and water conservation district by April 15.

Judging will be based on the following: composition — 30 per cent, includes spelling, grammar, sentence structure, organization and legibility and subject matter — 70 per cent, includes accuracy of information, originality, and relevance to the announced topic. Judges decisions will be final.

District winners will be eligible to go on to area and state competition. District prizes are $10 for first, $5 for second and two honorable mention prizes for $2.50 in each age division. More information can be obtained from the English teachers at the Grygla school or from the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

Many To Plant Legumes Under PIK Program

U.S. department of agriculture's payment-in-kind program will idle an estimated 30 million acres during the 1983 growing season. That land, normally used to grow corn, wheat, rice, grain sorghum or highland cotton, must be devoted to conservation uses during the course of the program.

Because of their nitrogen-fixing ability, one of the most popular and productive crop alternatives will be legumes. Properly inoculated, alfalfa, sweet clover, clover or vetch, for example, could add up to 140 pounds of nitrogen to the soil during a single growing season. According to agronomists, that is the same amount of nitrogen that would be gained from the application of 170 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per acre, and at about one-third the cost.

The nitrogen-fixing capability of legumes, however, is not automatic. The soil must contain the appropriate bacteria type for the specific legume crop in order for nitrogen production to occur. These Rhizobia bacteria form nodules on the root system of the plant where the sought-after nitrogen fixation process occurs. To ensure an adequate population of the proper Rhizobial strain — legume seed should be inoculated prior to planting. This is especially true when the particular legume crop has not recently been grown on the land now chosen for the crop.

Researcher Thomas J. Wacek, Ph.D., puts it this way, "Remember that a legume without nodules is virtually the same as no legume at all; which is another way of saying that the inoculant is an important as the legume."

For many PIK program participants, legumes will become a productive and profitable crop alternative for 1983. In addition to their recognized value as a forage and as a nitrogen source legumes can help prevent weed growth, control erosion, improve the soil tilth and enrich the soil with organic matter.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Where are we going? Where are the plans? What is in store for your children and mine, and just as important, what is in store for their children in our public schools, here in Thief River Falls?

Historically, this community and its board of education have not had a long range plan for the future of its schools — at least not one to which it has adhered. I am not blaming the present board or superintendent. This problem has been here much longer than they have been in a position of school leadership.

For example, spend some time studying the architecture and design of Lincoln high school. It looks like a giant jigsaw puzzle. It is a piecemeal example of our school history. Was it ever adequate, was it ever good, was it ever a great example of the values that we put on public education?

St. Hilaire school is history; Knox is very poor structurally, and soon may be closed; the old Lincoln building (which houses the boilers and central electrical circuits for the complex) has been condemned and will soon need replacement. These are some of the physical examples of short sightedness.

This is but the tip of the iceberg. What of the area of our school system that is absolutely necessary to make it function: Its teachers, especially those who make daily contact with our children every day?

Across our country, university education enrollment is dropping at an alarming rate. Teachers, not seemingly in abundance, will soon be in short supply. Math and science is hurting, and to make matters worse, academic college requirements for math and science teachers have been reduced at many universities to make it easier for them to complete the requirements for their degree. This trend may get us more teachers in those fields, but the quality and proficiency, not to mention the character of our future teachers, will have suffered.

Many of the best college students, the ones we need in education to lead our children into the future, go into business and industry. Why? Simple reasons for most of them; stress and money! In comparison to other professional fields, teaching does not compare very well.

Most teachers deal with anywhere from 25 to 180 students ever day. It is a high stress profession. How can that be? Follow us around for a week, or even a day, and you will find out. Try coordinating the efforts of a classroom full of children with social and intelligence levels as varied as the number of students in the class! We do this in a profession that gives us mediocre economic reward at best, no hope for any significant change in the future, and where it is difficult to find year-round work. Many of the best qualified people are not even entering teaching, many of the best are leaving, and many, many more are being laid off.

Programs are being cut. Programs are being eliminated. These are the plans for the present. Are they good enough? Will they serve the needs of tomorrow? Are any of us looking beyond tomorrow to five, 10, 20 or 30 years from now? Are you satisfied with what you see in the future of public education? I'm not! I want to see a well thought-out, long-range plan for this school district, and I want to see it soon!

To The Editor:

Divorce is never easy because it is never right. But we sometimes get ourselves into a situation where no matter what we do, it hurts someone. There is no right way out of it. God does help us put together our broken lives and go on.

Recently we've heard so many comments from the adult viewpoint on "Family Rights." I just had to share with you this letter from our child (with her permission).

To My Parents

I never knew you very well,
In spite of that, you're pretty swell.
Now when you are falling apart, it hit me hard, right in the heart.
I really don't know what to say, when you ruined my supper that one fine day.
But if that's the way you think it should be, I guess that's perfectly fine with me.
From what I say, don't think I'm mad, I guess I'm mostly just a little bit sad.
I really don't feel right staying here, When all that anger is still in the air.
Maybe I'll come back some day, I can't promise if I'll ever stay.
But I hope when I die and my time has come, all of our fighting days will be done.

With Love, Dawn

If you are in a position to understand it, you will. If not, it doesn't matter.

Sincerely,
Myrna Nelson

To The Editor:

This is an open letter to all who are interested in TRFAHA.

For my boy, stepping up from Tiny Mites into the Squirt program was big stuff. Then when you get to go to Bemidji for a hockey jamboree, that is really something! I really wanted it to be a fun time for my boy, and I believe for the most part it truly was. His team won three of the four games played, in fact all the TRFAHA teams came through in grand style.

As a parent I did my share of shouting encouragement and instructions from the sidelines. I would like to thank our coach, Dale Wennberg, and all the coaches who have given of their time and effort for our youth. There was one area of the jamboree that throubled me very much. Simply put, it was all the mixing of drinks and drinking that went on in the play area of the Holiday Inn motel.

We do not take our children into the bars and saloons — they have signs on the doors "Absolutely No Minors Allowed!!" Yet we take our children, our nine and 10-year-olds, into the play area of the Holiday Inn motel and they see the mixing and the drinking. I spoke to the manager of the motel and they told me it was illegal to mix drinks in the play area, yet nothing was done about it. What parents do in their room is their problem, but in an area that is set aside for both children and parents I feel I have a right to speak out.

It seems normal for the older people to speak of the "wildness of the younger generation" but we forget that we ourselves are largely responsible for making the younger generation what it is! We, as parents, make the laws and set the customs under which our youngsters grow up. In speaking to several from our group some agreed with me and others said nothing can be done. I believe, however, that if enough parents speak up something can be done!

Our Lord Jesus says in Matthew chapter 18 (I wish you would read the whole chapter, but let me just quote verse 6) "But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him, that a millstone be hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

Why am I concerned? Because it is the first step that determines direction! It is always the first drink that leads to drunkeness! I just want to say that TRFAHA has a good program in giving (I mean that literally) giving our young boys a chance to learn and have fun playing hockey. I have been a staunch supporter of our TRFAHA and try to carry my share of the load. I believe we are failing our youngsters when we do not watch our conduct while at the games. If we want better sheep we must take better care of the lambs. God's Word says, "As you bend the twig. . so grows the tree!"

STEAM PRESSING costumes is part of Denise Dunklin's job as a member of Atlantis productions. She also sings and dances with the group which performed "Best of Broadway" in the Lincoln high school auditorium last Monday night. State Teacher Of The Year Search Begins

Search for Minnesota's twentieth teacher of the year has begun.

Sponsored by the Minnesota education association (MEA), the program has produced two national teachers of the year and placed a number of others in the top five.

The 1983 Minnesota teacher of the year will be nominated by the Minnesota commissioner of education for 1984 national teacher of the year.

In addition to being nominated for national honors, the Minnesota teacher of the year receives a $500 scholarship.

Minnesota teacher of the year, to be announced during ceremonies in October, will represent the many thousands of teachers in Minnesota, explains MEA president Donald C. Hill.

Purpose of the program is "to express publicly to the men and women who teach in public and nonpublic schools the widespread appreciation felt deeply in countless homes and communities, an appreciation that often goes unexpressed," Hill said.

Nomination forms are being distributed to local school boards, organizations of school principals, Minnesota congress of parents, teachers and students (PTSA) units, MEA local associations, all news media and other pertinent agencies.

Nominations must be postmarked no later than April 25.

Hospital Signs Continuing Ed Co-op Pact

St. John's hospital, Red Lake Falls recently signed an agreement with the University of Minnesota Coop liaison in which the University of Minnesota (U of M) will provide the hospital with several continuing education programs.

Five area hospitals have come together to arrange for this program. Hospitals in Ada, Bagley, Fosston, Mahnomen and Red Lake Falls have all joined in this Northern Five Coop.

With such a program, the U of M will provide six "on site" programs at each hospital. These six programs will be geared for mainly nursing personnel. They will last from three to four hours and will be good for contact hours for continuing education licensure:

In addition the U of M will provide three additional programs geared mainly for ancillary type health personnel including x-ray, lab, medical records, housekeeping and dietary. These programs will be scheduled at one of the five area hospitals. Again, contact hours will be awarded.

Programs being developed will be offered to other health care employees and professionals in addition to the St. John's hospital staff. Cost per program will run about $10 per registrant and all such people are welcome to participate in this continuing education program.

Should anyone have any questions, they should contact St. John's hospital (253-2131) for further details and information.

Upturn In Auto Industry Big Boost For All

Automakers, confident that sales are on the way up, are recalling more than 24,000 workers who had been on indefinite — not temporary — layoff. That's good news for them and for the many thousands more who will be recalled at supplier companies.

It's also good news for all of us, says the automotive information council (AIC).

Economic "ripple effect" which was felt throughout the economy when the auto industry started down will be felt across the board as the industry moves up, notes AIC.

Automotive industry is so all-encompassing that its ups and downs reflect on the economic situation of every American — from the dry cleaner, the motel operator, truck driver, waitress. . . everyone.

When vehicle production declined, the layoffs at the car companies were followed by others at the parts companies, quickly reducing expenditures by all laid off or fearful of layoff. Family cost-cutting subsequently filtered down to every segment of the economy.

Auto industry, therefore, must be considered a cornerstone of the nation's economy, says AIC.

For example, for each car built in the U.S. there is an increase in production of five wheels, five tires, six or eight windows, ignition and exhaust systems, a suspension system, battery, belts, hoses, wiring, yards of upholstery, gallons of paint and hundreds of other supplier-made items — plus the basic raw materials of steel, iron, aluminum, zinc, plastics.

Those who produce those items, as well as the vehicles themselves, therefore will be able to return to the marketplace to produce a favorable ripple in the economy, adds AIC.

Boschwitz And Stangeland To Speak In TRF

Pennington county Independent-Republicans will hear from two national political figures Friday evening when Sen. Rudy Boschwitz will join with Rep. Arlan Stangeland in addressing the convention.

Congressman Stangeland will speak at the dinner portion of the event which is scheduled to being at 6 p.m. in the Best Western inn. He will then leave to attend another convention in either Red Lake or Polk county the same evening.

Sen. Boschwitz will be the convention speaker at 7:45 p.m. in the second floor meeting room, prior to the start of the business meeting. Business of the county convention will include election of chairman and chairwoman, vice chairman and vice chairwoman, secretary, treasurer and six directors as well as updating of the county I-R constitution.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK is March 6 through 13, and cookie sales are one way the girls help to finance their activities. Last year's top salesgirls, Shelly Vedbraaten (209 boxes) left, and Janell Nygaard (150 boxes), got this year's campaign off to a good start by making a sale to Joan Schob, who has been a Girl Scout volunteer for 17 years and currently serves on the committee for Camp Moe. Cookies will be on sale through March 13, for delivery April 4 through 17. Other activities scheduled this week are a Girl Scout display at Northwester regional library, and a Girl Scout banquet at 6:30 p.m. Monday, at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

Final Film Of Short Story Series Thursday

Northwest regional library and the American association of university women (AAUW) will present the final program in the series "The American Short Story" on Thursday, March 10 at 7 p.m. in the library meeting room in Thief River Falls.

"The Sky Is Gray", by Ernest Gaines, is the selection for this session, with commentary by Roger Vaughan and discussion following the film.

A black farm youngster's odyssey of discovery of himself and his world begins when his mother takes him to visit the dentist. In the rural Louisiana town he encounters a wide variety of people, whose attitudes form a backdrop against which his mother's insistence on dignity and self-reliance comes into focus for him.

Copies of the story are available on short-term loan at the library and all sessions are free of charge and open go the public. Refreshments are provided by AAUW.

The American short story series is made possible in part by a grant from the Minnesota humanities commission.

SCIENCE PROJECTS OF Linda Bregier, left, and Roger Carlson, won them second place ribbons in the senior and intermediate divisions, respectively, at the science fair held March 3 at Plummer public school. Linda, a senior and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bregier, did a project on hybridization of flowers. Roger, a fifth grader and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Carlson, did a project on reducing evaporation of water.

Slate Poison Prevention Week In U.S.A.

If you haven't poison-proofed your home yet, your children may do it for you. Children in nursery school through grade six will be learning about poisonings during poison prevention week, March 20-26.

School districts as well as nurseries and day care centers throughout the state will work with the Minnesota department of education, the food and drug administration (FDA), the consumer products safety commission and the Minnesota poison control system (MPCS) to educate children about the hazzards of home poisons.

Each year five million children are treated for poisonings in the United States; 80 per cent of these children are under the age of five.

To help decrease the incidence of poisonings among children, these groups are suggesting that the schools provide a checklist for children to bring home to make sure their home is poison-proof. The students check various rooms of the house for potentially poisonous products and to ensure that they are safely stored away. Some of the household products included on the list are kerosene, polishes, rat poison, medicines including vitamins, moth balls and all types of sprays. After completing and returning the checklist to their teacher, the child is awarded a poison prevention certificate.

MPCS, along with the other groups, feels that children should take some responsibility for poison-proofing. By thinking ahead and preventing accidents they intelligently avoid unnecessary emergencies or deaths while showing concern for their own health and the safety and welfare of younger siblings.

Because many children are unaware of the seriousness of poisoning and the services available to assist them in dealing with this type of emergency, the educational program will stress prevention as well as what to do in an emergency.

The students will learn about the Minnesota poison control system and how to use its toll-free number. Poison information specialists are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week to answer calls.

The Minnesota poison control system is the state-designated poison information center based at St. Paul-Ramsey medical center. The center, in conjunction with other Minnesota hospitals and agencies in the poison system, is concerned about the safety of the state's children.

Women And Minorities Get DOT Contracts

Highway improvement contracts awarded to minorities and women by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) more than doubled during federal fiscal year 1982 to total $19.8 million, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun.

"Each million spent on highway improvements," he said, "creates directly or indirectly approximately 42 jobs. The means these contracts represented about 830 jobs or 10 per cent of all the jobs created by the contracts awarded by Mn-DOT."

Although the amount of the contracts awarded to the 24 minority business enterprises represents a 70 per cent increase, those awarded to the 17 women business enterprises increased by more than two and a half times, he said.

During the federal fiscal year ending September 30, 1982, contracts awarded to minorities totaled $10.7 million and to women $9.1 million.

Increasing numbers of racial or ethnic minority and women contractors have registered to participate in Mn-DOT's highway improvement program. More than 70 minority and women contractors were certified to provide these services during 1982.

Braun explained that Mn-DOT's policy provides that minority and women owners or operators of businesses, as defined in state and federal regulations, have maximum opportunities to participate in the performance of contracts.

Hosts Needed For Foreign Farm Students

Farm, ranch and horticulture families can still sign up to host an international student-trainee from April or June through November 1983, as part of MAST International, the Minnesota agricultural student-trainee program.

Year-long practical training and work experience program is sponsored by the agricultural extension services of the University of Minnesota.

Every year approximately 100 student-trainees, ages 20-26, come from seven northern European countries, Australia, England and New Zealand, with a working knowledge of English and a farm background.

By living and working with farm-ranch families, these students learn about American agriculture, rural community life, new farming systems and new agricultural methods and technologies related to their career goals. As a family member, they work the same hours as their hosts.

After the eight-month practical training period, the student-trainees attend winter quarter classes at the University of Minnesota.

Farmers who would like to share their life and work with one or more of these well trained and motivated international agriculturists, should contact Fred Hoefer, Agricultural Extension Service-O.S.P., 405E Coffey Hall, 1420 Eckles Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55108; phone (612) 373-0725.

Expect 700 To Attend MEA 61st Assembly

More than 700 teacher delegates from throughout the state are expected to attend the 61st Representative Assembly of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) Friday and Saturday.

High on the agenda for the assembly, MEA's policy-making body, are governmental relations (especially with the legislature, the board of teaching and the state board of education), strategies for teacher-school board negotiations (bargaining of 1983-85 contracts begins this spring); development of responses to needs of schools; overcrowded classrooms; and teacher rights.

Donald C. Hill, president of the organization, says that delegates will address themselves primarily to teacher concerns, and adds, "Those concerns have a tendency to become public concerns, because we do the public's business.

"MEA is committeed," Hill added, "to improving the status of teachers personally, professionally and economically because, as far as teachers are concerned, the most important factor in education — along with the students — is teachers, not bricks, building and books."

Theme For AHA Event Is "Home With Heart"

Nursing home residents in Minnesota will be showing they have a "home with heart" through April in efforts to raise funds for the American Heart association, (AHA), Minnesota affiliate.

"Home with heart" event is a jamboree of fund raising activities for residents, family members, staff and the community, while raising funds to help continue the fight against heart disease. Funds raised by the event will enable the Minnesota affiliate to increase its support in heart research, community service programs and professional and public education.

"Home with heart" features a variety of fund raising activities such as collecting donations or pledges from sponsors for the length of time they rock in rocking chairs, roll in wheelchairs, singing valentines, a hug for heart, a carnival and a cardiac arrest.

This is the first year for the "home with heart" event which is a statewide effort by nursing homes and retirement centers to raise money for the AHA, Minnesota affiliate.

Although efforts by the AHA have resulted in a 20 per cent decline in the heart disease death rate over the last ten years; heart disease still claimed the lives of 1,012,150 Americans, including nearly 17,000 Minnesotans last year.

If interested in participating in the "home with heart" event, contact the American heart association, Minnesota Affiliate at (612) 835-3300.

Block Watch Clubs Reduce Home Burglaries

Citizens throughout Minnesota are forming block watch clubs to reduce home burglaries and other crimes, according to Paul Tschida, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

People involved in block watch clubs are neighbors who protect their neighborhood by watching and reporting any unusual activity to the police or sheriff's office. Reportable activities include a strange vehicle parked in a driveway or movements in a home that is supposed to be empty. By reporting unusual activities, people are safeguarding their surroundings and supporting law enforcement officers.

"Crime prevention officials encourage people to form or join a block watch club," said Tschida. "Law enforcement officials cannot be everywhere to stop a crime. They need block watch members to tell them when and where a crime could happen."

Concerned citizens can form block watch clubs by contacting their local police or sheriff's department. Neighbors then attend a meeting where an officer describes what unusual activity should be reported and correct reporting procedures.

Block watch clubs have helped reduce crime throughout the state. For instance, home burglaries in one Minnesota neighborhood dropped 63 per cent (91 to 32 break-ins) during an 18-month period after neighbors formed a block watch club. Other neighborhoods with block watch have experienced decreased from 17 to 50 per cent in home burglary.

A block watch club can range from unarmed citizen patrols without arrest power to casual observations by neighbors. Whatever form they take, block watch clubs operate under law enforcement supervision and allow people to live in safer surroundings.

SIX PLUMMER high school music students were recently selected for membership in the 1983 Northern Minnesota Honors Band, sponsored by Bemidji State University. They included, left to right, Linda Hesse, Connie Westlake, Vickie Hesse, Duane Franklund, Anita Carlson and Linda Bregier. Students from 21 schools were selected on the basis of musical ability, contest ratings and director's recommendations. Students will travel to the BSU campus on April 9, where they will rehearse for a performance with the Bemidji concert band in the evening. Both the rehearsal and concert will be open to the public for a small admission fee.

Offers Bill To Expand Federal GRS Program

On Monday Senator Dave Durenberger introduced a bill to expand the general revenue sharing (GRS) program to send more general-purpose funding to state and local governments.

Durenberger says his legislation should serve as the foundation for any new federalism initiative.

The new program would increase GRS payments to local governments and restore payments to state governments, which were eliminated from revenue sharing in 1980. Unlike the existing GRS system, which expires on Sept. 30, 1983, the new GRS would be a permanent program financed by a portion of federal income tax receipts.

"We desperately need a new federalism, a sorting out of responsibilities among levels of government," Durenberger said. "But first we need the assurance that all states will be fiscally capable of handling the added responsibilities that new federalism would place upon them. The revenue sharing program I would establish puts in place the mechanism to make sure state and local governments have the resources they need."

Under Durenberger's plan, states initially would receive $5.9 billion per year in GRS payments. Like local government recipients, states could use the funding wherever they need it most.

Local governments would also receive $5.9 billion per year initially, compared to the current funding level of $4.6 billion. In addition, the bill would improve the formula used to allocate those local dollars, so that funding can be more effectively targeted to areas that need it most, Durenberger said.

However, he added, no local government will receive less GRS funding under the new program than it would under the existing system.

State and local GRS payments would come out of a new trust fund consisting of four per cent of annual federal individual income tax receipts. The fund, and so the payments, would grow with an increase in revenues.

To help finance the broadened program, Durenberger's bill would limit the deductibility of state and local taxes from the federal income tax. For each taxpayer, the amount paid in state and local taxes would be pooled into one sum; the part of that sum equal to one per cent of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income would no longer be deductible, but the rest would continue to be deductible.

Dwarf Galaxies In Night Sky Of Early March

U 'M' News Service

Two dwarf galaxies lie beyond our sight in the night sky of early March. Considered part of our local group of galaxies, they shine faintly at 700,000 light years away in the direction of the constellation Leo, the lion, which is now in the southern sky. Lion's head — known as the Sickle — looks like a large backward question mark.

Galaxies, Leo I and Leo II, are called dwarfs because they are so much smaller than our own Milky Way and the Andromeda Galaxy, our closest sister galaxy at 2 million light-years from earth. Each of these dwarfs has only a few million stars, compared to the few hundred billion in the largest galaxies. Astronomers are not sure why these two galaxies are so small or why they — along with 10 or so other dwarfs — seem to form a circle around the Milky Way, said Robert Kennicutt, astronomer at the University of Minnesota. Andromeda, too, seems to have some dwarf companions, he said.

These galaxies, and even very near astronomical objects, are hard to see for several key reasons, said Lawrence Rudnick, who is also a university astronomer. The first is ordinary "light pollution," the spill of photons from all the city lights of our civilization. Mercury vapor streetlights are special culprits, since most of their emission comes in very narrow bands of colors, confusing our efforts to see these colors as we observe starts and galaxies. The moon, especially when full, contributes a great deal to light pollution, too.

Other sources of light in the night sky include our atmosphere itself, with its vast and diffuse clouds of dust — left over from the formation of the solar system — which shine with reflected sunlight called the zodiacal light. The combined light of the billions of stars in our galaxy and the galaxies beyond also add to the problem.

Bergland Will Speak To Ag Group Tuesday

Communicating for Agriculture is a national, nonprofit rural advocacy organization. Bergland is now president of Farmland World Trade, whose activities include development of barter arrangements through which the United States can trade food to poorer nations and get commodities in return.

Pork Producers Head Addresses Feeder Co-op

"Our mission is to enhance the pork producers' opportunity for profit," said John Saunders, president of national pork producers council, addressing American feeder pig co-op members at their 26th annual meeting March 2nd in Alexandria.

Saunders reported that although his state (Missouri) is considered the number one feeder pig state in the country, American feeder pig co-op "checked-off" 6,000 more hogs than Missouri during January and February.

Check-off money (10 cents per pig) is used primarily for consumer education and promotion of pork, according to the speaker.

"Promotion," continued Saunders, "was the reason for oragnization of the council in 1967. . . to improve the image of the product and the image of the pork producer."

Saunders commented on the current success of its "America" You're Leaning on Pork" campaign. Through surveys, the president said, it was learned that 40 per cent of consumers ate little or no pork for two major reasons — too fat and not healthy. "In the last 20 years," he continued, "producers have taken 50 per cent of the fat off their pigs. . . but the consumer doesn't know."

Following promotional campaigns, said Saunders, the non pork user was reduced by 9,000,000 people. "We're making progress."

He also told of the new flaked and formed "restructed" pork for fast food restaurants. "We think it has potential to expand markets for lower priced pork cuts."

In conclusion the council president told of the organization's long range plans: to run a cost effective communications program to increase producer profits and to work with legislators in obtaining a program for the eradication of pseudio-rabies which is now costing producers $35,000,000 annually.

He urged members to continue to support the check-off program, to get involved in pork producers associations on the local, state and national levels and to produce the best quality pigs possible.

Bush Grant For $66,700 Given To KAWE

Don Checots, station manager of KAWE-TV, Channel 9, in Bemidji has announced the receipt of a grant from the Bush foundation. Grant of $66,700 will be used to bolster the station's development department and increase membership. As public broadcasting across the nation faces reduced federal funding, alternative sources of revenue must be found, according to Checots.

Grant award includes $20,000 to be used as "matching funds" for new station members. Because the station is partly supported by membership dollars, the matching portion of the grant will add an incentive to increase the membership base.

In accepting the grant, Checots said, "We are extremely grateful to the Bush foundation for this contribution. Bush foundation realizes that America's public broadcasting system is important. Moreover, stations like KAWE can become self-supporting and less dependent on federal and foundation grant support if they have people and resources in their development areas."

Grant covers a period of 18 months ending in September, 1984. By that time, KAWE hopes to have increased its membership base by 1,000. Currently, the station has 2,349 members.

Farm Safety Seminars In Area Towns

A series of one-day seminars on "First Aid for Farm Families" will be held in Warroad, Greenbush, East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls and Bemidji during March and April. The seminars are sponsored by Northwest Minnesota emergency medical services in cooperation with St. Luke's hospitals, Fargo clinic, Minnesota and North Dakota agricultural extension services and local rescue personnel.

The seminars are designed to train the entire farm family in techniques of first aid. Since the first person to aid an accident victim (usually a family member) can affect the final outcome, this seminar will cover life and limb saving techniques for the first rescuer.

Injuries from accidents are the leading cause of death in the United States for people 30 years old and younger. Fifty million injuries occur annually in the United States; 10 million are disabling.

"First Aid for Farm Families" will run from 8:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, covering accident information, first aid and heart saver training. Registration cost is $15 per person or $30 per family, including all materials, breaks and lunch. Registration is limited and must be received by March 15. No registrations will be accepted at the door.

The course will be held in Warroad at the American legion hall on March 24; in Greenbush at the Greenlin's supper club on March 25; in East Grand Forks in the area vocational-technical institute on March 26; in Thief River Falls at Northland community college on April 6; and in Bemidji at the Holiday inn on April 7.

To register, contact Roseann J. Campbell, Emergency Medical Services Coordinator at St. Luke's Hospitals, Fifth Street at Mills Avenue, Fargo, North Dakota 58122 or telephone 701-280-6064. Checks should be made payable to the Northwest Minnesota Emergency Medical Services.

Charitable contributions: Persons making charitable contributions may deduct 25 per cent of the first $100 of charitable contributions ($50 if married filing separately) even if they do not itemize. The maximum deduction is $25 ($12.50 for married persons filing separately.)

Working couples — When both spouses work and file a joint return for 1982, they may deduct five per cent of the qualified earned income of the spouse with the lower earnings.

Child and dependent care credit: The maximum credit for 1982 can be as much as $720 for one qualifying individual and $1,440 for two or more. These amounts decrease after adjusted gross income goes over $10,000.

IRA's: Taxpayers are allowed a deduction of up to $2,000 for contributions to an individual retirement arrangement, even if they are covered by an employer's pension plan.

Certain reinvested dividends from public utility companies: Taxpayers may exclude up to $750 ($1,500 on a joint return) of the dividends received in qualified common stock under the qualified reinvestment plan of public utilities such as gas and electric companies.

Disaster losses: Taxpayers who experience a disaster loss in federally declared disaster areas in 1983 may elect to deduct their losses on 1983 tax returns or on 1982 returns. If the loss is a nonbusiness loss that they elect to deduct on their 1982 returns, the 1983 loss is deductible only to the extent that it exceeds $100 and ten per cent of 1982 adjusted gross income.

Reduced tax rates: The rate of tax for all brackets has been reduced for 1982. However, no additional computation is necessary because the reduction has already been built into the tax table and the tax rate schedules.

Unemployment benefits: Taxpayers who received unemployment benefits in 1982 may owe additional tax. Single taxpayers may owe more tax if their total income (including unemployment benefits) exceeds $12,000. Married taxpayers filing joint returns may owe additional tax if total income is over $18,000.

Exclusion for qualified interest from all-savers certificates: Those who invested in all-savers certificates are entitled to a lifetime exclusion from gross income of up to $1,000 ($2,000 if married filing a joint return) if qualifying interest from certificates.

Other changes in the law will affect such things as medical deductions, but these other changes will have no bearing on 1982 returns.

Additional information on these topics appears in the instructions which come with the tax package, and in the free IRS Publication 553, "Highlights of 1982 Tax Changes," available by using the order form in the tax package.

Special Safety Required For Early Spring

It may seem early to talk about thin ice hazards and bicycle or summer pedestrian safety, but by the time spring officially arrives, outdoor activities may be in mid-summer form, warns the Minnesota department of public safety.

With unseasonably warm weather comes an early exposure to warm weather hazards. Above normal temperatures in February have already melted most of the snow cover across much of Minnesota. Melting of lake ice won't be far behind. The department of public safety advises everyone to be very careful traveling on lake ice. Especially avoid driving cars on ice that has started to deteriorate.

If there is any question that the ice you plan to cross may no longer be safe, don't risk an attempt. And even on ice you think may be safe, don't walk across it without a safety line attaching you to a companion.

In this early spring like weather, keep both summer and winter safe driving practices at the front of your mind. Use caution especially at night and on a bridge or highway overpass. Water can freeze quickly over these surfaces. Steer carefully and be ready to control any beginning skid.

Remember also that rain replaces the disappearing snow and ice as a hazard. Skidding on water can be just as dangerous as ice and braking distances are similarly lengthened.

The warm weather will also bring children back on and along streets and highways, playing and bicycling. It takes time to regain summer habits after a winter of slipping and sliding on ice. Many young children will just be learning rules of bicycle safety or looking before crossing streets. Motorists have to remember to look out for youngsters in case they forget to look out for you.

When do you receive the first benefits of a Banco IRA?

April 15.

Or to be more exact, it would be the actual date when you file your federal income tax return for 1982.

That's when you realize that a Banco IRA is much more than something you will enjoy years into the future.

It's a substantial tax shelter for today

And you can open an IRA to qualify as a 1982 tax deduction any time this year, up until the day when you must file your tax return. It could be April 15. Or later in some cases.

At any rate, that's the time when you deduct from your gross income the money you've invested in your IRA. The result can be a pleasant surprise.

For example, if you are in the 30%-50% tax bracket and invest $1,000 in a Banco IRA, you'll save $300-$500 in federal income taxes. And the more you earn, the more you save on your final tax bill.

In fact, you pay no taxes on the money you invest or on the earnings of your IRA until you start withdrawing your funds upon retirement. And by then you're likely to be in a lower bracket so your final tax bill is bound to be less.

If you've been thinking about opening a Banco IRA you'll be in good company.

Your Banco Bank is an important part of Northwest Bancorporation which has $17 billion in assets. That's a good thing to know.

See your Banco Bank. It's the right place to come to for an IRA.

All IRA plans are not alike.
Compare Banco's 18-month floating rate IRA.

- 10% Minimum Rate Guaranteed—through July 1, 1983.
- No minimum deposit. ($25 minimum for automatic transfers.)
- No fees.
- Flexible - You add to your investment any time, and all deposits mature on the same date as the first deposit.
- Security - Your deposits are insured by the FDIC. And by the care of Northwest Bancorporation, with $17 billion in assets.

Substantial penalty for early withdrawal prior to age 59½. Maximum investment in an IRA is $2,000 per year.

Explosion And Fire Destroy Farm Dwelling

VanCamp speculated. When Richard lit the wood burning stove, the upper part of the house exploded above them.

Richard received burns on his face and hands while his wife received some bruises from debris. They were able to escape from the basement and found that neither of the children — Tricia and Rick — had been injured. They stopped at the Steve Muzzy farm to call the fire department enroute to taking Richard to the hospital for treatment.

Rev. Earl Eveland, chief of the Newfolden volunteer fire department, said the department was notified by the Thief River Falls fire department because it was in the Newfolden fire district. Newfolden and Middle River firemen responded to the call but the house was shattered by the explosion and the ensuing fire had destroyed the contents. Rev. Eveland said concrete blocks were spread 25 to 30 feet from the foundation of the house.

Mrs. VanCamp said she doesn't know why Richard received burns and she did not, although it is possible the explosion forced flames back down through the wood burning stove. While the VanCamps were unable to save any of their possessions, Mrs. VanCamp is still thankful. "We were able to get the most important thing out. . . that was Richard," she said.

The family has not yet determined what it will do for future housing or what might be needed for starting over. Fellow employees at the hospital have organized an open house at which clothing and other items will be collected.

Minnesotans May Face Largest Gas Tax Hike

Special To The Times
by Jane Fitz
Northern Star News Service

Crumbling highways in need of state funds for repairs could cause Minnesotans to pay the largest increase ever on the gas tax.

Some legislators say that proposed five-cent increase is too much, although most legislators agree some increase, perhaps one or two cents, is needed. Other legislators claim Gov. Perpich is balancing the budget by declining to phase in the motor vehicle excise tax from the state's general fund to the highway fund.

Rep. Wallace Sparby, Thief River Falls said he is in favor of a gas tax raise, however, he doesn't like the way the governor's proposal recommends the tax increases.

A five-cent jump in the gas tax is too much, Sparby said. He would rather see a three-cent increase this year and a one-cent increase the next two years.

Although raising taxes is "not fun," the state has to look at the roads' condition as well as the jobs the tax can create, Sparby said.

He predicts the proposal to enact a five-cent gas tax is just as likely to be voted down as it has a chance to become law, even though it has the governor's support.

Sen. Leroy Stumpf of Plummer favors the governor's proposed gas tax for three reasons, he said.

"The gas tax is an immediate way to create jobs, gas prices are going down so the effect of the tax won't be as severe, and the governor has promised that the money collected will go to rural transportation, which is important for agriculture," Sen. Stumpf said.

Currently, trucks can't haul heavy loads on rural routes, Stumpf explained, and that makes it more expensive to transport crops. Northern Minnesota needs a network of 10-ton roads so crops can get from elevator to terminal market," Stumpf said.

Gene Ofstead, legislative liaison for the transportation department, said that gas tax increases have been no more than two cents at a time. One reason for the larger increase, he said, is because legislators are hearing from contractors and unions. "This is being seen very much as a jobs program."

Ofstead reasoned a higher increase is needed because of the higher numbers involved. "When the gas tax was seven or nine cents, a two-cent increase was almost a one-third increase. No with the tax at 13 cents, a two-cent increase is only about 15 per cent. That's really almost an inflationary increase now," he said, rather than an increase to raise money. "We've probably seen the end of small increases."

Rep. Bob Jensen of Lakeville, author of one of the bills calling for a nickel increase, said the increase is needed to "hold level." One reason, he said, is because reconstruction of the state's roads is years behind. "We have to get the money before they deteriorate further. We have to make it worthwhile so we can get the job done," he said.

Another reason for the large increase is that less gasoline is sold each year. "People are driving farther on one gallon of gas. The mileage cars get has about doubled since the '70s," Jensen said, so the increase is really about the same as previous years.

The gas tax increase is broken down so that 62 per cent goes to state highways, 29 per cent for counties and nine per cent to cities.

Over the last few years, efforts have been made to shift the excise tax on cars and trucks from the general fund to highway fund road repairs. Due to the continuing state financial crisis, this effort had been delayed. Because of Gov. Perpich's proposal to delay this measure further, some legislators believe the increased gas tax is really an attempt to balance the general fund budget, rather than a measure to raise funds for highway repairs.

Opponents come, to the conclusion that increasing the gas tax five cents will balance the budget, not repair roads.

In an effort to stimulate and promote the production of gasohol in Minnesota, gasohol will be exempt from part of the increase. An amendment passed in committee is expected to cut the gasohol increase to about half, Jensen said.

It's not just a matter of going out and spending money or going out to create jobs, Jensen said. "The jobs are there and need to be done. All the legislators have roads in their areas that need repair, so this will benefit us all; the roads will be fixed and jobs will be created."

In 1980 when the gas tax was 11 cents, only three states, Nebraska, South Dakota and Washington had higher taxes on gasoline. If the five-cent increase is passed, Minnesota's 18 cents would be among the highest in the nation, although other states also are expected to pass gas tax increases.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, would you please write in your column what you feel is the main reason why so many people are getting a divorce today?

A. First of all, I would like to say there are several reasons why couples are getting a divorce nowdays, and if I was to write on them all, it would take a whole page in the newspaper. But if I was to pinpoint the main problem that affects all these other areas, I would have to say; the lack of communication.

God created the husband and wife for companionship. Loneliness was the very first thing that God saw that was not good. Loneliness and isolation are contradictions to the purpose in God's creation. God made man to experience fellowship and companionship with his wife.

Genesis 2:18 L.B. teaches, "It is not good for man to be alone; I will make a companion for him, a helper suited to his needs."

The wife was created to share the life of her husband, to help draw him out of himself and into a wider area of contact through the involvement they have with one another. She is the one who can help him enter into a responsible companionship.

The companionship and completeness that God intended for marriage grows out of communication as two people share each day the meaning of their lives together. The heart of marriage is its communication system.

Communication means more than talking; it also includes friendship, giving and receiving, and sharing together around the same things. It means to enjoy together, to have a common interest as well as intimacy. Taking the time to build a good husband and wife relationship through all these areas of communication is very important for a good marriage.

The husband's best friend should be his wife, and the wife's best friend should be her husband. When a man cleaves to his wife, they become one flesh. The term "one flesh" is a beautiful capsule description of the oneness, completeness and permanence that God intended in the marriage relationship. "One flesh" suggests a unique oneness, a total committment to intimacy in all of life together.

The lack of communication between a husband and wife is definitely a serious problem that is causing divorce, but I believe that there is another serious problem that many, many couples are facing in the area of communication. It is communication with God in prayer; a very important key to welding the marriage together. Husbands and wives should never forget to communicate with each other, but most of all they should never forget to communicate with God in prayer.

If you have any questions you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Perpich Sets "Employ Older Worker Week"

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed March 13-19 as "Employ the Older Worker Week" in Minnesota.

Proclamation recognizes the contributions to the labor force of workers 40 years of age and older and encourages employers to give equal hiring consideration to them.

Jim Korkki, older worker specialist, Minnesota department of economic security, said that U.S. Department of labor studies indicate that older workers, when compared to their younger counterparts in the work place, have better attendance, health and injury records.

Korkki said that older workers needing employment or job-training assistance should contact Lowell Enerson, Box 147A, Oklee, MN 56742; phone 796-5737 or Inter-County Community Council, P.O. Box 187, Oklee, MN 56741; phone Hilda Opdahl at 796-5144.

Department of labor survey shows that 1.2 million Minnesotans are 45 years of age or older and that half of them are active in the labor force. The number of older workers in the labor force is expected to increase in the coming years due to population changes.

Midge Remains Persistent Pest In Sunflowers

Dean McBride, North Dakota state university extension entomologist, served as guest speaker at a series of sunflower insect information programs recently in Fargo, Grand Forks, Rugby, Minot and Bismarck, ND, and in Thief River Falls.

Sponsored by the Dow Chemical company, the programs were geared to crop consultants, farm chemical dealers, extension agents, custom applicators and others who work with and advise sunflower growers.

"As many as 10 different species of insects can be potentially damaging to sunflowers grown in North Dakota and Minnesota," McBride told the group. "Sunflower growers, and especially those people who provide them with services and products for insect control, should be aware of the different species of insects, how to identify and scout for them, and what level of infestation or crop damage will warrant an insecticide treatment. They also need to be familiar with the insecticides available for such a treatment, including when and how they are applied."

According to McBride, the most common insects threatening sunflower production in recent years include the seed weevil, cutworm, banded sunflowermoth, grasshopper and sunflower midge. With the exception of sunflower midge, several insecticides are labeled for control when any of these insects reach the economic threshold level. The economic threshold is the point at which controls should be applied to prevent an increasing pest population from causing economic losses.

Detailed information on sunflower insect pests and recommended control measures are available from the extension service.

"In most cases, a scouting program is the best bet for sunflower insects," McBride says. "For cutworm control, where a planter applied insecticide is available certain situations may justify this preventative treatment. This includes those fields where cutworms might be an annual problem, or in seed production fields with a known history of cutworm damage."

Certain cultural practices, including tillage, planting date and variety of sunflower planted, can also affect the damage potential from many of these insects. Sunflower midge is a good example.

"I wish I could tell you that we had an adequate control for the sunflower midge but that is simply not the case. We can pretty well deal with most of the sunflower insects but midge is an exception," McBride said.

"We are currently testing many different insecticides for midge control which show some promise but we feel that multiple insecticide applications will likely be needed for suppression. Right now our best program to avoid midge damage includes delayed planting, planting early maturing varieties, multiple insecticide applications for seed production fields or simply just not planting sunflowers in severe midge infestation areas."

Postscript to the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game Saturday matching Thief River Falls vs. Roseau in front of a tournament-record 3,974 fans at the East Grand Forks Civic Recreation Center:

Media covering the 1-0 Roseau victory, including representatives from Let's Play Hockey and WCCO-TV, thought it was a great hockey game. A 1-0 high school hockey game is a rarity, and it should be appreciated for what it was: a close-checking defensive struggle. Both sides would obviously liked to have produced more offense, but both were intent on shutting each other down, and consequently scoring chances were held to a bare minimum.

It was a tough loss for the Prowlers, who were trying to earn a state tournament berth for the first time since 1965. The large Thief River Falls crowd on hand figured the Prowlers had a good chance at their first regional-sectional title since 1960 and they were ready to applaud the performance.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand let it be known that the Prowlers appreciated the turnout. "We had tremendous fan support," he acknowledged. "It's just too bad they had to sit on their hands all night. We, unfortunately, didn't give them much to cheer about."

One Thief River Falls goal would have ignited the crowd, figured Grand, and their enthusiasm might have carried over onto the team. But it never happened, and Roseau will be making yet another state tournament appearance while Thief River Falls' frustration at missing the state meet continues.

Hockey Tournament Broadcasts

Subscribers to Sjoberg's Cable-TV will get to watch the entire 1983 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament afterall. It was reported this week that because of officials' decisions elsewhere, northern Minnesota might not receive the MSHSL telecasts.

However, after wrestling with the problem, Sjoberg's Cable-TV has gained permission to receive a signal from WCCO-TV in the Twin Cities for the tournament games, which will be switched on just before each tournament sessions on Ch. 5 here.

And, too, KTRF radio in Thief River Falls will once again broadcast the tournament, as its done every year.

First round pairings Thursday feature Section 2 winner Columbia Heights (18-7) vs. Section 6 Edina (19-2-2) at 12:05 p.m.; Section 1 champion Burnsville (18-5-1) vs. Section 7 International Falls (15-8-1) at 2:30; Section 8 representative Roseau (18-6) vs. Section 4 Henry Sibley (17-7) at 7:05; and Section 3 representative Hill-Murray (25-0) vs. Section 5 Bloomington Kennedy (13-8-1) at 9:15.

Columbia Heights, a upset winner over No. 1-ranked Cloquet in the Section 2 finals last week, is coached by Elroy Froiland, a co-captain on the 1964 Lincoln high school hockey team who also captained the 1967-68 University of Minnesota-Duluth hockey squad. This will be the first state tournament appearance for the Hylanders.

Miscellaneous

+Seemingly the entire community took notice and took pride in the short piece written by columnist Sid Hartman Sunday in the Minneapolis Star-Tribune that said Thief River Falls senior Tim Bergland is the top-rated 18-year-old hockey player in the state of Minnesota by Central NHL scouting. East Grand Forks defenseman Craig Mack was rated second on the list. Bergland, along with teammate Tom Kenville is being heavily recruited by college hockey coaches.

+ Thief River Falls skaters Scott Wiebolt, Bob Fitzgerald and Dave Geatz may be involved in the NCAA Division II hockey finals if their top-ranked teams continue to win. Wiebolt is a defenseman on the No. 1-rated Lowell, Mass. squad while Fitzgerald, a wing, and Geatz, a defenseman, are members of the No. 2-rated Bemidji State squad. Fitzgerald scored a third period goal Saturday in the Beavers' 5-3 win over Mankato State in the Western Intercollegiate Hockey Association championship game. Bemidji will host Gustavus Friday and Saturday in a two-game, total-goal national tournament quarterfinal encounter. Steve Olson, another Thief River Falls defenseman, was a member of the MIAC champion St. Thomas squad this winter, with the Tommies losing to Bemidji in the western playoff semifinals last week.

+ University of Minnesota-Crookston lost a first-round 11-3 game to defending champion Canton, N.Y. and then defeated DuPage, Ill. 8-6 in the third place game at the 1983 NJCAA national hockey tournament at Lake Placid, N.Y. over the weekend. Canton beat North County, N.Y. 5-2 in the finals Sunday. "We just drew the wrong team first," said UMC coach Jim Clauson. "Canton may be the No. 1 team, but as far as I'm concerned, we're the second best. It wasn't that they (Canton) were that good; they just kind of intimidated us." The Minnesota state champion Trojans finished the year 18-8.

LINCOLN HIGH school divers Jeff Rosetta (left) and Todd Wing will compete in the 1983 Minnesota state high school swimming and diving championships beginning Friday in Minneapolis. Wing was the Section 4 meet diving champion Saturday at Bemidji State University, with Rosetta, the 1982 sectional winner, placing second.

Wing, Rosetta In State Meet

A pair of Thief River Falls divers — sophomore Todd Wing and junior Jeff Rosetta — will compete this week in the 1983 Minnesota state high school swimming meet at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

They will be matched against 38 other divers, who will begin preliminary competition Friday at 10 a.m. The field will be cut to 32 after three dives; trimmed to 18 after five dives; and finally reduced to 12 after eight dives, with those 12 advancing into Saturday's 1:30 p.m. finals.

Thief River Falls coaches Jay Forney and Jody Dallmann are optimistic, hoping that Wing and Rosetta can both reach the state meet finals. They finished 1-2 in last week's Section 4 meet at Bemidji State University when Wing supplanted Rosetta as sectional champion. Rosetta placed 21st at last year's state meet. This is Wing's first state meet appearance.

It's the 60th annual Minnesota State High School League's state boys swimming and diving championships.

The two-day event commences at 10 a.m. Friday with those diving preliminaries. Swimming prelims that day start at 3 o'clock. Saturday's championships in all 11 events will begin at 1:30 p.m.

There are 251 swimmers representing 68 high schools in this year's meet.

Defending state team champion Lakeville is not expected to challenge for team laurels this year. Best bets to battle for first place include last year's runner-up, Bloomington Jefferson, who won its first state title in 1980; Mounds View, the 1981 kingpin; Edina, who last won a swimming crown in 1968; and Northfield, a school that is looking for its first ever state championship in swimming and only second as a school. The boys golf team captured a first in state in 1972.

Three individual winners from a year ago have won their way back into the 1983 state meet. They include two-time event winner from 1982 Bob Hauck, a senior from Northfield who will defend titles in the 100-yard breaststroke and 200-yard individual medley events. Other victors returning to try and win another gold medal are senior Jeff Brown, St. Cloud Tech, who will swim for another 50-yard freestyle title, and junior Jeff Lee, Richfield, the winner of the 500-yard freestyle event a year ago. All three have top seed times heading into this week's meet.

Hauck and Lee are all-time meet record-holders. Last year Hauck set the 200-yard individual medley record with a time of 1:55.59, while Lee's record is 4:41.10 in the 500-yard freestyle.

Once again expected to be a sell-out, tickets remaining as of Sunday included 200 for Friday and 300 for Saturday.

Spuds Handle Prowlers 70-34 In 8AA Playoffs

Thief River Falls' 1982-83 high school basketball season ended Tuesday as the Prowlers absorbed a 70-34 pounding at the hands of host Moorhead in the North Half Region 8AA tournament quarterfinals.

Both sides entered the game with 7-11 records, and although the Spuds were the tournament's No. 2 seed while the Prowlers were seeded No. 7, Thief River Falls coaches and players figured they could play with Moorhead this time around after a history of one-sided losses.

But history repeated itself. Moorhead jumped out to a 24-6 first quarter lead, then outscored Thief River Falls 15-1 in the second quarter to open up a 39-7 gap at halftime. It was 57-14 at the end of the third quarter.

"Obviously it was a great disappointment for us," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We were expecting to perform much better. We just got off to a terrible start with some needless turnovers in the first two minutes. That kind of set the tone for the rest of the night."

Mark Bjelland and Eric Holten had 16 and 12 points, respectively, for the winners to lead all scorers in a game where both sides played a lot of people. Randy Naeseth and Mark Gere had 8 points each to lead the Prowlers.

Moorhead shot 69 per cent from the field for the game (31-for-45) while Thief River Falls shot only 29 per cent (11-for-38). The Spuds didn't fare as well from the free throw line where they shot 38 per cent (8-for-21), with the Prowlers shooting 63 per cent (12-for-19). Moorhead had a sizeable 46-22 rebound edge. The Prowlers finished with 24 turnovers.

"The kids never did quit," pointed out Hunt. "Regardless of the score, they still hustled and played hard."

Elsewhere in North Half Region 8AA, Wadena defeated Park Rapids 73-44 in a qualifying game Monday then pushed No. 1-seeded East Grand Forks into three overtimes before the Green Wave won 72-68, Tuesday, with Fergus Falls knocking off Bemidji 73-68 and Detroit Lakes taking Crookston 57-47 to round out the quarterfinals.

In Thursday's semifinals, Fergus Falls will be at Moorhead and Detroit Lakes visits East Grand Forks.

Championship game will be played Saturday.

In South Half Region 8AA, Alexandria defeated Sauk Rapids 81-47 in Monday's preliminary game. Tuesday's quarterfinals found Little Falls beating Alexandria 69-53, St. Cloud Tech stopped Brainerd 62-58, Cold Spring-Rocori handled Albany 69-39 and St. Cloud Apollo beat Melrose 65-46.

Semifinals Thursday at St. Cloud State University will match Little Falls against Tech and Rocori vs. Apollo. Finals will be played Saturday.

North and South Half winners will meet in the 1983 Region 8AA championship game Fri., March 18, at Concordia College in Moorhead.

Skippers Face Cass Lake In 8A Opener On Friday

District 32 champion Middle River will meet District 29 winner Cass Lake Friday at 7 p.m. to open the 1983 Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Second semifinal game that night will match District 30 representative Waubun against District 31 titlist Argyle at 8:45.

Saturday's schedule will include the third place game at 6:30 p.m. and the state tournament-qualifying championship game at 8:15.

District champions for the first time, the 20-1 Skippers are optimistic heading into the Region 8A tournament.

"Argyle, no doubt, is the tournament favorite," acknowledged Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "They're really tough on the boards. "Cass Lake will be tough on the boards, too. They're really physical, but I think we have a crack at them. If we can rebound with Cass Lake, we can beat them."

Middle River doesn't have a lot of depth or height. Instead, the Skippers rely on their pressure defense and a balanced offensive attack featuring a sharp passing game.

The starters, who often play the full 32 minutes, include just one senior — 5-7 Kari Skoglund. The rest are juniors: 5-9 Paula Rantanen, 5-4 Vonda Peterson, 5-8 Diane Black and 5-4 Jody Christofferson. Lisa Maertens, a 5-6 sophomore, is the top reserve. Rantanen carried a 14.7 scoring average through the regular season, but averaged 26 points in three District 32 starts. Skoglund averaged 14.3 this winter and Black 12.0.

With smaller numbers to work with, Middle River tries to avoid foul trouble, but without sacrificing defense. "We've played the whole season with so few kids that they've learned to play defense without hacking," explained Neibauer. "We concentrate on cutting off the passing lanes; picking off passes."

Only loss this year by the Skippers was a 38-28 setback at the hands of Marshall County Central in the final regular season start. They avenged that with a 41-40 District 32 championship game win over the Nordics.

Neibauer admitted that he was optimistic at the start of the 1982-83 season, but it was guarded optimism, he said. "The season has gone the way we had hoped it would," he explained, "but we had 11 losses last year, and you don't automatically go from 7-11 to 20-1."

None of the four district winners reaching the 1983 Region 8A field has ever appeared in the Minnesota state high school basketball tournament. But that's the prize that awaits either the Skippers, Panthers, Eagles of Bombers. They would face the Region 4A champion Thurs., March 7, in a 7:05 p.m. first round state Class A tournament game at the Met Sports Center in Bloomington.

John Cyr Wins State Title At Wrestling Tourney

1983 REGION 8A INDIVIDUAL WRESTLING TOURNEY 1983

STATE WRESTLING CHAMP John Cyr returned to an Oklee public school this week that was decorated with congratulatory banners and charts showing his progress through the season. Wearing his gold medal, the high school senior posed next to charts which showed his progress through the Region 8A and state tournaments, culminating Saturday in St. Paul, with his defeat of Gerard Wilmes of Waterville-Elysian, to take the Class A 126-pound championship. John says he hopes to go on to college is he can get a scholarship. With a 3.7 grade point average, that should be a distinct possibility.

Oklee high school has produced its first state champion wrestler in senior John Cyr, who took the Class A, 126 pound title on Saturday in St. Paul, by defeating Gerard Wilmes, a Waterville-Elysian senior with a 30-0-0 season record, in a 10-1 match.

John went into the tournament with a 24-1-0 season record, and a career record of 130-26-1. This was the high school senior's fifth trip to the state tournament, with his best previous effort being a fourth place finish last year.

His coach, Charles Bishop, who also acts as principal at the school, said he knew that John had the potential to take the championship, commenting "He's the hardest working student I've seen in the wrestling program in the 13 years I've been here, and that's the biggest reason for his success." He noted that John's training schedule included getting up at 7 a.m. every morning and working out for two to four miles. "He's been doing that six and seven days a week since the eighth grade. I knew he was definitely physically ready."

Bishop noted that it was not unusual for John to stay after school and practice, either, adding that he would practice throwing the dummy if nobody would wrestle with him. "It was a real emotional thing when he won the championship, because we all knew he had worked so hard for it," he added.

Apparently, John's grades have not suffered as a result of his dedication to the wrestling program either. His report card for the last two semesters showed no grade lower than an A-, and Bishop noted that the young man has a 3.7 grade point average, overall.

John says that after graduation he hopes to go on to college, and wants to continue wrestling if he can get a scholarship. Bishop noted that John's name has been submitted to "The Guillotine", a wrestling paper, and he expects that John will be among those selected for special academic honors.

John said he first started wrestling in the second grade, during a summer tournament, and has been hooked on it ever since. He has been wrestling with the varsity team since seventh grade.

His parents, Harold and Shirley Cyr; three brothers, Paul, Steve and Joe; and two sisters, Mary and Cathy; have been supportive of his efforts, also. His older brothers wrestled in high school, with Joe taking second place in the state tournament in 1978. John says his brother Paul coached the wrestling program at Fertile from '78 to '82, adding, "so I got to wrestle against him quite a bit."

He said he had gone with Paul to watch the Division 1 national tournaments in Oklahoma City, OK every year for the past five years, noting that last year his mother went along, and this year coach Bishop would be joining them. "It's just to watch, but I wouldn't want to miss it for anything," he said.

Since the tournament will mean missing some more classes, John hurried off to the English class he has missed for the past week due to the state tournaments.

Nordics, Skippers Beaten In Dist. 32 Quarterfinals

Marshall County Central and Middle River, District 32 finalists a year ago, were eliminated Tuesday in the quarterfinals of the 1983 high school basketball tournament.

Defending District 32 champion Marshall County Central lost a 54-48 overtime decision to Hallock at Roseau while Middle River, a District 32 finalist for three straight years, fell to Kennedy 80-65 at Newfolden.

Hallock 54
MCC 48

Marshall County Central had numerous chances to win it in regulation time, but once the game went into overtime Hallock had control and the Bears won 54-48.

"We played a super defensive game," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Things went pretty good until the end."

Marshall County Central had a seven-point lead with six minutes to play and still had a five-point edge with four minutes left, but then had a couple of costly turnovers.

There was still a chance to wrap it up in regulation time when the Nordics, sitting on a 46-44 lead, were at the line for a pair of free throws with 23 seconds remaining. But they missed them both, and the Bears' Jon Bloomquist, given the same opportunity with nine seconds showing, sank both of his chances to force overtime.

Bloomquist finished as the game's high scorer with 17 points. Teammates Todd Johnson and Gerald Stockham added 14 and 10 points, respectively. Scott Anderson had 16 for the Nordics.

Hallock, a 58-33 winner over Marshall County Central in the final game of the regular season, shot 49 per cent from the field (19-for-39) and 67 per cent at the free throw line (16-for-24). Marshall County Central shot 40 per cent from the field (17-for-43) and 74 per cent at the line (14-for-19). The Nordics did not hit a field goal, though, in either the fourth quarter or in overtime. They were 10-for-14 at the free throw line in the fourth quarter and 2-for-3 at the line in overtime to account for the points. Marshall County Central had a 23-21 rebound edge and also topped the turnover charts 20-19.

An easy 75-22 winner over Greenbush in the tournament's opening round Friday, Marshall County Central ended its 1982-83 season 8-12 overall.

Kennedy 80
Middle River 65

Kennedy switched from a patient offensive team to a run-and-gun club in the second quarter Tuesday and the Rockets exploded for an 80-65 win over Middle River.

After owning a narrow 12-10 first quarter lead with its slower-moving offense, Kennedy opened up a 34-26 halftime edge with a speed-up brand of ball, scoring four points in the final four seconds to cap things off.

"We had them scouted pretty good," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "They were a very patient type of basketball team on offense. But they started to play run and shoot and everything went in for them. Our kids never adjusted to their barnyard basketball."

Scott Johnson, moved from a forward to a guard in Kennedy's new attack, had a 30-point game, with Tommy Deere getting 20 and Jeff Hagen 12. Kevin Roppe scored 23 points for the Skippers, with Nathan Bukowski added 12.

Kennedy shot 57 per cent from the field for the game (30-for-53) while Middle River shot 34 per cent (20-for-59). There were 67 free throws shot last night. Kennedy was 20-for-28 at the line (71 per cent) and Middle River was 25-for-39 (64 per cent).

Middle River, a 65-35 first round winner over Humboldt-St. Vincent Friday, finished the year 13-7.

DNR NEWS

Fishing Opener May 14

Summer fishing season for walleye and northern pike will open on Minnesota's inland waters on May 14, the Department of Natural Resources announced, but musky fishermen will have to wait until June 4.

Limits remain the same as last year: walleyes - 6, northern pike - 3 and muskellunge - 1.

Bass season will open May 28, except for a portion of northeastern Minnesota where the season will start May 14. Limit on bass is 6.

This year, all stream trout angling in streams will open on April 16, except on Lake Superior tributary streams below the posted boundaries where there is a continuous fishing season for stream trout and salmon. Southeast streams may be fished starting at 10 a.m. on opening day while the rest of the streams open one hour before sunrise.

(On posted areas of the Knife river in Lake county the season opens June 1.)

Stream trout fishing in lakes will open statewide May 14.

Special winter season for lakes outside, or partly outside of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area in northeastern Minnesota runs from Jan. 15 to March 15, 1983. The season on lakes entirely within the BWCA opened January 1 and closes March 31, 1983.

Copies of the 1983 fishing regulations are in the process of being distributed to county auditors and license agents and will become effective March 1. DNR fisheries and enforcement officials urged sportsmen to read it carefully to avoid breaking the law.

A trout stamp is required for anglers who have reached their 18th birthday, and are under the age of 65, who fish for trout in steams. The stamp is required in addition to the regular angling or sportsman license. Revenue from sales of the stamp, which costs $3, is set aside under state law for improving habitat in trout streams.

Order DNR Trees by March 15

March 15 will be the last day on which to order tree seedlings from the Department of Natural Resources for planting this spring. As of February 25 there were still ample quantities of Norway pine, jack pine, white pine, soft maple, black walnut and caragana seedlings, said forestry officials. There is also an adequate number of Norway and Colorado spruce transplants.

Price lists and order blanks can be obtained from DNR forestry offices, ASCS (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service) offices, SCS (Soil Conservation Services) offices and County Extension offices.

They can also be had by contacting DNR Forestry, P.O. Box 95, Willow River, Minnesota 55795, (phone number 218-372-3183) or DNR Forestry, Centennial Building, Box 21, St. Paul, MN 55155)phone number 612-296-4479).

Agassiz Refuge Pays Revenue Sharing Funds

A check for $104,378.00 was presented to the Marshall county treasurer March 2 by Joseph Kotok, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge manager, as part of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) annual revenue sharing program.

The program is designed to compensate local units of government for loss of tax revenue on lands owned by the U.S. Government and administered by the Fish and Wildlife Service. The funds may be used for any governmental purpose. The program is authorized by the refuge revenue-sharing act of 1964 as amended in 1978. The original act provided for payments only on lands within the national wildlife refuge system. The 1978 amendment provided that payments be made on all lands administered by the Fish and Wildlife Service. Such lands in the North Central Region include national wildlife refuges, national fish hatcheries, waterfowl production areas and administrative sites.

Recent check presented to the Marshall county treasurer is this year's revenue-sharing payment for the 61,449 acre Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge located in eastern Marshall county.

Refuge officials note that they are pleased that the Fish and Wildlife Service is meeting its shared revenue obligations to the county and has made the maximum payment allowable.

In Memoriam

In memory of Beulah Huseth Froseth, who died March 10, 1980.

Three years have passed since that sad day.
The one we loved was called

To have, to love, and then to

Is the greatest sorrow on one's

Sadly missed by her mother, sister, brother, nieces and nephews.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Don't let the tragedy of a home fire find you out in the cold this winter, warns the Minnesota Medical association (MMA). Next to falls, fires kill the greatest number of people in the home each year. The number of injuries and permanent disabilities resulting from fires in the home is also astounding.

A high percentage of the home fires are cigarette smoking related. The kitchen range can also be a particularly hazardous area. Improper storage of flammable liquids account for a significant number of home fires annually. Electricity is one of the major sources of home fires. Improper functioning furnaces or heating stoves can be hazardous.

The MMA offers the following home fire prevention suggestions:

(1) Provide ample ash trays for smokers. Don't place them on a flammable surface where a stray hot ash can ignite a fire. Don't smoke in bed.

(2) Watch lighted candles carefully — particularly in festive or holiday seasons. Don't allow them to burn down or to be placed near potentially flammable objects like curtains, drapes or a dried out wreath.

(3) Treat the kitchen range with caution. Don't wear blousy sleeves, frilly aprons or other flowing clothing which can come in contact with a lighted burner. Keep children and pets away from the stove area while cooking.

(4) Keep matches and cigarette lighters out of the reach of small children. Teach them the hazards of fire.

(5) Make certain your furnace or heating system is clean, in good repair and properly vented. All too often carbon monoxide poisonings have been traced to a faulty functioning stove or a heating plant.

(6) Check lamps, plugs, socket, cords or appliances for frayed or loose connections or insulations. Don't attempt to make electrical repairs yourself unless you are trained to do so.

(7) Learn to replace fuses or circuit breakers. First find out why they were sufficiently overloaded to break the circuit.

(8) Make sure wood burning stoves are properly installed.

Prompt Medical Attention For Impetigo Advises the MMA

Impetigo is a common childhood bacterial infection of the skin that should be taken seriously, advises the Minnesota Medical Association (MMA).

It's very contagious and occurs most frequently during warm weather. The infection is usually spread by close physical contact. The appearance of areas of pustules or white heads with occasional blisters, blood crusts and weeping patches are classic symptoms of impetigo.

When the child touches the infected area of the body then another area of the body, the impetigo infection is rapidly spread to the new area. This contagious rash should be treated promptly by a physician because it is caused by a potentially dangerous bacteria which is usually a streptococcus or sometimes a staphylococcus. Both organisms are capable of causing damage to the heart and kidneys.

The physician may prescribe antibiotic creams or ointments to be applied to the affected areas, as well as an antibiotic to be taken orally to clear up the infection as soon as possible.

Further treatment of the infected areas of the skin will usually include soaking the sores with soap suds compresses several times each day to facilitate the gentle removal of the crusted areas to allow draining of the pustules. Exposure of the treated, affected area to the air is an important link in the healing process.

MMA further advises parents to make certain that the infected child's towels, wash cloths and bed linens do not come into contact with the rest of the family. They should be laundered to minimize the danger of spreading the impetigo germs to other members of the family. Wash the hands carefully each time the infected child is treated or items belonging to the child are handled.

Withholding From Pensions Not Required

Internal revenue service reminded retirees who receive pensions or annuities that beginning January 1, 1983, federal income taxes were required to be withheld from the taxable part of their payments from these plans. However, this withholding is not compulsory, and any retiree can apply for an exemption. Payer of the pension will tell the retiree how to apply for the exemption.

Withholding on pensions and annuities applies just as it does to wages and salaries; the amount withheld is determined by income, dependents, and filing status. Certain types of non-periodic payments will be withheld at a 10 per cent rate.

For more information on the withholding of income tax from pension payments, request IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," available by using the order blank in the tax package.

March 6-12 Is "Save Your Vision" Week

Governor Rudy Perpich declared March 6 through 12 "Save Your Vision" week in Minnesota in a ceremony in the governor's office.

According to Cheryl Stakston, president of the Minnesota Optometric association auxiliary, the auxiliary has been responsible for the "Save Your Vision" week effort in Minnesota. Besides the presentation in the governor's office, further awareness is being created by arranging for public billboard displays and milk carton imprints throughout Minnesota, calling attention to the importance of vision care. Self-detection is an important element in vision care.

"Some common symptoms of vision problems," Stakston said, "include blurred or distorted vision, headaches, pain of any kind in the eye, squinting, eye irritation, seeing spots or floaters, fatigue when concentrating on a seeing task, and nausea after doing close work.

"Symptoms that may appear when driving include difficulty reading road signs, parking, staying in the driving lane, judging distances, spotting activity off to the side, and driving at night."

Vision problems can be detected through sports. When people play a favorite sport poorly despite practice — reacting late to the ball, for example, or constantly misjudging — it may signal vision problems.

Other signs of vision difficulty include inching closer and closer to the TV set, poor performance on video games, tiring more quickly when reading or doing close work, close work, difficulty threading a needle and holding reading material further and further away to see it.

When one or more of these symptoms appears consistently, it's time to make an appointment for a thorough examination.

Films Planned At NW Library This Saturday

Free movies will be shown at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls, starting at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 12.

Films scheduled include: "Hailey's Gift," the story of what happens when the children of a small village get a magical visit from old Hailey B. McMoon; "Silent Safari — The Zebra," nature photography captures the daily routines of African animals with natural soundtrack rather than music or narration; "Mole and the Lollipop," an animated children's film depicts the adventures of a mile trying to find uses for a lollipop he has found on a park bench; and "Balthazar The Lion," an artists hands transform an assortment of small boxes into the animals, people, and props of an animated story about a lion who eats everything he can get inside his huge mouth.

Social Security Changes Given Survey Support

A small sampling of Minnesotans suggests that both retired and non-retired people understand and approve of some modifications in the social security system designed to make the system solvent.

The survey was taken of about 800 people attending town meetings on social security hosted by Senator Rudy Boschwitz. Of 12 possible solutions, only two were supported by less than half of those responding, both proposals of the President's commission on social security.

"To me this demonstrates that if people are given a chance to review some of the changes in social security without the usual politics and demogoguery that accompany them, they will make a thoughtful, reasoned judgment.

"The dialogue was heated at times, to be sure," Boschwitz said, "but generally pretty constructive. Perhaps seeing that kind of response would give some of my colleagues the necessary courage to tackle the problem head-on."

Boschwitz held town meetings in Moorhead, Willmar, Worthington, Rochester, Duluth and Roseville. He also made presentations to a group representing the St. Paul chamber of commerce and the metro senior federation in Minneapolis.

Boschwitz discussed five of the commission's proposals and seven of his own while administering the survey.

Only two failed to get more than 50 per cent of the total of all interviewed. The plan to advance the scheduled tax increase received only 39 per cent support, and the idea of increasing the self-employed tax got only 36 per cent.

The plan to advance the scheduled tax increases was the only question in which a breakdown of retired vs. non-retired interviewees yielded different results. While a plurality of retired people favored advancing the increases (49 per cent), a strong 67 per cent of non-retired respondents disapproved of the proposal.

The other three commission proposals discussed received relatively high marks:

+ Compulsary coverage of new civilian government employees received the most backing of those surveyed with a 70 per cent approval. Twenty-three per cent of those surveyed disagreed, and seven per cent had no opinion.

+ Taxing higher income recipients for 50 per cent of their social security benefits was endorsed by 63 per cent of those surveyed. Twenty-six per cent were opposed and 11 per cent had no opinion.

+ Delaying the cost-of-living adjustment six months from July 1983 to January 1984 was approved by 55 per cent of those polled. Forty-two per cent were against it and three per cent had no opinion.

All seven of the Boschwitz proposals were approved by those surveyed. The breakdown of those looked like this:

+ Raise the retirement age: For, 59 per cent; against, 35 per cent; no opinion, three per cent.

+ Lower the COLA (except for the lowest 25 per cent of recipients): For, 66 per cent; against, 27 per cent; no opinion, nine per cent.

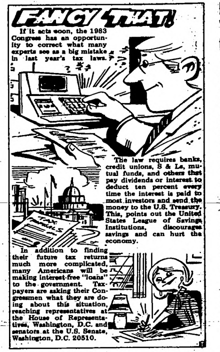
+ Change bendpoint indexing: For, 56 per cent; against, 20 per cent; no opinion, 24 per cent.

+ Change the percentages where there is another government pension: For, 63 per cent; against, 24 per cent; no opinion, 13 per cent.

+ A change in survivor benefits that eliminates benefits for minor children if one partner dies and the other has income exceeding $25,000: For 79 per cent; against, 14 per cent; no opinion, four per cent.

+ Raising the number of quarters worked to qualify for benefits, making exceptions for women who raise children (currently at 40, raise to 60): For, 66 per cent; against, 23 per cent; no opinion, 11 per cent.

+ Require one quarter's work for one quarter's credit: For, 80 per cent; against, nine per cent; no opinion, 11 per cent. Currently a worker can get four quarters of credit for one quarter of work if he or she earned over $120 per week.



FANCY THAT!

If it acts soon, the 1983 Congress has an opportunity to correct what many experts see as a big mistake in last year's tax laws.

The law requires banks, credit unions, S & Ls, mutual funds, and others that pay dividends or interest to deduct ten percent every time the interest is paid to most investors and send the money to the U.S. Treasury. This, points out the United States League of Savings Institutions, discourages savings and can hurt the economy.

In addition to finding their future tax returns much more complicated, many Americans will be making interest-free "loans" to the government. Taxpayers are asking their Congressmen what they are doing about this situation, reaching representatives at the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. and senators at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Ruling Changes Value Basis For Farm Land

Heirs of family farmers will save thousands of dollars in inheritance taxes as a result of a ruling announced by the Internal Revenue service, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger.

The IRS ruled that the payment-in-kind (PIK) program will not affect the basis under which farms are valued for the purposes of determining estate taxes. Senator Durenberger had lobbied for the decision at a Senate hearing Monday and in personal contacts with officials from the department of treasury.

Sen. Durenberger is co-sponsor of legislation to protect the estates of farmers signing up for PIK. Durenberger pushed the IRS to act as a shortcut to the legislative process.

According to Durenberger, current estate tax law permits farm land to be valued at its "use value" rather than its estimated "market value." Simply put, the value of land used for farming would be lower than if the same piece of land was valued as a potential shopping center or housing development. The lower use value of the land means a significant estate tax savings for the heirs.

However, farmers signing up for PIK would leave their land idle. The concern was that income from PIK could be considered cash rent from a non-family member. That combination would disqualify the land for special use valuation.

"A member of the Minnesota Association of Corn Growers was in last week to see me. He told me that unless the regulations were clarified, his heirs would pay an additional $55,000 in inheritance taxes," Durenberger said.

Durenberger congratulated IRS officials for issuing the protective regulations without waiting for congressional action.

"The sign-up for PIK ends March 11 and it's unlikely that Congress could have passed clarifying legislation by then. I've been told by many farmers that they wouldn't enroll in PIK or, if they had already signed up, would withdraw if this wasn't corrected," Durenberger said.

Another PIK-related tax problem still threatens the success of the program, he said. Payments under PIK — whether they are in the form of forgiving a farmer's Commodity Credit corporation loan or the actual transfer of grain to a farmer — could be considered taxable income in 1983 without the farmer receiving any cash.

While the estate tax situation was uncertain and open to interpretation — allowing the IRS to resolve the problem administratively — the income tax law is more specific and will probably be settled only through legislation.

Durenberger, a member of the energy and agriculture taxation subcommittee of the tax-writing finance committee, is a co-sponsor of a bill to correct the problem. However, with the March 11 PIK deadline approaching without the passage of legislation, Durenberger has urged congressional leaders to go on record in favor of the bill to protect farmers from the heavy income tax burden.

"Farmers need assurances from President Reagan and congressional leaders that PIK will not impose an unfair tax burden on them. Otherwise, I'm afraid we will defeat PIK before it ever gets off the ground," Durenberger added.

Wind Erosion Is A Problem In This Area

People who don't believe there is a wind erosion problem in east Marshall and west Beltrami countries should consider the black snow of recent days.

That's the suggestion of Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician for the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district. "If you don't think we have wind erosion here, you haven't looked at the road ditches these thawing days," he said.

"This wind erosion has already occurred before we have reached the normal spring windy season. Lack of snow and the acres of unprotected cropland can combine to cause a very severe erosion problem this spring."

Rundell said he would appreciate being advised of any areas in the district where wind erosion is taking place this spring so that he can build a collection of photographs.

"When the wind blows this spring," he said, "take a hard look at your farming practices. See if your farm is protected — or if it's blowing away."

The first federal legislation assuring a pension to workers in private industry was the Railroad Retirement Act. This provision was enacted in 1935, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Labor Firsts in America."

DARK CORNERS

Ever have the lights go out suddenly, maybe during a storm? The darkness becomes a tangible thing, you can feel it around you, a cloud closing in. Then you remember the candle out on the hall table. You put a match to it, and you're in business again. And it's amazing how much you can see by the light of a single candle when you've been in the dark.

Transpose this into your own life. Strike a mental match and let it shine in the dark corners, showing you the things you've hidden from yourself. Self revelation is good for us and once we've seen those dusty corners, maybe we should do something about them . . . like restoring our habits of regular weekly worship.

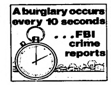
HAD ENOUGH OF CRIME? DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT!

Citizens with scanners become extra eyes and ears for police.

It looked like an ordinary moving van parked in the Johnson's driveway. But Mrs. Jones was suspicious. Earlier that day, she heard on her scanner radio that a burglary ring was operating in the area, and that they were using a moving van for the heists. So Mrs. Jones did the smart thing and phoned police. When patrolmen arrived on the scene, they confirmed her suspicions. The "movers" were arrested and charged with attempted burglary.

That is how close one family came to being burglarized. If you don't think it could happen to you, think again. A burglary occurs every 10 seconds in this country. But families like the Joneses are fighting back by forming community crime prevention groups. A community crime prevention program can be anything from a group of tenants in an apartment complex organizing themselves, to a subdivision of 500 families. Once organized, they keep on the lookout for crime. Many use scanner radios, which monitor police, fire and other public service frequencies, to keep informed. Others make use of CB radios in organized neighborhood patrols, supervised by their local police or sheriff's department.



A burglary occurs every 10 seconds
. . . FBI crime reports

This interaction between law enforcement officials and everyday citizens has proven to be a highly effective crime combatant. An area in Detroit, frightened by rapidly increasing crime, formed a group and reported a 56 percent drop in robbery and a 60 percent reduction in breaking and entering. Since residents of Sangamon County, Illinois, established their program in 1975, over 365 groups have been formed, reducing crime in those areas by as much as 85 percent.

Perhaps the strongest testament of the effectiveness of community crime prevention comes from this grateful citizen: "It makes me feel good to know my neighbors are looking out for me, and it makes me feel good to know I'm watching and listening so someone else can get a good night's sleep."

If you are interested in forming a program in your area, there has never been a better time to get organized than during National Crime Prevention Week, February 6 through 12, 1983. Your local police or sheriff's department can provide you with information. There's also a free booklet available from the Neighborhood Crime Prevention Coordinating Committee. If you'd like a copy, send 50¢ to cover postage and handling to: "Prevent Crime," One Illinois Center, Chicago, IL 60601.

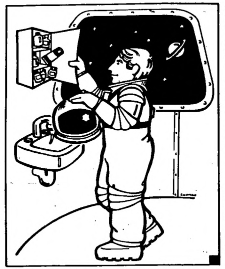
America's Orbiting Medicine Chest



The family medicine chest is an American institution. It helps moms get the kids over the sniffles, bring down occasional fevers or clean up scraped knees. Properly stocked and managed, the medicine chest is a good resource when we need relief from life's minor hurts and discomforts.

Few travelers venture far from home without a few basic drug items like aspirin or antacids.

And space travelers are certainly no exception. Far from the corner drugstore, astronauts are provided with a carefully selected assortment of prescription medicines, over-the-counter drugs and first aid supplies, all neatly packaged into the Shuttle Orbiter Medical System (SOMS), America's orbiting medicine chest.

SOMS consists of a series of pallets — much like backpacks — which hold medications, bandages, and emergency medical equipment. The compact system is put together so that crew members can treat a wide variety of medical problems which might arise during a mission, ranging from simple stomach upsets to severe allergic reactions or infections.

Diagnosis and treatment of any in-flight medical condition would be initiated and monitored through voice contact between the crew and a flight surgeon on duty at NASA Mission Control Center.

Recently selected by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for inclusion in SOMS was America's leading burn medication, Silvadene® cream, a prescription drug packaged in 20-gram tubes.

Silvadene cream could be particularly useful if a crew member sustained a chemical burn, scald or similar injury where the skin barrier is broken. In such injuries, Silvadene minimizes the possibility of infection by forming an effective barrier against bacterial invasion.

All products chosen for the Shuttle Orbiter Medical System for the Challenger missions must be able to withstand the severe environmental conditions of space flight. Compact packaging and easy use are also important. Silvadene is manufactured to exacting quality control standards by Marion Laboratories of Kansas City.

Hints For Homeowners

Choosing A Furnace: What To Look For

The Arkla recuperative furnace recycles hot exhaust gases that otherwise go up the chimney and brings additional heat from those gases — heat the homeowner's already paid for.

If you're warm to the idea of reducing your heating bills, these tips on what to look for in a furnace could be helpful.

- Look for a competent installation and service company with a reliable reputation. It's always a good idea to check out the dealer by getting references.
- Make sure your furnace doesn't "reinvent the wheel." It could be so complicated the dealer will not understand how to service the product.
- Most of the new wave of highly efficient gas furnaces are more efficient than a heat pump. Furthermore, the heat pump requires mechanical compression with a lot of moving parts. Asking it to perform under most different and adverse conditions puts a lot of strain on it. The heat pump functions best at temperatures above 32 degrees Fahrenheit.
- Check the design of a furnace, suggests William L. Regan, Vice President of Marketing at Arkla, a leading manufacturer of gas heating systems. The design of such highly-efficient gas furnaces as the Arkla recuperative furnace is rather simple. Many parts of the Arkla recuperative furnace are similar to those in conventional furnaces, such as a gas valve, control devices, and spark ignition capabilities.
- Does the furnace have proper material to contain condensate, if the furnace is what is known as a condensing furnace? The Arkla recuperative furnace employs stainless steel material that comes in contact with the flue products.
- Is the furnace efficient? The new breed of gas furnace offers fuel savings of 33 percent and more over conventional gas furnaces with a payback period of two to three years in some cases.

By following these simple tips when choosing a furnace, you're more likely to keep the heat you pay for.

UREA.
A growing source of N.

No other solid fertilizer gives you more actual nitrogen per pound than CO-OP urea, or works so well for you throughout the growing season.

CO-OP urea is 46% nitrogen, yet it is a dry material that blends well with most other dry fertilizers. It is ideal for topdressing wheat or pasture in the winter or early spring. And it is equally good for spring preplant applications that are incorporated in the soil.

Urea not only gives your crops an early boost in the spring, but has season-long feeding power as well. As the soil warms, the urea nitrogen changes to ammonium nitrogen, which is gradually converted to the nitrate form of nitrogen so readily taken up by the plant.

We can provide complete information about this great dry nitrogen fertilizer which is rapidly gaining popularity. Let's explore with you where it may best fit into your fertility program. Come see us. We're ready when you are.

IT'S THE MOST!

One person set a record for the number of pills taken that few people would want to equal. C.H.A. Kilner of Malawi swallowed a total of 359,061 pills following surgery to remove the pancreas. The pills were taken over a period of nearly 14 years.

You'll probably never need to take a lot of pills or injections to relieve the symptoms of the common cold. But it's nice to know that there's an over-the-counter medication that provides the highest level of medication available without prescription. It's Coricidin®, made by the Schering Corporation. The original formula was introduced to the medical profession as a prescription product. Available in tablets, nasal mist and cough mixture, it provides the best combination of pharmaceuticals allowed without a prescription. And for those who prefer cold medication with a decongestant, Coricidin 'D'® is also available.

Hints for Homemakers

TIPS TO HELP YOU

Holiday decorations . . . materials for sewing and handicrafts . . . silverware . . . precision tools . . . flower and vegetable seeds . . . stamp collections. What do all these household items have in common? They all benefit from being kept clean, dry and protected from air and dust.

These are just a few of the items that homemakers are storing in new vacuum sealed heavy duty plastic pouches. The Vacuum Seal-a-Meal® from Dazey that packages food with the touch of a finger is useful for more than food. That's what a lot of smart, economy-minded shoppers are discovering.

Few things are messier than an almost empty paint can. Yet you hate to throw out that small amount of paint that might be handy for touch-ups. Just pour the remnants into a pouch and seal until you need. Treasured books will also benefit from this kind of protection from damp and mold.

Farm Income Drops

Ed Curran of the U.S. department of agriculture points out that farming as a business in the United States is in a bad way — no news to the rural population in this area. But other states and other areas are experiencing even more drastic problems than most farmers here. Curran points out state-by-state figures as follows:

In 1979, net income per farm averaged a record $11,002 in the United States. In 1980, it averaged $10,057. But in 1981 it fell to $8,042 — the lowest since 1977 and second lowest in the past decade.

That's not all the bad news. It's in the lows. It averaged only $14 per farm in Oklahoma, $32 per farm in Montana, $43 per farm in West Virginia, $71 per farm in New Mexico, $125 per farm in Wyoming.

There were some highs, too. Net farm income averaged $29,650 per farm in California, $23,343 per farm in Florida, $22,798 in Arizona, $21,032 per farm in Idaho.

Here is the per farm breakdown in the other states:

It was $6,881 per farm in Alabama, $262 per farm in Alaska, $9,576 per farm in Arkansas, $14,052 per farm in Colorado, $16,909 per farm in Connecticut, $22,162 per farm in Delaware, $5,161 per farm in Georgia.

It was $9,058 per farm in Hawaii, $7,076 per farm in Illinois, $7,297 per farm in Indiana, $13,488 per farm in Iowa, $7,566 per farm in Kansas, $6,076 per farm in Kentucky, $1,668 per farm in Louisiana, $3,262 per farm in Maine and $8,738 per farm in Maryland.

Net income averaged $8,071 per farm in Massachusetts, $5,129 per farm in Michigan, $14,945 per farm in Minnesota, $2,390 per farm in Mississippi, $3,324 per farm in Missouri, $4,368 per farm in Nebraska, $2,511 per farm in Nevada, $232 per farm in New Hampshire, $6,350 per farm in New Jersey.

It averaged $6,641 per farm in New York, $12,141 in North Carolina, $14,525 in North Dakota, $2,842 in Ohio, $5,760 in Oregon, $7,876 in Pennsylvania, $5,683 in Rhode Island, $370 in South Carolina, $12,154 in South Dakota, $393 in Tennessee, $4,252 in Texas, $3,149 in Utah, $8,619 in Vermont, $2,449 in Virginia, $13,812 in Washington, $14,026 in Wisconsin and $125 per farm in Wyoming.

Per Diem Deals

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

As Jack Webb used to say as Sgt. Friday, "just the facts ma'am."

This being the editorial column, we usually throw a little opinion in on top of the data or accounts of recent occurences we feel are worth comment.

But in this case we'll just follow Webb's role and stick to the facts. And they are:

— The Minnesota State Senate voted Monday to raise their per diem pay by up to $200 per month for those in temporary residence in St. Paul and up to $13 additional per day ($26 to $39) for those commuting.

— They passed the measure by a single vote, 34-33.

— The House had already rejected per diem increases.

— The House members are up for election next in 1984. The Senate's next election year is 1986.

— The cost of the additional allowances, based on the five months the legislators will be in session, will cost taxpayers an additional $100,000 this year. Current base salary level (not including per diem) is $18,500. Mileage reimbursement is paid at the rate of 26 cents per mile, and lawmakers living beyond 50 miles from the capitol get a $75 per day income tax deduction.

— There were four Independent-Republican senators and 30 DFL members voting in favor of the measure. Two of the DFL members voting in the affirmative said they would donate their $200 per month housing allowances to food shelf projects on the Iron Range.

— From the local and neighboring Senate districts, only Sen. Leroy Stumpf, Plummer, and Collin Peterson, Detroit Lakes, voted against the raise.

One senator, Charles Berg, IR-Chokio, described the increase, at this particular time, as "an outrage" and a "ripoff of taxpayers."

— Some proponents argue that the new per diem rates will minimize the "rural-urban" situation which some feel is inequitable.

— Reaction heard around the state Tuesday indicated that a lot of the non-senators agreed with Mr. Berg.

— And we predict that a lot of people, especially from unemployment-riddled areas where $13 a day would make a difference whether or not someone gets to eat or not, will be taking the side of the members of the House and the 33 senators who did not think the raise was that necessary.

— Like we said. . . this time, we're just relating the facts. In this case, we think the statement of opinion would be superfluous.

Repeal Withholding Tax Law

Following editorial is from the Phoenix Gazette:

Any tax is supposed to provide for the public welfare, thus one that not only doesn't help but hurts is bad law and should be repealed. The law which takes effect July 1 and mandates automatic withholding from savings accounts and dividends is unfair to depositers and to the more than 50,000 banks, savings and loans, credit unions and other financial institutions.

Very few persons try to cheat the Internal Revenue Service by not reporting dividend and interest income. The risk would be considerable because institutions which pay interest and dividends of more than $10 to any account are required to report this to the IRS. Much of the data is furnished on magnetic tape so it can be processed through tax computers.

And what will be the cost of this effort to catch some little fish? The direct cost to business to reprogram its computers and make necessary changes to begin withholding will be more than $1 billion. Annual operating costs are estimated in the hundreds of millions. Savings and loan operations will spend $435 million just to set up the withholding system, then spend $300 million a year to maintain it.

This could not come at a worse time. The economy is showing signs of recovery and needs all the private money it can lay hands on. Savings rates are increasing. Thirty-two million Americans own stock or have invested in mutual funds. More than 50,000 banks, savings and loans, credit unions and other institutions pay interest to millions of customers. Based on figures for the first 10 months of 1982, withholding will take $30 billion out of the economy a year.

The withholding law is unfair to thrifty Americans and will be a blow to economic recovery. Repeal efforts under way deserve quick passage.

Paper Chasing

Following editorial is from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

As promised, the Reagan administration is pruning the government's paperwork jungle. It looks better already — especially when Americans realize that the time they have to spend filling out official papers is being reduced.

Paperwork requirements have been trimmed 29 per cent since 1980, exceeding the administration's goal of a 25 per cent reduction, according to Chris DeMuth, executive director of the president's task force on regulatory relief.

As a result, White House officials announced, "Americans will spend over 100 million fewer hours filling out government forms and records by the end of this fiscal year than they did during fiscal year 1982."

The accomplishment is spelled out in an 89-page booklet, titled "Information Collection Budget," which includes a letter from David A. Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget. People not wanting to wade through that can read all about it in a three-page statement or a two-page list distributed at the White House.

The reduction was mandated by the Paperwork Reduction Act — an act passed a year before Ronald Reagan took office. Credit for getting the job done, though, clearly belongs to the Reagan administration, which waded in and did something instead of putting it off.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A father and son struck a deal. The father would provide the son with use of a car if the son would cut his shoulder length hair, shave his beard and read the Bible every day.

After the car was provided, the son began his Bible reading but kept his long hair and beard. When his father reminded him of the rest of the bargain, the son replied, "Well, I've been reading about Jesus in the Bible and he had long hair and a beard."

"That's very likely true," the father replied, pocketing the car keys, "and he also walked everywhere he went."

Why is it that a burned match thrown out of a car window at 55 miles an hour can start a forest fire, but three books of matches and most of the Sunday paper won't start a fire under the dry wood in a fireplace?

What the Government Should Do For Agriculture

The response to my recent column entitled "What the Government Should Not do for Agriculture" was pretty good, but I must admit that it prompted a call to discuss "What the Government Should do for Agriculture." Fair enough.

There are, of course, many areas in which the government should help farmers, far more than I can reasonably discuss in this space. The most urgent of these, and the one I would like to talk about here, regards world trade. If there is a key lesson I have learned as chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Foreign Agricultural Trade, it's that the promise of a good future for our farmers may depend on their ability to get a fair shake on world markets.

The role of the government there cannot be overstated. The rules of the game for international trade are set by governments, so it is the role of our government to make sure that those rules are equitable and fair.

Agriculture Secretary John Block said it well when he said that our government has a responsibility to help American farmers capitalize on their efficiency by working to keep international agriculture markets competitive, to free up trade restrictions, and to counteract subsidized farm exports where American farmers must compete against foreign treasuries.

Sometimes, he added, that means we have to fight fire with fire. I agree. Nobody likes the prospect of that, but we cannot stand by and watch the erosion of the family farm because the rules of the game in world trade are not fair.

What can we do? First, we should realize that our problems don't rest squarely on the shoulders of our competitors and their unfair trade practices. Among the most pressing challenges facing us is to rebuild our tarnished image as a reliable supplier of commodities. When we sell something, we have to deliver it. That sounds simple, but because of our spotty record in that regard — owing to embargoes — we have become only a supplier of last resort to many of our once-good customers.

A step in the right direction is the recently-passed contract sanctity legislation, which preserves in sales for a minimum of 270 days. Contracts can no longer be cancelled as they were in the 1980 trade suspension and embargo of grain sales to the Soviet Union. So now buyers realize that our law protects their purchases. But that is only the beginning.

Another measure is to negotiate a new grain trade agreement with the Soviet Union. The Russians are the most recent victims of a U.S. embargo and a new long-term agreement with them would assure the world that we intend to be a reliable supplier of farm products to international markets.

We must also promote the expanded consumption of U.S. farm products in foreign countries through the incentive of lower prices offered under some sort of "export PIK" program. The recently concluded sale of wheat flour to Egypt is an example.

Next we have to tackle the problems of unfair trade practices used by our competitors. The 98th Congress is already considering numerous measures to put our farmers and exports on an equal footing with the competition.

The first of these bills is my bill, the Agriculture Free and Fair Trade Act of 1983. My bill is a bit complicated, but in a nutshell it works like this: if some proportion of the excess commodities is found by the Secretary of Agriculture to be due to the actions of a foreign country, he can act to counter those actions. These actions include selling stocks at terms and prices the Secretary determines will be required to be as competitive. This could mean lower prices on exports in order to offset competitor export subsidies, or manipulations of exchange rates and interest rates on export credits. The bill provides measures which will assure that producers and exporters are not adversely affected by the lower prices. In addition, the bill prohibits displacement of normal U.S. marketings.

My bill also requires that our market development funding never falls below the "real" level of such funding during 1971. That means we can actively pursue business abroad with offices and marketers stationed in offices all around the world.

Hopefully, all of these measurers will help counteract the unfair trade practices of the competition. What's more, my bill (or the others being considered) might encourage the competition to do away with unfair trading practices and thereby restore free and fair trade in international markets for farm products.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

In our discussion of the economic mess confronting Americans, the first step toward solving our problem, noted last time, was a reduction of interest rates to single digits, which will permit and encourage business and individuals to finance their needs while increasing demand for products and services. That one action will translate into lots of new jobs. But it is only a first step on what must be a long hike. Much more must be done.

Our products must be able to sell at prices comparable to their competition, in addition to being of equal or better quality. That means cutting labor and material costs down to what the buyers will pay. It also means that we, as a nation, must take pride in what we produce, so that our quality will be assured. One of the ways of cutting labor cost and improving quality is a vast program of new factories and updated equipment to increase productivity and make it easier to manufacture reliable products.

We need to do a much better job of marketing our products and services overseas. This translates into more Americans trained to speak and write in foreign languages, who are sensitive to other cultures. The day of the "ugly American" who expected everyone to communicate in his language and adapt to his ways is long gone. Millions of new and interesting jobs will develop if we can expand our overseas business. In some instances, American businesses may have to adapt products for local use, while including instructional manuals in all of the world's prime languages.

Where some nations are unwilling to give us free access to their markets, while expecting free access to our markets, we must stop turning the other cheek and respond. We should allow nations to sell to us only to the extent that they buy from us. No buy . . . . no sell. . . . that simple. To be sure that there are no slippages, instead of the years of conversations and promises of countries like Japan, we should monitor this on a quarter to quarter basis. The Japanese, for example, would not be allowed to sell us more from April through June 1983 than they purchased from us in the January through March 1983 quarter. If they want to continue to sell to us, they have to buy from us so that we can pay for what we buy. This kind of reciprocity with mature trading partners would eliminate dumping incentives.

Down deep, I am sure that the Japanese and some other nations will be unhappy about having to sell at a fair price (comparable to the prices they charge "at home" for the same products) and learn to stop old habits that are harmful to others. But, frankly, we should be less concerned about them and more concerned about millions of Americans who have lost jobs because of unfair trade practices.

One last point on jobs involves the more than 10,000,000 illegal aliens working in the United States. It would appear that our first obligation, as a nation, is to provide full employment opportunities for citizens, and that Americans should be given a job priority over others. Some say that Americans will not work at these 10,000,000 jobs. Under our unemployment compensation program, the payment of benefits should require the acceptance of a job opportunity, even if the "fit" isn't perfect.

Today we are in a rapidly changing world where it is difficult to keep up. Individuals must be more adaptable than ever before in our history. This adaptability will not "just happen" anymore than an oil well just appears. It will take a continuing effort at training in this dynamic world of computers and robots. Those who are unwilling to adapt to change and maintain marketable skills could end up as being permanently unemployed.

So our economic mess requires not only a reduction in interest rates, but also quality products at competitive prices, lower wage rates until productivity justifies more pay, enforced free trade, job allocation on a "citizen first" basis, a major effort at improving our international marketing, and the acceptance by all Americans of the very simple fact. . . . a dynamic and changing world requires dynamic individuals willing to constantly update their capabilities so that they can "make it."

No one ever said that this is an easy world environment where we can sit back and let someone else do the work while we relax and enjoy ourselves. We have to earn and pay for that relaxation and enjoyment. Furthermore, no one ever said that success, once attained, is permanent. Success, too, has to be earned every single day. More on the economic mess later. Sorry . . . no simple or easy solutions.

That's Straight Talk!

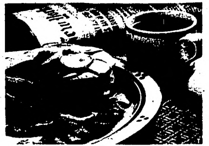
Bring Back A Lenten Tradition With Pancakes



The Lenten season is rich in customs, including the enjoyment of a variety of traditional foods. One often forgotten food of the season is the pancake.

It was originally the custom to eat pancakes, also called the shriving cake, on Shrove Tuesday, the day preceding Ash Wednesday. It's also the perfect dish to serve throughout the Lenten season.

Often enjoyed for breakfast, pancakes make a delicious and economical choice for brunch, lunch or dinner. Simply topped with syrup and butter or all dressed up with fruit or toppings, pancakes are easy to make. And the ingredients are usually right on the shelf, which makes pancakes ideal for busy days.

These Banana Pancakes with Caramel-Banana Topping are flavored with mashed bananas and topped with sliced bananas in a caramel-flavored syrup. They're sure to become a tradition not only at Lent but throughout the year.

BANANA PANCAKES WITH CARAMEL-BANANA TOPPING

2 cups Bisquick baking mix
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup mashed bananas
Caramel-Banana Topping (below)

Beat baking mix, eggs and milk with hand beater until smooth; fold in bananas. Pour scant 1/4 cup batter onto hot griddle. (Grease griddle if necessary.) Cook until dry around edges. Turn; cook until golden brown. Serve with Caramel-Banana Topping. About 13 pancakes.

Caramel-Banana Topping

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup whipping cream
1/4 cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 medium bananas, diagonally sliced

Mix brown sugar, whipping cream, corn syrup, margarine and vanilla in 1-quart saucepan. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally; remove from heat. Add bananas; stir gently until well coated.

EITHER THINKING OR WRITING intensely, these sixth grade students at Franklin middle school are learning how to write creatively. In this English class, taught by Mrs. Ardis Botner, the students spend a part of each period learning about writing techniques and then practicing them. "Sometimes they need a little motivation, but once they get started they do really well," Botner commented. For the first three phases of the program the students have worked with humor, setting a mood or atmosphere and using sense words.

Students At Franklin Learn Creative Writing

by Julie Easton
Times Reporter

Thirty-two grade six students at Franklin middle school are involved in a different sort of English class. In this special class, taught by Ardis Botner, the students are given encouragement to be creative.

Entitled "Language Arts — Creative Writing," the course is designed to give students a chance to practice more than reading and grammar in their English class. Instead, students spend a part of each class period learning about writing techniques and then practicing them.

"Getting them to do something on their own, it's something to work on," commented Mrs. Botner. She explained that students should always be encouraged to use their own ideas.

"Sometimes they need a little motivation, but once they get started they do really well," Mrs. Botner stated. In her March 11 lecture to the class she related that freedom is an important asset for any writer and writers can often make rules to fit their creations.

With this accepting atmosphere in the classroom, the students seem to respond with thoughtful pieces of writing.

For the first phase of the program, the class read, discussed and wrote about humor, especially working with puns and playing with names. Some samples of this include humorous epitaphs:

Troy Carlson, writing about a mad dog: "Here he lies all covered by grime, bitten by one of his own kind."

Sean Myher: "Alexander Orr argued the law on senate floor. Here he lies as he did before."

Denise Kiesow: "Here lies a pilot who died of the flew."

Trudi Brown: "John Doe's car sped around the hill didn't get to Las Vegas - never will."

In the second portion of the course, students worked on setting the mood and creating atmospheres by the use of synonyms and specific words. Students worked from pictures and suggestions in their book for starting point ideas. Not all settings and moods were actually experienced, but students were encouraged to use imagination and any original ideas. Examples of the short atmosphere paragraphs are:

Lisa Erickson: "One sunny Saturday afternoon in July I was riding on my red three wheeler and I noticed an old man standing by a big round oak tree. He was waring a red baseball style cap with a blue shirt and brown overalls. He looked really nice and was smiling all the time."

Robby Finstad: "It is a pitch dark errie midnight night. The fog looks like a hand ready to snatch me up. There is no one around but me. I can feel the trees reach for me. Everything looks so different and unusual that it is scaring me to death. I think it is going to rain hard pretty soon. I can feel the first raindrops sting on my face. I think I am going to my nice warm home where I am sure I can be safe."

Roberta Opdahl: "I dragged along home slowly with all rotten 'F's' on my terrible report card, on a dark gloomy

CONGRESSMAN Arlan Stangeland (right) and Republican national committeeman Leon Oistad of Ada addressed the Pennington county I-R convention in Thief River Falls Friday.

Sather And Freeman To Head Co. Republicans

Richard Sather and Diane Freeman were elected chairman and chairwoman of the Pennington county Independent - Republican party at the annual county convention Friday evening at the Best Western inn.

Gordon Reierson and Sharon Howard were elected co-chairman and co-chairwoman with Jeanette Heinrichs named secretary and Maryel Anderson elected treasurer. New board members elected were Harry Oen, Yvonne Bredeson and Richard Nietz while continuing board members are Ev Ault and Gladys Barron. Vacancy created by the death of Jerry Wedul on Thursday was not filled.

Reminder was issued that the Seventh District convention will be held at Wadena May 6 and 7 with nine delegates and 11 alternates from Pennington county previously elected to attend.

Senator Rudy Boschwitz, who had been scheduled to speak at the convention and meet with the public in the Best Western meeting rooms Friday night and Saturday morning, had to cancel his appearance due to a back injury in Washington, DC, which left him unable to travel.

Congressman Arlan Stangeland of Minnesota's Seventh district was guest speaker at the convention banquet, leaving immediately following his talk to attend the Red Lake county I-R convention being conducted the same evening. Also attending were Leon Oistad of Ada, member of the Republican National committee, and Bill Morris, state I-R chairman.

Congressman Stangeland addressed much of his talk to the agricultural situation and the economy. He said he was enthused about the payment in kind (PIK) program and the farmers' response to it, calling it "the best thing going for us in agriculture today". He said it was needed to reduce the oversupply of available grains on hand.

Barley is not included in the PIK program for two reasons, the congressman noted. There are not enough stocks in all areas of the country to pay back the grower under such a program, he said, and it is expected that if the wheat and

School Board Meets Tonight In Board Room

Thief River Falls board of education will meet at 8 p.m. tonight in the school district service center board room following a meet and confer session with representatives of the school district faculty at 7:30 p.m.

Agenda items for the regular meeting include bids on anticipation bonds, St. Hilaire school and automated drafting equipment, DVR report by Vaughn Thorfinnson, band trip request by Doug Engstrom, block grant funds, transportation request by Redeemer Lutheran church, AVTI general advisory committee, sale of 1983 carpentry class house, computerized personnel information, personnel items and 1983-84 budget reductions.

School Board Meets After Knox Hearing

Meeting following the hearing on closing of Knox elementary school Tuesday evening of last week, the Thief River Falls board of education conducted discussion on several items affecting school district 564 operations.

Adjustment was made in the 1982-83 expenditure budget from $7,636,846 to $7,712,450 and in the revenue budget from $7,181,969 to $7,269,694.

Overload assignment was approved for David L. Peterson and Lincoln high school for the second semester. Position of Steve Beich as probationary management aide at Mark Twain school was terminated. Supt. Block informed the board that negotiations with bus drivers for 1983-84 salaries are now open. Drivers are being represented by the Minnesota school employees association.

After discussion of non-certified employee classifications, the board agreed that past practice should be followed whereby the seniority and bumping process is used.

In discussing proposed cuts for 1983-84, the board reviewed proposed cuts in librarian positions, department of vocational rehabilitation, adult vocational education, administration and the fact that possible closing of Knox school will be discussed at the next meeting.

The board withdrew from policy the equal opportunity compliance action program which was adopted Nov. 8, 1982, pending additional review by legal counsel.

Questions were raised about buses being able to travel frozen roads rather than picking up students only along surfaced routes. It was pointed out that roads which were heavily rutted would not permit bus travel over 15 miles per hour and would thus make it impossible to maintain a schedule. In addition, it was believed changing from one method of pick-up to another would be confusing to parents and students. Decision was made to leave the pick-up procedure at the discretion of adminstration.

NWRIC Director To Face Charges

Following investigation of Darrell Peterson's handling of finances as director of the Northwest regional interdistrict council (NWRIC), the Marshall county attorney's office plans to file four charges against Peterson. The NWRIC education cooperative is headquartered in Newfolden.

Marshall county attorney Harold Myhre said his office plans to charge the former NWRIC director with (1) embezzlement of public funds, (2) permitting false claims against the government (3) presenting false claims to a public officer or body and (4) theft of public funds.

Peterson, a former resident of Thief River Falls who Myhre said is now reported to be working in Kansas, headed the NWRIC office for about nine years. He resigned in early November of 1982 and the NWRIC board ordered a special audit of the organization's records.

Myhre said that each of the four charges which his office plans to file is a felony charge and carries a different penalty. He said he is not sure what procedure will be followed in pressing the charges, but indicated Peterson may be given the option of returning to face them voluntarily. In fugitive cases, Myhre said, the procedure is to issue a warrant for authorities in the other state to make an arrest, and for extradition to be handled through the governor's office of the state in which the fugitive is arrested. Because Peterson left the state to seek employment and no charges had been filed at that time, circumstances are different in this case, Myhre said.

Following audit of the NWRIC record by the Holcomb-Knudson firm of Thief River Falls, and request by the NWRIC board, Peterson paid the organization $5,838 with a check at the February meeting of the board. The amount represented $3,832 in NWRIC funds alleged to have been spent by Peterson for his personal use and $2,006 for an advance over-payment in his salary. The two amounts were determined by the audit, and totaled $205 more than noted in the auditor's final report in November, 1982.

At that February meeting, county attorney Myhre and assistant Mike Williams were in attendance. They received from the board approval of a resolution giving the county attorney's office permission to examine and copy records of the organization and to visit with the council's auditing firm.

Myhre said that the charges which his office plans to file arise from only the information obtained in the earlier special audit conducted by the Holcomb-Knudson firm. He said that investigation — much of it by the Marshall county sheriff's office — was confined primarily to verifying the information and assembling evidence.

At the November meeting of the NWRIC board, the Politics Enliven Council Meeting

Potential actions of State and Federal government, mixed with a dose of local and party politics, drug out last night's city council meeting, which otherwise would have been pretty routine.

Political sparring resulted in withdrawal of a February 21 resolution favoring a proposal by Republican Senator Dave Durenberger, which was intended to restore general revenue sharing funds to states. City Attorney Bob Wurst, who was instructed by council to draft the resolution noted that he had had "second thoughts," calling attention to an area of the proposal which would limit deductability of state and local taxes from federal income tax. Mayor Bob Carlson questioned Wurst's "conservative" political views, noting that revenue sharing funds had paid for many of the city's improvements. Wurst suggested that by taking more money in Federal taxes, states could stand to lose more than they got returned. After sone discussion, the matter was tabled pending investigation of whether the League of Minnesota Cities had any recommendations on the proposal.

In contrast, the council passed a resolution in opposition to Governor Perpich,'s proposal on a local government aid formula. Clerk Jerry Wigness noted that under the proposal, the city of Thief River Falls could see a decrease in local government aids in 1984 of $260,158, or 41.6 per cent. Note

Kathy Lee Skjerven and Randall Helmbrecht Wed

Kathy Lee Skjerven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Skjerven of Plummer, became the bride of Randall Arnold Helmbrecht, son of Leta Helmbrecht of Grand Rapids, at a three o'clock wedding ceremony at the Immanuel Lutheran church at Plummer.

Rev. Tim Miller officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar graced with vases of yellow roses. Reading selected Scripture verses: Mark 10:6-9; John 17: 15-23; I Cor. 13:4-7, 13, was Karlene Gail of Grand Rapids.

Elaine Klug, accompanied by organist Effie Vigstol, sang "Wedding Song" for the processional; "The Lord's Prayer," before the benediction, and "Through the Eyes of Love," for the recessional. During the ceremony, Chris and Gary Francisco of Grand Rapids sang "Let Us Climb the Hills Together," and "You and I." Accolytes were Jerry Skjerven, Jr., brother of the bride, and Wade and Wally Helmbrecht, brothers of the groom. The service began with the bride's sister, Melanie Skjerven, reading a poem selected by the bride.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. She was attired in a chiffon knit gown styled with an A-line skirt featuring a lace pleated panel, flounce and pleated train. The long-sleeved, fitted bodice was fashioned with a V-yoke trimmed with Chantilly lace and accented with a wide lace ruffle. Matching lace trimmed the cuffs and the high wedding band collar. A tiara headpiece with pearl trim, held her lace edged veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and red roses and white and red carnations, accented with babies' breath, stephanotis and ribbon loops.

Melanie Skjerven attended here sister as maid of honor. Other attendants were Diane Paquin and Deb Koskela, friends of the bride, and Karen Skjerven, sister of the bride. Their pink bustleback gowns with flared skirts with flounced hems, were complemented by ruffled collars forming capelet sleeves. Each carried a large lace fan topped with pink and red roses, white carnations and babies breath with matching flowers tied to ribbon streamers.

Similar attire was worn by Amanda Linert, Thief River Falls, who served as flower girl.

Best man was Don Helmbrecht, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Stan Gale, Gary Francisco and Chris Francisco, of Grand Rapids, friends of the couple. Serving as ushers were Mike Skjerven, brother of the bride; John Greenwald, friend of the couple, and Larry Ward, friend of the groom. The rings were carried by Corey Helmbrecht, a cousin of the groom. All wore black tuxedos, white ruffled shirts tipped in black, and black bow ties. The groom was attired in an all white tuxedo with a triple pink rose boutonniere pinned on his lapel.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Loren Mathson, Fairview, Mont., godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wallace and Genevieve Helmbrecht, grandparents of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert McGowan, great-grandparents of the groom.

The bride's personal attendants were Jodi Pahlen and Sandra Tougas. They were also in charge of the flowers, which were made by Florence Tvedt of Plummer.

Serving as host and hostess were Loren and Elaine Mathson. Peggy Skjerven, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book, and Diane Fisher and Kathy Pahlen, friends of the bride, were gift bearers. Mary Westlake and DeeAnn Huotari served the punch.

The wedding cake, baked and decorated by Edna Hyde, was cut and served by the bride's aunts: Mrs. Jean McCrary and Mrs. Irvin Flatgard. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Duane Helmbrecht and Mrs. Delwyn Helmbrecht, aunts of the groom.

Waitresses were Sheila Sorenson, Kelly Jesme, Jody Pahlen and Bonnie Fisher, friends of the bride.

Following the reception, a wedding dance was held at the Plummer hall.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Plummer high school and attended Northland community college. The groom, a 1978 graduate of the Grand Rapids high school, is also a graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, school of carpentry. Photo, Alice Hofstad, Plummer

Booklet Covers Are Judged By Campanula Club

Program booklet covers for 1983 were judged at the March meeting of the Campanula garden club held at the home of Mrs. Victor Franson. Winning first, second and third place, respectively, were Mrs. Edith Franson, Eleanor Tornes and Mrs. Marie Fischer. Each was presented with a packet of seeds from the club president Mrs. Ruth Holms.

Mrs. Holms presided at the meeting and led the members in reading the garden club creed and the March poem. The eight members attending answered roll call by naming an All American flower or vegetable. Reports were given by secretary Eleanor Tornes, treasurer Olga Johnson, and good cheer chairman Bernice Knutson. Members also signed a get-well card for Viola Koglin, who was hospitalized.

Plans were made for the observance of the 35th anniversary of the Campanula garden club. The event will be celebrated on April 13 with a dinner for the members. It will also be observed on June 8 with the other garden clubs as guests.

The topic study on flowers mentioned in the Bible was continued, Olga Johnson gave information on the aloe, a plant of the lily family with drooping clusters of tubular, red or yellow flowers. Geneva Overum led the study on the new vegetables for 1983.

Smoking Is Double Hazard For Women

Smoking rates have continuously dropped since the 1960's, but there has been a dramatic drop for men and only a slight drop for women, according to the American lung association of Minnesota.

Smoking rate among 17-18 year old teenage girls has been sharply increasing. The percentage of teenage girls who smoke is now higher than boys.

Smoking is a double hazard for women — for them and the children they bear. Cigarette smoke in the mother's blood stream alters the heart rate, blood pressure, oxygen supply, and acid balance of the unborn infant. A pregnant woman who smokes two packs a day blocks off the equivalent of 25 per cent of the oxygen supply to the fetus.

Pregnant women who smoke have more still births, spontaneous abortions, and low-weight babies than do nonsmoking mothers.

A common fear among men and women is that they will gain weight if they quit smoking. But gaining weight is not inevitable — a national survey found that one out of four ex-smokers actually lost weight.

American Lung association of Minnesota's freedom from smoking self-help and clinic programs can help those who wish to stop smoking.

Airport Group Formed To Aid In Operations

Minnesota council of airports (MCOA), has been formed to promote the improvement of airport operations and management, Commissioner Richard Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), announced.

Nonprofit organization is for cities and counties that own airports for public use as well as for associations, businesses and individuals whose goals are to improve airport operations in Minnesota, he said.

Mn-DOT's aeronautics division, headed by Assistant Commissioner Richard Keinz, will join the organization as a non-voting member. Among the aeronautics division's responsibilities, Keinz explained, are to provide technical and financial assistance to municipalities for the development, maintenance and safety of public airports.

MCOA officers are: John Grinden, executive director, Duluth Airport Authority, chairman; Lowell Helgerson, airport manager, Rochester, vice chairman; and Tim Callister, manager, St. Paul Downtown Airport, secretary-treasurer. They also are board members with J. Russell Fifield, Jr., city manager, St. James; Gordon Newstrom, manager, Grand Rapids-Itasca County Airport; and Louis Anthonisen, former city council member, Austin.

Until now, Grinden stated, there have been no formal means of helping airports deal with the inherent problems of operation and management. The MCOA will fill this gap by providing a forum for exchanging ideas and information on management on a "self-help" basis. The MCOA will also help coordinate efforts to promote positive airport-related legislation and regulations.

Statewide membership campaign is under way now with an organizational meeting planned for April. Membership invitations have been mailed to officials of Minnesota municipalities and counties who own airports, Grinden said.

Politics Get Discussion By Council

was made that other area cities would see large decreases also, while Iron Range cities such as Virginia and Hibbing, and Minneapolis-St. Paul area would gain. Resolution was passed unanimously. Comments were made that area legislators had expressed doubt that the proposal would be able to get through the legislature, anyway.

Discussion was held on various options open to pay for improvements to the water plant, streets, and the parking district project. Alderman Don Goodrich commented that he favored bonding for the water plant project, since taxes were deductible, while rate increases were not. Alderman Bill Penning suggested that bonding experts should be consulted, to see if it was possible to combine bond issues on the various projects to obtain a more favorable rate. Matter was referred back to the finance committee for further research.

Mayor Bob Carlson reported on a meeting which had been held with Minnesota department of transportation officials, regarding work on Third Street, noting that a proposal had been made by MnDOT to replace the bridge with a wider one, extending the street to four lanes from the tracks to Atlantic Avenue. This raised discussion regarding loss of downtown parking, with Alderman Penning commenting that the plan was quite different from what had been discussed previously.

Mayor Carlson noted that at present it was just a proposal, and MnDOT would be preparing drawings and other information which would be presented to the full council in April.

Since bids could be let as early as fall of 1984, for construction in 1985, notice was made of the need for the city to be prepared with plans for emergency service to the east side of the city while the bridge is out. Request was made to have the state overlay First Street since it will need to be used as a detour while Third Street is under construction. Possibility of moving up construction of the Greenwood Avenue bridge was also discussed.

In other business, the council:

— Heard from Police Chief Ken Froschheiser regarding the annual departmental report and the animal control officer's report. Further details on these reports will be carried in next week's Times.

— Heard from Alderman Ken Murphy that the sanitation department would not be picking up garbage in the alleys after Monday, until frost conditions improved. He also noted that the trucks would not be hauling to Ghentlee for the same reason, citing damage to the vehicles. They will be hauling to a landfill near Salol until after the Spring thaw.

— Approved bids for plastic garbage bags from L.B. Hartz Wholesale, at $21,505. Other bid was from International Plastics, Inc., Greenville, SC., at $23,937.25. Murphy commented that the sanitation workers were happy with the type of bags now being used, adding that if people had problems with a particular lot of bags they should be returned to the city for exchange.

— Accepted the low bid of Shumway Oil Co. to provide unleaded gas for city vehicles. Froschheiser noted that the discount offered the city was 12 cents below pump price, but would vary according to dealer cost. Midland had the second low bid, at one cent per gallon higher.

— Accepted the low bid of Northern Motors for a utilities department truck at $8,149. Utilities Box for the truck was bid by Truck Utilities Company at $3,180, plus $400 worth of accessories.

— Heard a report from Alderman Ambrose Wysoski that the old library building had been offered to Pennington County board on a 30-year lease for $1 per year if they would take over maintenance. County board is still considering the offer.

— Approved club on-sale intoxicating liquor licenses for the Elk's, VFW, Eagles and Legion clubs.

— Approved a request from the Northwest chapter of the Minnesota association for the education of young children to use the main floor of the auditorium on April 7, to hold a "fun with Mom and Dad night."

— Approved a resolution designating March 21 to March 26 as National Agriculture Week, honoring those persons who earn their livelihood from the field of agriculture.

— Approved regular and special bills of $385 from Grand Forks Fire Equipment Company, paid from revenue sharing funds.

— Heard a report from Attorney Wurst that a proposed joint powers agreement in opposition to hazardous waste site development in Marshall County had received little response from surrounding communities, noting that only Thief River Falls and Marshall County had come up with firm proposals to financially support a court fight.

New Members Appointed For Library Board

county commissioners of the participating counties and councils of the municipalities making up the library system. Board members must be resident of the jurisdiction for which they are appointed.

All terms are for three years and terms of the initial appointees were staggered, with the intent that mo more than a minority of members be new appointees in any one year.

Miss Jauquet noted that Gretchen Beito of Thief River Falls has been appointed a member of the advisory council to the office of public libraries and interlibrary cooperation (OPLIC), representing this area. OPLIC is under the state department of education and its role is to act as coordinator and consultant to public libraries and coordinator of relationships among all kinds and types of libraries in Minnesota.

The advisory council to the office of libraries functions as a permanent council. The council has 15 voting members and three ex-officio members. Mrs. Beito served on the NWRL board of trustees from 1976 to 1982, serving as president in 1979. She was appointed to the OPLIC advisory council in 1982.

Director Of NWRIC Will Face Charges

auditors said their report covered only the period extending back to July 1, 1980, and noted that figures presented were considered fair, although difficult to establish due to lack of records and supporting information. They said some of the amounts were determined in mutual consultation with the former director.

The auditors had determined by that November meeting that Peterson should reimburse the NWRIC for the following:

—Negotiated contract reimbursement for personal use of RIC vehicle by the director (15 months at $50 per month), $750;

—Repairs and parts charged to the NWRIC for personal use by the director, $715;

—Personal phone calls (1980-82), $125; and —Gasoline, mileage and other unsubstantiated out-of-pocket travel costs (1980-82), $2,037.

Repayment of net overpayment of wages was based on $13,076 being paid through Nov. 5, 1982, with only $10,317.90 being earned, computed on a salary of $151.11 per day for 68.28 days of employment in that contract period. Daily rate was figured by dividing the $34,000 annual salary by the 225 contract days. Taxes withheld of $752.85 reduced the amount owed in repayment from $2,759.11 to $2,006.26.

corn programs raise prices, barley prices will rise with them.

The government encouraged expansion of dairying with substantial support payments for milk, Rep. Stangeland also noted, and has created overproduction in that area as well. Efforts to reduce the costly overproduction will be needed, he said, and input from dairymen themselves on means to accomplish the cutbacks is needed.

The congresaman also supported U.S. support of El Salvador in sending of technical advisors and economic aid. He termed the situation there "very critical" and pointed out that the people of that Central American country had held free elections with 80 per cent of the voters going to the polls, many under threat of being shot by leftist forces if they participated. "There is a time when we need to stand up and be counted for a free America and a free world," he said.

He also urged party unity and involvement. "See to it that the people elected to represent you are those who represent your beliefs," he said. "We may not agree 100 per cent of the time, but we probably will agree 80 to 90 per cent of the time. Isn't it better to agree 80 to 90 per cent of the time than be faced with the alternative?"

Committeeman Leon Olstad, a former Seventh district I-R chairman, also urged party unity during his brief address to the convention banquet. He emphasized the necessity for individuals to become active and to present their candidates to friends and neighbors.

Questions On Need For Will Are Answered

Doesn't everyone need a will? No. If you die without a will, state inheritance law will divide your property among your closest living relatives: first, among your spouse and children; then your grandchildren, parents, brothers and sisters, or more distant relatives; i.e., if a widow has two children, the inheritance law gives each child half of her property when she dies. If she wants this to happen, she may not need a will, according to the community legal education program of the legal aid society of Minneapolis.

If I don't have a will, can the state take my property? Under law, your relatives would get your property. The state can take it only in the rare case where a person dies without any relatives and without a will.

What is "probate"? Probate is simply the process of settling your estate in court after you die. First, your property is collected together. Then, your debts are paid, and everything left over is divided among your heirs. The court will appoint a person (usually a relative you've chosen) to make sure this is done correctly.

Isn't probate always expensive and time-consuming? Unless you leave a large, complex estate, or your heirs fight in court over your property, probate should normally not cost a lot or take a long time. The court charges nominal filing fees. Unless the probate is unusually complex, attorney's fees should not be unreasonable.

If I have a will, doesn't that mean my estate won't be probated? Having a will does not automatically avoid probate. Whether your estate needs to be settled in court depends more on what property you own, and who you want to receive it. For example, if you die owning real estate in your name alone, there will normally need to be probate even if you have a will. The opposite can also be true. Many people (especially those with little property) will not need a probate even if they have no will. If your estate is worth less than $5,000, there is a very simple process your heirs can use to collect your property that does not require going to court.

Can I write my own will? Yes, but it's wise to talk to a lawyer first. The law requires a will to be in writing and to be signed by you in front of two witnesses who also sign. But unless you state everything correctly in the will, it might not be sufficient to carry out your wishes even if it meets these simple requirements. Normally, it's wise to check with a lawyer beforehand to be sure you've not omitted anything important, been unclear, or tried to do something illegal. Many lawyers would do this for you without charging a lot.

Who needs a will? In general, you need a will if you want to leave your property in some way other than the law provides. For example, you need a will if you want to: leave property to a non-relative or a charity; give certain items to certain people; divide your property unequally among heirs; leave someone out (a child, for example), who would otherwise inherit from you under law.

If I name someone as executor in my will, doesn't that mean they can handle my affairs if I become too sick to do so? No. A will has no effect until you are dead. If you want to give someone power to handle your affairs during your lifetime if you become disabled or incompetent, ask a lawyer to prepare a document called a "durable power of attorney."

Is it a good idea to put my real estate and bank accounts in my children's names to avoid probate? Not necessarily. Probate is not as bad as many think. Also, when you put another's name on your deed or bank account, you make them part owners of that property. This can create some practical disadvantages. With real estate for example, unless that person lives with you, you may lose part of your homestead tax rate so that your property taxes would rise. If you decided to sell the real estate, you'd need the other person's signature. If you have a falling out with that person, he or she might not cooperate with the sale, or might try to sell his partial interest without your permission. Making another part owner of your bank account may give them the right to take out all the money in the account without your permission. If the amount of money is large, gift tax might have to be paid.

Are there other problems involved in putting my property and money in my children's names? For the elderly person, there is another serious risk. If you have high medical bills or must go to a nursing home, your savings will be used up quickly. When most of your savings are gone, you may need to apply for medical assistance (MA) to pay the bill. MA prohibits giving away property or money for the purpose of getting benefits. On applying, an applicant must disclose any transfer of property for less than fair market value that occured within the prior two years. Unless you can prove the transfer was for fair market value or was for some "other purpose" than to become eligible for MA or supplemtal security income (SSI), your eligibility for MA or SSI may be delayed or denied. (Preserving your estate for your heirs is not an acceptable "other purpose".)

Tax Changes Affect Savings For Retirement

Expanded eligibility for individual retirement arrangement (IRA) plans and increased ceilings for Keogh plans are among a number of tax changes affecting retirement savings beginning in 1982, the internal revenue service (IRS) said.

For the first time, workers who are already covered by company pension plans may qualify to set up an IRA or to make voluntary tax-free contributions to the company plan. Under the old law, only noncovered taxpayers qualified.

An IRA is a savings program that allows participants to set aside money for their retirement. Contributions to an IRA are tax deductible and the earnings accrued are not taxed until they are distributed, generally upon retirement when income is lower.

Under the new tax law, both covered and noncovered employees will be able to contribute up to 100 per cent of their compensation, up to a maximum of $2,000, to an IRA. The old retirement plan law limited the contribution to $1,500.

Another change increases the tax-free amount allowed for an IRA and spousal IRA from $1,750 to $2,250. Under the new law, contributions are no longer required to be equal for husband and wife. A spousal IRA allows married taxpayers to set up an IRA for themselves and a separate one for their non-working spouses.

Contributions to an IRA may be made at any time during the tax year and up to the due date for filing Form 1040 for that year (including extensions). For most people, that is April 15 of the following year, according to the IRS.

New law has also doubled to $15,000 the deduction for yearly contributions to a Keogh plan. Under a Keogh plan, self-employed persons such as doctors, architects, farmers and the like can set aside money for their retirement. Contributions to it are tax deductible and earnings accrued by the plan are exempt from tax until they are distributed, generally upon retirement.

Under the old law, self-employed taxpayers could deduct 15 per cent of their earned income to a maximum of $7,500. Now they can deduct 15 per cent of their earned income to a maximum of $15,000. Special rules apply if income in excess of $100,000 is used to determine the contribution.

In addition, the new law allows a penalty-free correction of an excess contribution to a Keogh plan if the excess is withdrawn before the return-filing due date. Previously, such a grace period was available only to IRA contributors.

Complete information on IRA's and Keoghs can be found in IRS Publication 590, "Tax information on individual retirement arrangements," and Publication 560, "Tax information on self-employed retirement plans." To get these free publications, use the order blank in the 1982 tax package.

pursuits include puppetry (she is a co-founder of a performing group called "Beanstalk: Puppetry to Educate and Entertain"), sculpture and watercolor painting. Her college degree in fine arts is from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee. Among her awards is a Minneapolis arts commission grant. She has taught in the Edina arts center and the ESAA special arts project and in 1980 she was commissioned to create a sculpture for Seward square, a handicapped housing unit in Minneapolis.

"The arts are a constant learning process," she said, "the subject matter being whatever delights and interests the artist. Ideas range from the simplest to the most complex. For the past five or six years I have been able to share these concepts through public exhibits and working as an artist in residence is also a very satisfying part of my career."

rainy day. The dull dark clouds were so gray. The brown grass smelled like rotten eggs."

Travis Unruh: "On Saturday morning the sky is as blue as aqua and there isn't a fluffy cloud in the sky. The air is as crisp as a winter day. A small breeze flows through the trees; great to fly a kite. The day is clear and quiet."

Kristi Suronen: "It was a warm sunny October day. We ran anxiously to the over filled car. We sped as fast as we could make our mom go to the humane society. We bought a playful little chihuahua and dachshund cross puppy."

Third portion of the class is devoted to using sense words to describe an event the students remember. Words come alive as the individual recalls sights, sounds, tastes, smells and feelings. Class examples include:

Marcy McCloskey: "I remember. . . hearing the Christmas records playing as we worked, seeing the glistening snow flakes as they tapped against the window, feeling the prickly tree needles that caught in the carpet, tasting all the delicious cookies and candies that Mom always makes, smelling the pine of the pine tree all over the house."

Kent Holmes, entitled "Pee Wee A Tourney": "I remember . . . hearing pucks off the glass, seeing rubber flying at me, feeling the sting of the puck in the glove, tasting water quenching my throat and the smell of sweat on the ice."

Anne Nabben: "I remember. . . seeing the paths for the horses, hearing their neighing to each other, touching them when you had to leave, smelling what they left behind, tasting a candy bar on the way."

Kai Anerson, entitled "At the Lake": "I remember. . . hearing the birds singing, seeing boats go by, feeling the cool water, tasting Canadian toffee, smelling seaweed all over the place."

Karen Kvick, entitled "Christmas Time": "I remember . . . hearing people laughing, seeing the lit Christmas tree, feeling the soft bows on the presents, tasting the hot apple cider, smelling the coffee brewing."

Creative writing class will be held for the rest of the semester so students can develop many writing skills.

Dear Readers,
The average American wife can expect close to 10 years of widowhood. Typically, husbands are 4 years older than their wives - and women outlive men by about 5 years.
Do women sit down with their husbands and discuss the myriad things he takes care of that are necessary for their survival - family bank accounts, investments, real estate, money owed, or owed to you, home repairs, auto repairs, etc. A wise couple will do this.
Respectfully.

Farmers Being Honored With TRF Promotion

Agri-business committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce has designated March 15 to 26 as farmer appreciation days in Thief River Falls.

Purpose of this promotional event is to acknowledge the importance of farmers in our society and the contribution they make to the well being of us all. Local celebration is centered around the nationally designated Agriculture Week, March 18-24, promoted by the agriculture council of America.

According to Tom Puppe, chairman of the agri-business committee, the local chamber group wanted to do something to recognize the significance of farmers to our community. "Farmers contribute a great deal to the good life we all live. They provide abundant food for us all at a price that takes a very small percentage of our incomes. In addition, they are a very important part of our national and local economies, and, we wanted to say thanks for the contribution they make. So, we tried to put together a period of time during which the businesses of the community could sponsor meetings and business promotions that would be of interest, benefit and fun to the farmers."

Monday evening, March 21, the traditional farmer-merchant mixer will be held at the American Legion club. Serving is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Educational programs scheduled during Appreciation days include sessions on: "Computers in Farming" from 9:30 to 11 a.m., repeating from 1:30 to 3 p.m. on Saturday, and from 1:30 to 3:30 on Monday, March 21; "Estate Planning" from 9:30 to 11 a.m., repeating from 1:30 to 3 p.m. on Saturday; "Alternatives for Set-aside Acres Under the PIK Program" at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Monday, March 21; and "Soybean Production Practices" from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Monday, March 21. All of these meetings are scheduled to be held at the Best Western Inn, and are open to farmers at no charge.

Other events are being sponsored by various groups and businesses during the event, and can be found listed in the calendar of events and advertisements of the sponsors in the pullout tabloid section of the Times and Northern Minnesota Shopper's Guide.

Further information on specific events can be obtained by phoning the Chamber of Commerce office at 681-3720.

Set Northern Mission Meet Near Waubun

Annual meeting of Northern Lutheran Missions will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 19, at the Elbow Lake chapel, approximately 22 miles east of Waubun.

Missionaries Paul and Dawn Larson of White Earth and Elbow Lake chapels, and Mace and Melanee Straubel of the Redby Lutheran Mission, will give reports of the past year's work. Reports will also be heard from President Helmer Hanson, Gonvick; Secretary Harvey Dyrud, Newfolden; and Treasurer Kenneth Rolf, McIntosh.
